Summit 'In Air' Over Rhodesia

Salisbury Talks Continue

SALISBURY (Reuters) —Prime Minister Ian Smith today conferred with Morrice James, the British envoy sent here to continue negotiations on the year-old Rhodesian independence deadlock.

They were together about 45 minutes in the prime minister's city office, a Rhodesian spokesman said, but did not give any other details.

The announcement that the two men had met increased the secrecy already surrounding the negotiations.

Informed sources said they understood the meeting took place before a special Rhodesian cabinet meeting about noon. Smith said earlier he did not think he would meet James today.

Smith's cabinet meeting was the second in two days—an unusual event.

MEETS WITH GIBBS

James, a high-ranking official of the British Commonwealth office, arrived in Salisbury Tuesday night and today talked with Governor Sir Humphrey Gibbs at Government House.

Without satisfactory assurances from Smith's white minority regime by today, British Prime Minister Wilson is pledged to take the issue of mandatory sanctions to the United Nations by the end of the year. But he was believed to be ready to delay this last resort for a while.

The two sides are divided about the question of progress to majority rule for Rhodesia's 4,000,000 Negroes and a formula for ending what Britain terms the unconstitutional condition of the Smith regime.

Wilson-Smith Meeting Possible

LONDON (AFP) — The Daily Express, in a dispatch from Salisbury, says a summit meeting between British Prime Minister Wilson and Rhodesian Premier Ian Smith "seems to be in the air".

A decisive tete-a-tete between the British and Rhodesian leaders could take place in Blantyre, Malawi, on the condition that the talks scheduled for today in Salisbury, the Rhodesian capital, between special envoy Sir Morrice James and Smith achieve a positive result, the paper reports.

The paper's optimistic forecast was based on statements Wilson is reported to have made in private.

Though in the Commons Tuesday the prime minister spoke of only a "small movement" from Salisbury, The Express says he actually believed that Smith made "considerable concessions".

Mill Layoffs Begin Because of Dispute

The pulp production plant at Crofton was partially closed today, resulting in the layoff of 170 men.

B.C. Forest Products took the action, which was announced last Monday, because of the current shutdown of the British Columbia waterfront.

Jack Gallagher, industrial relations officer at the mill, said the dock dispute has left the company with three times the normal amount of pulp jammed into storage areas.

There was no more storage room available at the 950-ton a day plant.

Another 150 men will be out of work by the weekend unless the situation changes

Production of newsprint will continue as long as it can be shipped by rail or barge.

MacMillan Bloedel said the dispute will force closures at some mills this Friday.

STORAGE EXHAUSTED

"The company has notified its employees at Alberni Pacific Sawmill Division at Port Alberni and Vancouver Plywood Division, that production will come to a halt Friday unless shiploading is resumed. Storage space for the mills' products will be exhausted by that day.

"Closure of the Port Alberni sawmill and Vancouver plywood mill will put more than 1,700 men out of work, some 1,235 at the plywood mill and more than 500 at the sawmill."

A company spokesman said that closure of other mills on Vancouver Island and in the Greater Vancouver area will follow unless loading of ships resume.

The disruption of shipping will ultimately lead to the closing of all the company's wood product mills, involving some 4,300 employees. If the mills are forced to close, shutdown of the company's logging divisions, which employ almost 3,000 men, will follow.

'CRITICAL'

"The shortage of storage space is becoming critical at the mills because of our inability to move products to our export customers," said the company spokesman.

"The developing situation will not only create a hardship for our production employees but it also will not be received well by traditional customers for B.C forest products."

The strike by 190 dock foremen entered its 13th day today with the waterfront idle because companies won't hire longshoremen until the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union gives an assurance of no more slowdowns.

The union has said any slowdown is caused by the absence of experienced supervisors.

MASS MEETING

A mass meeting of Vancouver longshoremen was being held this afternoon. No similar meeting was called in Victoria although a meeting is expected later in the week.

About 3,000 longshoremen are out of work with only a hundred or two continuing to work bulk cargo shipments.

Sixty ships are waiting to be handled in Vancouver alone. There were no ships at Ogden Point this morning.

UN Chief To Accept New Term?

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—United Nations headquarters buzzed with rumors today that U Thant had decided to stay on for a second five-year term as secretary-general of the world organization.

Thant had scheduled an announcement for this morning on his final decision, but this was postponed at the request of the UN Security Council.

The rumors came in the midst of intense activity among UN diplomats to persuade the secretary-general to reverse his earlier decision to leave at the end of the current General Assembly session, Dec. 20.

The members of the 15-member council were spearheading the move.

Many diplomats believe that the secretary-general eventually will bow to the pressure to remain for at least part of another five-year term despite his desire to return to private life. None could be found, however, who claimed to know definitely what Thant would do.

Thant told a reporter Monday night that he had reached a decision, but he refused to say what it was.

Informed quarters said the Security Council would meet Friday to make a formal request that the Burmese diplomat accept a new term.

U.S. Warns Canada On New Bank Act

By PETER NEWMAN
Special to The Times

OTTAWA— American-Canadian relations, already ruffled by our new China policy, may soon escalate into an even more unpleasant phase.

Newman

At issue is a clause in the revision of the Bank Act, now before Parliament, which would severely limit the future growth here of the Mercantile Bank of Canada, a wholly-owned subsidiary of the First National City Bank of New York.

Washington sources indicate that this dispute is the subject of a private diplomatic note to the Canadian government, from the U.S. State Department. The note is described by those who have read it as one of the toughest diplomatic initiatives that has ever been directed at Canada by the U.S. It is said to call the Canadian action unacceptable and even to threaten retaliation, if it is not withdrawn.

RESTRICTS HOLDINGS

The basis of the American complaint is the clause that restricts non-Canadian holdings in any chartered bank to 25 per cent and limits to 10 per cent the holdings of any shareholder. If either of these provisions is violated—and Mercantile violates them both—the foreign-owned bank will be prohibited from increasing its assets to more than 20 times its authorized

Storm Dumps Snow

VANCOUVER (CP)—Snow plows were in operation late Tuesday and early today to keep traffic moving through the Fraser Valley after four inches of snow fell in the area during a 12-hour period.

The snowfall, first major storm of the season, left the Trans-Canada and Hope-Princeton Highways in slippery, but passable condition. Both highways have been sanded, but police warned that cars using them should be equipped with snow tires.

In other parts of the province, Prince George recorded a record low temperature of zero Tuesday. Previous low for that date was 14 above, set in 1919.

The weather office at Vancouver said cold Arctic air would continue to cover the province east of the coastal mountain range with some seepage to the coast through valleys today.

The weatherman predicts Thursday will be cloudy east of the mountains with rain and snow in some areas.

3 CEASEFIRE PERIODS AGREED IN VIET WAR

SAIGON (UPI) — United States and South Vietnamese forces today promised to observe 48-hour ceasefires throughout Viet Nam during the Christmas and New Year's holiday—provided Communist forces do the same.

The order suspending fighting by all allied forces was signed by South Vietnamese Premier Nguyen Cao Ky and will temporarily bring to a halt all combat operations, including United States bombing of North Viet Nam.

It went one step further than a similar ceasefire pledge announced by Communists earlier, providing in addition for a four-day combat truce during the Asian lunar new year beginning February 8.

Scandinavians Merge Tariff Round Policies

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) (AP) — The four Scandinavian countries today merged into a single negotiating bloc within the Kennedy round negotiations and promptly threatened to withdraw a number of their industrial offers if the six European Common Market countries do not improve theirs.

The threat followed an announcement that Sweden, Norway and Denmark have agreed to a 50-per-cent across-the-board cut in all industrial tariffs. The fourth country, Finland, submitted a small list of exceptions. The Kennedy round, initiated by the late U.S. president, aims at a 50-per-cent cut in all industrial and agricultural tariffs.

But Ambassador Nils Montan of Sweden, appointed chief Scandinavian negotiator, told a press conference:

"If better offers are not forthcoming from the Common Market, we will withdraw offers we have made which are of interest to the other side."

He declined to give details or name a deadline.

Scandinavia is the market's most important single export market—13.5 per cent of Common Market exports go to the four countries. The Common Market enjoys a trade surplus of $1,300,000,000 with Scandinavia.

The Common Market countries are France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — A one per cent increase in Newfoundland's five per cent sales tax was forecast in the speech from the throne read today at the opening of the provincial legislature.

Settlement This Week Or Else . . .

LONDON (AP) — The British government plans to ask the United Nations this weekend for compulsory economic sanctions against Rhodesia if Prime Minister Ian Smith does not come to terms by then, government sources report.

The sources said Prime Minister Wilson apparently hopes the threat of such a request to the Security Council will prompt Smith to accept a settlement of the year-old rebellion by the African territory's white minority.

Wilson won cabinet approval of the request Tuesday and told the House of Commons the UN action would be in effect before Christmas. UN approval of sanctions is considered certain since the General Assembly earlier this month voted overwhelmingly for Britain to use force, if necessary, to end the rebellion.

British authorities, however, were said to feel they still have about a week to work something out with Smith's regime since it will take about five days to set up a Security Council meeting

UN Troops on Border Agreed to by Jordan

AMMAN, Jordan (UPI)— Jordanian King Hussein, blaming the powderkeg crisis in the Middle East on Soviet agitation, strove desperately today to turn aside new threats to his regime by hardline Arab extremists and to establish a "balance of power" with Israel.

As tensions remained higher than at any time in the past decade, the young monarch summoned the Jordanian parliament to discuss the crisis.

In a conciliatory gesture, Hussein said at a news conference Jordan would agree to basing United Nations peacekeeping troops along the border with Israel.

As Hussein acted, Syrian radio reports told of a general strike and new demonstrations against him in the Gaza Strip.

Syria's ruling Baath socialist party called Tuesday for the overthrow of Hussein. Syria's rulers, long at odds with the Hashemite monarchy of Jordan, called on "rebellious forces in Jordan" to overthrow the 31-year-old king and "create the necessary climate for the return to palestine."

And in Cairo it was announced that the Arab League's defence council will hold an urgent meeting Dec. 7 to discuss the Middle East crisis.

Extraordinary security precautions remained in effect in Jordan, as Arabs began demonstrations to protest the 1947 United Nations resolution partitioning Palestine and leading to the establishment of Israel. There were fears the demonstrations would be turned into new protests against Hussein, whom extremists accuse of weakness in dealing with Israel.

Homemade Bomb Found

TORONTO (CP)—Police found a homemade bomb on the lawn in front of the Yugoslavian consulate early today, a few hours after Serbian and Croation immigrants had demonstrated in front of the building.

The police bomb squad dismantled the small bomb, similar to a grenade. They said it didn't go off because the fuse system wasn't working properly.

ARSENIC FED TO GUESTS

AUCKLAND (Reuters) — A New Zealand hostess entertaining prominent international legal figures including Hazen Hansard of Montreal, former president of the Canadian Bar Association, fed them food containing arsenic and committed suicide herself by poisoning, a coroner reported here today.

The socially prominent woman, Mrs. Marjorie Edna Ellingham, 54, took care that other guests, including prominent visitors from Britain and Australia, should not be killed. She wanted it to appear they had food poisoning.

But one woman took home a portion of chicken for her 11-year-old son who died after eating it.

The coroner, A. D. Copeland, released details of the inquest into the deaths Easter Sunday, April 10, and of intensive investigation by police who questioned 1,400 persons about Mrs. Ellingham's activities.

The coroner found that Mrs. Ellingham committed suicide with arsenic and that the death of the boy, David Charles Davision, was due to arsenic poisoning.

Mrs. Ellingham, who took 10 times the amount of arsenic she gave anyone else, told guests not to worry if they felt ill as she had a doctor present.

Her personal physician told the inquest Mrs. Ellingham had a history of depression, with feelings of guilt over the earlier suicides of her mother and an uncle.

SHARE WITH ASIAN CHILDREN FUND

Suddenly, Friends Transformed Into Killers

By CANDIDE TEMPLE

In India, where many of the men and women dress in tattered rags and saris and the children in nothing, clothing is needed as much as food.

Aid from the Unitarian Service Committee, backed by The Times' Share with Asian Children fund, often takes the form of needed garments, as well as Canadian milk and barley.

On her recent Asian trip to supervise USC relief projects, the agency's executive director, Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova, assisted at one clothing distribution in Indian, which, she recalls, made a "brutal impact" on her of the need for more aid.

With a USC doctor and an Indian midwife, Dr. Hitschmanova travelled to the small village of Villpatti outside Kodaikanal.

According to plan, they gave out tickets to the villagers, who would claim their clothing bundles later that morning — blankets, saris and baby clothes.

"We though we had it perfectly organized," Dr. Hitschmanova recalls, "and I was looking forward immensely to the distribution.

"The urgency to replace the dirty rags adults and children were wearing was only too obvious."

However, things did not go according to plan.

"The scene in front of our dispensary that morning I shall never forget.

"Not only had the 70 people come to whom we had given tickets, but several hundred others as well, since in typical Indian village style, everybody has to participate in everything that happens.

"And so every last living soul had turned up, hopefully expecting to receive his share when the distribution started."

Naturally there was not enough clothing to go around.

"As soon as I started handing out the first saris and blankets to ticket-holders, the fighting broke out.

"These were no longer men and women who had lived peacefully in the same community. Suddenly they had become competitors and enemies.

"It was absolutely horrifying to see human beings transformed into brutes, ready to kill a friend and neighbor for the sake of a garment worth a dollar."

The only solution to the scene, Dr. Hitschmanova concluded, is more garments and further aid for the USC to distribute to destitute villagers.

And for this they need more funds, donated by generous Canadians, to continue relief work in India, Hong Kong and Korea.

Victorians may help USC to continue their work through donations to The Times Share with Asian Children Fund, sent care of this newspaper or made at the main branch, Bank of Montreal, 1225 Douglas.

LONDON—The income from properties owned by Prince Charles, heir to the British Throne, does not come under the government's wage freeze, Prime Minister Harold Wilson told Parliament Tuesday night.

Mrs. Renee Short, left-wing Labor member of Parliament, urged Wilson to ensure that royalty is subject to the same laws as ordinary citizens. The government froze wages and prices last July in an attempt to bolster the economy.

Wilson said he suspected Mrs. Short's real point was that the allowance Prince Charles receives as Duke of Cornwall was increased when he became 18 Nov. 14.

But this was not a salary, Wilson said. It was only part of revenues from the Duchy of Cornwall "which are his as of right and which he will receive in full on attaining the age of 21," he added.

On his 18th birthday, when he became eligible to succeed his mother as sovereign, Prince Charles automatically got a £15,000 ($45,000) raise which brought his annual income to £30,000 ($90,000) under a scale fixed in 1952.

Wilson said until the prince reaches 21 the balance of his estates' revenue is used to reduce government grants for royal purposes. In the last 15 years this had amounted to about £1,700,000 ($5,100,000).

Estates of the Duchy of Cornwall include—in addition to a number of fish-and-chip establishments—a London cricket stadium and properties in Devon and the Isles of Scilly. Most of the income comes from rents.

ROME—Italian actress Claudia Cardinale says she has the secret to the perfect marriage—distance.

CLAUDIA
. . . likes distance

The beauteous Miss Cardinale told the Italian news agency ANSA Tuesday when she decides to marry she will live "far apart" from her husband "in a separate house."

"I don't want to renounce the independent life because I am convinced that many marriages go on the rocks because the partners know each other too well and they live exclusively with one another so that their union loses that certain fascination, that mystery necessary to keep alive the unexpected," she was quoted.

The actress said she and her future husband—she stressed she had no one special in mind—would "meet at lunch and at dinner when we like."

"We would also live at one or the other's house for long or short periods as we choose, but without any restrictions or fixed rules."

LONDON—The battle of the beards in a British razor factory ended in a standoff this week.

Two bearded employees of the U.S.-owned Gillette plant in Reading refused to shave.

The lather came when plans were made for the two top executives of the company from the United States—board chairman Vincent Ziegler and president Stuart Hensley—to tour the plant.

The pair's foreman, Jim Cappell, said: "I was asked to ask them if they would mind shaving as we did feel these beards were a little unpatriotic."

Bearded Ken Gardiner, 45, protested: "I will not shave. I grow a beard every winter to keep my chin warm. When it comes to shaving I'm as loyal as the next man—I use our company products."

Gardiner and his bearded sidekick showed up for work as usual and the two Gillette executives toured the plants.

Whether the two visitors spotted the beards was not disclosed.

PARIS — The city's taxi drivers tried to protest to Gen. Charles de Gaulle today about the black market in driver's permits but they never got to first base.

Police thwarted the cabbies' plan to drive around and around the block where de Gaulle's Elysee Palace is situated, honking their horns. The cabbies had intended to protest what they allege is the illegal sale of cab driver's permits on the black market for as much as 40,000 francs ($8,000) each.

Police turned back all unoccupied cabs trying to approach the palace between 10 a.m. and 11 a.m., the hour scheduled for the demonstration. After a dozen vain efforts to get near the palace the drivers gave up and departed.

There was no sign that de Gaulle, who was conducting a cabinet meeting in the palace, was even aware of the would-be demonstration.

Erhard Gives Warning As Term Ends

BONN (Reuters) — Ludwig Erhard bowed out as chancellor of West Germany tonight with a warning that recent election successes by extreme rightists are a challenge to the country's democratic forces.

Toppled by a coalition split after three years in office, the 69-year-old Erhard went on television to make his farewell.

As he spoke, preparations went ahead for the election today of his successor, Kurt George Giesinger.

The new chancellor will be voted into office as head of a new coalition between his own Christian Democrats and the Opposition Social Democrats at a special Bundestag Lower House parliamentary session in the morning.

Later the cabinet will be sworn in by Bundestag Speaker Eugen Gertsenmaier.

All three are Christian Democrats.

Norman Arden, 2710 Claude, was fined $75 after pleading guilty to a charge of supplying liquor to a minor.

Court was told Arden, 21, had admitted ownership of part bottles of liquor in a car Oct. 23.

ERHARD EXPECTED TO RESIGN TODAY

New German Cabinet Takes Over Thursday

BONN (UPI) — The Christian Democrats and the Social Democrats, rivals for power since the end of the Second World War, reached agreement today on a new coalition cabinet to end West Germany's month-long government crisis.

Details of the agreement were hammered out in all-night session between Chancellor-designate Kurt Georg Kiesinger, leader of the Christian Democrats, and Social Democratic party chairman Willy Brandt, mayor of West Berlin.

An announcement by the two party leaders said the list of cabinet members would be presented to parliamentary members of their respective parties today for formal approval.

RESIGN TODAY

Chancellor Ludwig Erhard was expected to resign formally today to clear the way for Kiesinger's election Thursday by the Bundestag, lower house of the Germany Parliament. The new cabinet will be sworn in three hours later.

The historic cabinet agreement uniting the nation's two largest political parties had been expected Tuesday. But last minute delays over the make up of the new government forced Kiesinger and Brandt to negotiate into the early morning hours.

The cabinet was to be reduced by one member with the elimination of the ministry for the defence council, political sources said. This was the agency that had co-ordinated the various intelligence agencies.

The Christian Democrats who hold 245 seats in the Bundestag, apparently were given 10 of the cabinet seats. The other nine places went to the Social Democrats who have 202 deputies.

NEW MINISTERS

Under the new cabinet arrangement, Brandt will take over as vice chancellor and foreign minister, succeeding Gerhard Schroeder, who will become defence minister. Franz Joseph Strauss, leader of the powerful Bavarian branch of the Christian Democrats, will become finance minister.

Paul Luecke, a Christian Democrat, will stay on as interior minister while Brandt's close associate, Karl Schiller, will become economics minister. Gustav Heinemann, who quit former Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's cabinet in 1950 in protest against his plans for re-armament, will become justice minister.

Former Communist Herbert Wehner, a co-leader of the Social Democrats, is to be minister for all-German affairs. He is expected to give the office a new name better reflecting its mission of preparing German reunification.

BRANDT VICTORY

The agreement today was a victory for the Social Democrats. In opposition since the first West German government was formed in 1949, they have consistently increased their poll, but always just failed to beat the Christian Democrats led by the venerable Adenauer and his protege, Erhard.

But four weeks ago, the small middle-of-the-road party, the free Democrats, withdrew support from Erhard's government over his budget policy. Erhard was unable to restore a parliamentary majority and his party nominated Kiesinger, minister-president (governor) of Baden-Wuerttemberg, to try to form a new government.

The Free Democrats made it clear to Kiesinger last week that they would not meet his terms, leaving him no choice but to offer partnership to the Social Democrats.

Leftist elements in the Social Democratic party, however, have been staging a series of demonstrations in West German cities against the coalition.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Cloudy skies were general throughout the province overnight. Rain fell along the south coast while snow prevailed in the interior. The cold Arctic air continues to cover all of B.C. east of the coastal range with some seepage to the coast through the valleys and inlets. The main body of the cold air should remain in the interior with occasional snow in the colder air. Meanwhile, a series of Pacific disturbances will move across the south coast today and Thursday bringing rain to the district. One in the series will cross the area today while yet another will approach the coast Thursday afternoon.

Two-China Policy Will Be Continued

By DAVID MILLER

TORONTO (CP) — Canada must continue to seek the membership of Peking in the United Nations because Communist China is necessary in the fight for non-proliferation of nuclear weapons, External Affairs Minister Paul Martin said Tuesday.

The UN General Assembly earlier Tuesday rejected a motion to seat Communist China and expel Nationalist China, but Mr. Martin said, "We must move on the subject (China's admission) and unlock the lack of progress in the last 16 years."

He told the Toronto Junior Board of Trade that Communist China must participate in the UN because the UN is getting stronger and China is a major world power.

"It is an issue of vital importance to the United Nations and the world," he said. "It does not involve support for Communism."

Canada abstained from voting on the motion because it also innvolved expulsion of Nationalist China, Mr. Martin said.

"Our abstinence was a fundamental shift of policy," he said. "In the past, Canada has voted against motions for Peking membership, but abstention today was more in keeping with Canada's present position in the international community."

Mr. Martin said he did not expect a majority in the UN to support the proposal because "audacious suggestions are seldom accepted overnight."

The UN General Assembly also defeated an Italian proposal for a committee study of Chinese representation. Canada voted in favor of the proposal, Mr. Martin said, and would have welcomed the opportunity to co-sponsor it.

"We wanted it amended to include three conditions, but because it recommended a move forward, we gave it our support."

LISTS CONDITIONS

He said the conditions were the guaranteed membership of Communist China, continued participation of Nationalist China and a shift in the Security Council seat now occuped by Taiwan to continental China.

Mr. Martin also discussed his trip to Russia, Poland and Italy and said prospects appear brighter for world peace and peaceful settlement of the Viet Nam war.

Russia and Poland still believe the only way to stop the war is to stop the bombing, he said, but "I am not unhopeful" that negotiations can be opened on cessation of hostilities.

Mr. Martin also said he believes a treaty to curb the spread of nuclear weapons will be a reality soon "and that Polish and Soviet leaders will work toward this end."

CANADA FOLLOWS LONELY COURSE

By ALEXANDER FARRELL

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—Following a lonely course to the end, Canada carved out a position all its own in this year's United Nations debate on Chinese membership.

It is fair to say Canada was unmatched in its zealous support of both sides. In the end, it was able to commit itself to the admission of Communist China without actually voting for it.

Canada was among 17 abstainers on an Albanian-Cambodian motion to seat Peking and expel the Nationalist Chinese, which was defeated by 57 votes to 46.

Of the abstainers, Canada alone played a prominent role in the debate and in the private consultations where the real arguments take place, trying to get member countries to agree to the eventual interim seating of both Chinese governments and letting them settle their jurisdictional disputes.

Unlike most abstentions, Canada's on this issue was an attempt to say something. Canada could have voted against the Albanian-Cambodian motion in the light of its stated belief that it would be wrong to expel the Nationalist Chinese. It chose, however, to say "yes" to Peking while continuing to say "yes" to Nationalist China. Abstention was the only way of saying this.

Along the way to the vote, Canada met varieties of attitudes, but they all added up to disapproval of what it calls its "one-China, one-Formosa" policy. Virtually everybody else still falls into either of two camps.

Nationalist China 'Good and Loyal' Member

In one camp, where the United States is the leader, the opposition to the seating of Peking on any basis remained firm. But the principal emphasis of the U.S. campaign this year was on uncompromising support of the Nationalist Chinese regime, known in the UN as the Republic of China. It was stated that the Nationalist Chinese have been good and loyal members of the UN and firm adherents to the principles of the charter.

In the other camp, there is no leader. Who could be the leader of a group comprsing the Soviet Union, the Soviet bloc, France, Britain, India, Pakistan, Indonesia, Nigeria and various smaller countries scattered around the globe?

What unites them is the apparently durable conviction, which has survived such shocks as the Sino-Soviet quarrel, the Red Guards and China's attacks on India, that reason dictates the presence of Peking's representatives in the UN.

They say this objective is too important to be compromised or blocked by concern over the fate of the Nationalist Chinese regime, which, to most of them, has no status anyway.

But whatever they think of the Nationalist regime's status, it worked hard to keep its UN spot this year and it succeeded, admittedly with powerful help. One Nationalist Chinese diplomat told a reporter Monday the vote against Peking would be 58 to 46, with 16 abstentions. "The only country about which I didn't make the right forecast," the same diplomat said on Tuesday, "was Canada."

Danger Known To School In Aberfan

MERTHYR TYDFIL, Wales (Reuters)—A warning given two years ago that Aberfan's school could be endangered by a colliery refuse tip collapse such as that which killed 116 children and 28 adults last month, an inquiry court was told today.

Repeated warnings were given to the National Coal Board by Merthyr Borough council about the gene... damage of colliery tips on the mountainside above nearby Aberfan, Britain's Attorney-General Sir Elwyn Jones said here.

A Merthyr alderman stated at a meeting in January, 1964, that "if the tip moved, it could threaten the whole school" at Aberfan.

'PROGRESS BACKWARDS' SAYS NDP

Eye Test Exclusion Hinted in Medicare

OTTAWA (CP)—Health Minister MacEachen hinted Tuesday night at a possible cutback in one feature of the federal government's medical care insurance bill.

He told the Commons that he plans to give the provinces a chance to exclude from insured services eye tests that determine whether corrective eyeglasses are required.

None of the four provinces with public medical care plans covers this expense now, he told the Commons.

Under the federal bill as it now stands, eye refractions by a medical doctor would qualify as an insured service. But this test, where performed by an optometrist, would not qualify.

To place optometrists and medical doctors on an equal footing with respect to this procedure, Mr. MacEachen said, he proposes that the province have the option of excluding eye refractions.

"That's progress backwards," charged New Democratic Leader T. C. Douglas.

WILL SHARE COSTS

Mr. MacEachen said later outside the Commons that if a province insists on including coverage of eye refractions by a medical doctor in its plan, the federal government will share the costs.

Optometrists have protested against the provisions of the federal bill as discriminating against them in favor of the medical doctor.

The minister's Commons statment followed a second day of determined efforts by Conservatives and New Democrats to introduce amendments to the federal bill.

The measure provides that Ottawa will pay half the per capita cost of any province's medical care plan which meets certain conditions.

The federal government has already announced that it will change the bill to postpone the effective date for one year, to July 1, 1968.

Mr. MacEachen hinted Tuesday night, at another change dealing with oral surgery.

GIVES NO DETAILS

He gave no details of the oral surgery change but it was possible optional exclusion would be provided for mouth surgery performed by a medical doctor rather than a dental surgeon.

The day-long campaign by Conservatives and New Democrats to amend the bill centred mainly on demands to include various para-medical services under insured services.

The bill covers only services by a doctor, excluding those of dental surgeons, chiropractors, osteopaths, psychologists, dentists, physiotherapists and other health professions.

Three such proposed amendments were ruled out of order Monday in detailed study of the bill. Four more were ruled out of order Tuesday and still others are to come.

Mr. MacEachen argued that to make any changes to cover services of health professions other than medicine would be breaking faith with the provinces.

The federal offer to pay half their per capita costs was made with respect only to medical services provided by doctors.

He said it would delay the federal bill to begin discussions with the provinces aimed at widening the services to be covered.

Furthermore, any additional services would have to take into account priorities—should prescriptions drugs be added first or some other aspect of health care?

Gilbey's disclose little tricks to improve your mixed gin drinks

Use these little tricks to improve your mixed gin drinks. But if it's taste that's troubling you—forget the tricks and change to Gilbey's London Dry. Its perfect balance gives you a fresh, clean-tasting drink.

Tricks with ice

If you need lots of ice for a party, start a few hours before the event. Make a batch of ice and then tip it out into a plastic bag. You can then keep the bag of ice in the bottom half of your refrigerator—the bag helps keep the ice well chilled. Make as many bags as you need.

Tricks with twists

To make a 'twist' of lemon begin with fresh lemon. See that the skin is clear and unblemished. With a razor-sharp knife pare off a strip of peel ⅜" wide. Take the strip of peel between your thumb and forefinger. Twist it so that a couple of drops go into your drink.

Hint: there's a special knife for paring twists. If you do a lot of twisting, it's worth getting.

You can rely on Gilbey's London Dry, a perfectly balanced gin that gives you a fresh, clean-tasting drink.

This gin is an international favourite, sold in 92 countries. It's been made by the Gilbey family for 109 years.

Deadline Diplomacy

THE BRITISH CABINET HAS cleared the way for an application to the United Nations Security Council to apply sanctions against Rhodesia. The action came on the eve of today's deadline for Rhodesia's Prime Minister Smith to call off the rebellion or face stiffer measures designed to isolate his country from all trade.

Actually, Britain has postponed the deadline until the coming weekend, in hopes that Mr. Smith will clarify and enlarge on several relatively minor concessions he has made. The major goal of Britain: agreement to eventual full political freedom for Rhodesia's four million Negro inhabitants—95 per cent of the population—is not yet in sight.

The British government's first step toward UN sanctions is being interpreted in part as a threat which Mr. Wilson hopes will not have to be carried out. But if Mr. Smith does not respond satisfactorily, the resort to United Nations intervention could have significant repercussions on Britain. The Rhodesian problem would be largely taken out of the British government's hands and the world body would become the dominant factor in any solution.

The basic issue is whether majority rule shall proceed without pause toward its natural conclusion, which would be the universal enfranchisement of the Negro population. Mr. Smith has recognized the general principle, but insisted that there be provision for halts in the trend if the Negro inhabitants began to gain the vote too rapidly and before they were fully qualified by education and familiarity with the democratic process. The catch in that, of course, could be that Mr. Smith's present regime or some future Rhodesian government might impose long and unjustified delays on the country's democratic development, thus nullifying the intent of the agreement.

There appears to have been a sufficient alteration in Mr. Smith's stand to give Mr. Wilson an excuse to postpone the deadline. African members of the UN are pressing for much more stringent measures against Rhodesia, including military. But the first UN move would no doubt be to enforce the oil embargo by trying to stop the imported supply from South Africa, and this could lead to a critical situation and a distinct threat to peace.

If Mr. Smith is in reality moving towards agreement with Britain, recognizing the mounting pressures not only of his African neighbors and the United Nations membership but of the twentieth-century trend to enfranchisement for all African peoples, then he may have the key to an early solution to the problem. But at the moment Rhodesia's hints require a little more substantiation.

Political Party Juggling

A COALITION COMPRISING West Germany's Christian Democratic Party and the Social Democratic Party, with the Christian Democrat leader Georg-Kurt Kiesinger as chancellor, is a strange alliance of groups with inherent and, perhaps, irreconcilable philosophical differences. The future of such a coalition must be very uncertain.

On the surface the Christian Democrats seem to have the most to gain from this union. Dissidence among Socialists is running high and Mr. Willy Brandt, leader of the Social Democrats, can expect to lose much rank-and-file support along with the possibility that there will be a break-away Socialist party formed. Socialist bitterness is increased by the fact that public opinion polls have tended to show that if an election could have been forced the Social Democrats could have won a clear-cut victory.

Mr. Brandt's motive in agreeing to the alliance rather than trying to govern with the support of the small Free Democratic Party, seems to be more patriotic than political. It has been agreed that one of the first acts of the coalition would be to scrap the proportional representation system of voting in favor of a single member district system where the winner is decided by majority vote. This would tend to polarize German politics on a two-party system and would most likely wipe out both the Free Democrats and the rising National Democratic Party which has overtones of neo-Nazism. The shadow of the Weimar Republic still hangs heavily over Germany and both the major parties seem determined to end the political fractionalism that can lead to governmental chaos.

The Social Democrats' other choice, an alliance with the Free Democrats, appears to have more appeal to the rank-and-file than it does to top party leaders. Mr. Brandt could become chancellor and form a government strong at least in numbers. However, there is little chance that the Free Democrats would support any Socialist measures which the government proposed and the coalition would probably be even less durable than a Social Democrat-Christian Democrat alliance.

Since the Free Democrats have flatly refused to reconsider their decision to withhold support from the Christian Democrats, it may be that Mr. Brandt and his followers can wring sufficient guarantees and concessions from Mr. Kiesinger's party to mollify their Socialist supporters. They may convince them that there it hope of eventually forming a Social Democratic government by co-operating with the Christian Democrats long enough to ease a painful government crisis and get on with urgent administrative tasks.

Delay for Information

SAANICH HAS CHANGED ITS mind about submitting a sewer referendum to its voters next week, for the legitimate reason that some councillors want to know more about what the referendum entails than they know at present. This applies particularly to the division of financial responsibility among the users of the system.

The original question, as it was generally understood, involved house-keeping. It was to be an effort to tidy up loose ends in present sewerage systems and prepare the municipality for a take-off later on the major Greater Victoria regional project. At least that was the concept until some councillors came to the conclusion that they required more information to determine what they were doing.

The shelving of the referendum, certainly at this point, reflects no opposition to the principle of the regional sewer system which Saanich spokesmen enthusiastically endorsed.

In one respect the northern municipality follows the lead of Victoria. Both want information, but not necessarily on the same points. The city is anxious to see how its taxpayers would fare under the regional system — what justification exists for entering a scheme which would cost them twice as much as experts have told them they would need to meet their own Victoria requirements.

Saanich's quest for information is less definite. But if councillors feel they do not know enough about the consequences to lead intelligently, they are well advised to take time to inform themselves.

BEYOND PARTY RUIN

A Time for Tory Soul-Searching

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

ANYONE with an ounce of compassion in him will try to avert his eyes from the Conservative party as it stands now — high tragedy reduced to low farce, a mixture of Gotterdammerung and the Keystone cops. If this shocking spectacle concerned only the ruin of one man, or if it concerned only the transfer of power from an old to a young generation, we might safely ignore it. But it involves the whole future of our political system and, more important, our social system. Therefore we are all involved in it.

Hutchison

Some authorities conclude that the Conservative party is dying of self-inflicted wounds. Mr. T. C. Douglas, for instance, puts on his black mourning clothes and can hardly contain his glee as the public opinion polls show the NDP equal in voting strength to the official opposition. He sees the political system being divided, as he had always hoped, between a Liberal party of the right (as he defines it, rather quaintly) and a left-wing party under his leadership, with no other serious competitors.

Too Simple

This, I suspect, is too easy and simple. National parties are not born and do not die overnight. Before Mr. Diefenbaker's arrival the Conservative party was often sick and sometimes appeared close to death but the invalid marched to office in 1957 and, a year later, won the largest majority on record. The present predictions of its end are uttered by its enemies with more hope than evidence.

It is true, nevertheless, that the Conservative party, which largely devised our Confederation and often governed us well, cannot long survive without drastic change. Again, it is too easy and simple to suppose that the mere change of its leadership will be enough. Assuredly Mr. Diefenbaker, almost single-handed, has split the party and another man might reunite it. But that will not be enough. Nothing less than a complete reconstruction of policy will permanently save the party.

No Policy

Since Mr. Diefenbaker became leader in 1956 the party has had no policy, or at any rate no Conservative policy. It could not have such a policy when he was never a Conservative but a western agrarian radical — a very good thing to be, but not when you are leading a Conservative party.

Thus led by a magnificent campaigner and actor of genius, Conservatism could win two elections, without a policy, against a Liberal party bloated and exhausted by too many years of power. It could not win a third. It could not win because it had no policy or issue recognizable to the public, no ideas sufficiently distinct and valid to justify its re-election.

While campaign hoopla and the actor's art are useful at the polls they can never nourish a party in the long run. It must live on the bread of policy, the solid stuff of great issues. It starves on a diet of cake and candy, even if they are occasionally flavored with solemn touches from the Old Testament or Macdonald's speeches.

Lacked Direction

Once in office, the Conservative party sickened of a vague disease, not because it lacked ability or honor, but because it lacked any clear sense of direction. Mr. Diefenbaker could give it color and the appearance of motion but it was standing still while its competitors moved forward. And in politics immobility is death.

The Conservative party now risks death because it cannot make up its mind on the two issues of policy that dominate the nation in our time. One issue is the nation's economic management in a period of rapid, revolutionary social change and a struggle between the so-called left and right. The other issue is the defence of the nation in the struggle between its English-speaking and French communities.

Mr. Diefenbaker's instincts, far short of policy, inclined him leftwards, since he was a radical not a Conservative, while his party's political base, in Central Canada, inclined rightwards, since it was Conservative, with the result that he held the West and lost the Centre.

As to Quebec, he never understood it at all and never tried to. His electoral triumph in 1958 is seen retrospectively to have been a fatal disaster — it convinced him that he could govern without Quebec. So governing, until Mr. Balcer blew the whistle on him, he was headed for sure destruction even as he seemed to be regnant and indestructible. Such a government was a brief candle, blown out by the first wind of reality — and not, as they like to think, by the abler Liberals.

Liberal Course

The reader may well protest that if the Conservative government lacked policy and direction so did its successor. Superficially this is correct. No government in our history has appeared more chaotic, changeable and anchorless than the Pearson government. Yet beneath the disordered surface it always had a direction, though the direction was usually denied, for reasons of politics and cowardice, and on this direction actual policies were slowly built, often under elaborate disguise.

Old-time Liberals who failed to see what Mackenzie King was doing in the 'thirties likewise failed to see what Mr. Pearson was doing in the 'sixties. Naturally, needing their support, he never told them. With all his confusion of detail, he knew what he was doing, or at least where he wanted to go, all the same. He wanted to ge leftwards (if one may use a rough, convenient label) and there he went, at breakneck speed, in King's path, and with King's methods, to outflank the NDP socialists.

Fundamental Views

Whether this was wise or unwise is a matter of opinion but it was clearly inevitable, given Mr. Pearson's inner ideology and the historic fundamentals of Liberalism as the defender of the common man, the believer in his mass wisdom.

It should have been equally inevitable that a Conservative party would operate not, of course, as the opponent of social progress but as a sensible, necessary brake on a Liberal program that obviously was getting out of hand and dangerously straining the economy, with the common man as the elected victim. Instead, the only brake appeared, oddly enough, inside the government, wearing the name of Mitchell Sharp, while the Conservative opposition tried to outbid Liberalism with larger inflationary promises.

Function Ignored

Any society, however progressive, has a useful function for a conservative party, whatever it may call itself, and at no time was this function more essential than it is in Canada today. Yet at the very moment of need and opportunity the Diefenbaker party falls to pieces, because it has been, since 1956, a Diefenbaker and not a Conservative party.

Merely by getting rid of its venerable chief the party cannot make itself viable. It must face a cruel reckoning in its own mind. It must have a policy distinguishable from liberalism and socialism. The long, painful obsequies of Diefenbakerism must be followed by the birth of a new conservatism or Mr. Douglas may be proved right after all.

St. Andrew's Day November 30

Dear Homeland, misty isle of glen and mountain,
So far away in fact, yet near in view,
I see the wind-swept towns, the cobbled causeways;
I will walk proudly when I think of you.

I see the little rose-encircled cottage,
The plowman and his Clydesdales coming home,
The shepherd and his ewes, the cowbyre and the midden
The crags and hills where I was wont to roam.

Proudly I'll walk on this St. Andrew's morning;
Why should I not? when to my memory comes,
The names of heroes, martyrs,
writers, teachers,
Leaders of men and nations; all thy sons.

Fraser and Douglas, Selkirk and Mackenzie,
Stevenson, Gordon, Burns, Carlyle
and Scott,
Writers and poets, inventors and explorers,
Sons of old Scotia, we have not forgot.

Dear lovely land of memory and of dreaming,
Who fought that you and others should be free,
Who hated tyranny and all oppression,
Proud am I walking as I think of thee.

Looking Back

From The Times of Nov. 30, 1906.

The Monetary Times this week published a list of Canadian clearing houses with a figure for Victoria as of Nov. 23 being $892,339 or an increase of 51 per cent over last year's figure. The Times also says "British Columbia is far ahead of the other clearing houses this week, as Vancouver shows an increase as well of 58 per cent. Ottawa came third with an increase of 34 per cent. From Quebec and Halifax come the only returns recording decreases, which in both cases are small." The paper went on to say that B.C.'s economic outlook was the most favourable in the country.

What Next In China?

By JOSEPH ALSOP
From Washington

IN Communist China, the amazing quite open struggle for power at the summit of the government at last appears to be entering its climatic stage. On present form, the wiser China-watchers believe that aging, ailing Mao Tse-tung and his anointed heir, Marshal Lin Piao, have probably won this round after a long, rough fight. There are also signs of a last convulsive effort by the opposition, which could produce a different outcome. But it is at least beginning to appear that a real decision, one way or another, can hardly be deferred much longer.

Alsop

The essence of the struggle, it must again be emphasized, has been a determined attack by Mao and his personal clique on the whole long-established apparatus of the Communist regime. The trouble began over a year ago, in the usual subterranean way, apparently because of the horrifying discovery that the sacred "Thought of Mao" had become a bit too lunatic for the majority of the party and army leaders to swallow.

Allies Recruited

Mao and the persons in his immediate entourage, notably his wife and his chief secretary, Chen Po-ta, then moved to re-establish the old man's authority. The principal allies they recruited were the defence minister, Marshal Lin Piao, and Lin Piao's political ally, the boss of Canton, Tao Chu. Chou En-lai apparently went along, too.

The first victim of the Maoist counterattack was the army chief of staff, Gen. Lo Jui-ching, who had refused to believe that the "Thought of Mao" was a weapon capable of being substituted for more conventional weapons, such as airplanes and artillery. The second victim, struck down in the spring, was the extremely powerful Peking boss, Peng Chen.

It seemed that the struggle must be over when Peng Chen was abruptly replaced by another key figure in the party apparatus, Le Hsueh-feng. But it was by no means over; and the result was the lurid phase of struggle dominated by the Red Guards, which has so astonished the world.

Old Guard Fate

Repeating this previously told tale has been necessary, in order to make clear the meaning of the signs that have now appeared. These signs concern the fate of the principal top-level targets of the Red Guards' attacks, the surviving old-style leaders of the party apparatus, Liu Shao-chi, Teng Hsiao-ping and Peng Chen's replacement, Li Hsueh-feng, who must have sided with the other party leaders after becoming Peking Party secretary.

A great turning point, it now appears, was reached on the dramatic day in Peking not long ago, when Red Guards besieged, occupied and sacked Li Hsueh-feng's municipal party headquarters, while army troops surrounded the propaganda ministry of the Maoist chieftain, Tao Chu, evidently to protect Tao Chu's ministry from a threatened counterattack by adherents of the old line party leaders. Shortly after this all but incredible episode, a significant announcement was published.

Change of Mayors

In a list of leaders at a function, Wu Teh was mentioned as acting mayor of Peking and first secretary of the Peking Party as well. That conveyed the message that Wu Teh, who has served Mao as a hatchet man in the past, had finally taken over from the bitterly denounced Li Hsueh-feng. Peng Chen's replacement had in fact met the fate of Peng.

This was soon followed by a prominently posted pamphlet, denouncing both Liu Shao-chi and Teng Hsiao-ping with unprecedented virulence for rejecting the sacred "Thought of Mao" and for sympathizing, even intriguing with the vile "Khurshchev revisionists." The combination of this pamphlet, plus the prior loss of the Liu-teng ally in Peking, Li Hsueh-feng, gives the impression that the old line party leaders are close to final defeat, if not actually defeated.

Strange Signs

There have been other very strange signs in the last few days. One group of Red Guards has attacked another for being "royalist" and "bourgeois." A twice-scheduled giant Red Guard demonstration in the Square of Heavenly Peace has been twice deferred. Earlier still, there was a demonstration which was not graced by the presence of Lin Piao; and there was an effort to cover this up, by blending pictures of this demonstration with another, with Lin present, on the television screen. Curious waverings of editorial note have also been noted.

Altogether, the odds favor a final defeat for the old line leaders of the party apparatus; but that is as much as one can say, except that the present fantastic phase clearly seems to be drawing to an end. Having said that much, however, one must ask what on earth the next phase will be like.

For if Mao and his heir and defence minister have taken so many months to overcome the opposition in the present phase, what are they going to do, hereafter, about the army and the party apparatus in the provinces? And if Mao dies, what is to happen then?

'Macbird' a Runaway Best Seller

NEW YORK—A biting, 56-page parody of "Macbeth", which puts Lyndon Johnson in the role of assassin and Robert F. Kennedy as unscrupulous avenger, has become a runaway best seller here.

The tract, entitled "Macbird," is the work of 25-year-old Barbara Garson, a graduate of the University of California at Berkeley and a leader of the Free Speech Movement during the student demonstrations there last year.

Published in pamphlet form by Mrs. Garson and her husband, Marvin, "Macbird's" first printing of 20,000 copies is selling out in bookstores and through mail orders as fast as they can be delivered.

"It is our biggest paperback title right now," said Sy Rubin, president of the Five Bookmasters' stores here.

A second printing of 20,000 is planned in December, with distribution around the country. An off-Broadway production of the play has won $30,000 in backing and is casting now for an opening around the end of the year.

National interest in "Macbird" is expected to quicken with publication of excerpts in the December edition of Ramparts Magazine, and a long review by Dwight MacDonald in the latest issue of the New York Review of Books.

The run on "Macbird," which began as a joke, evolved to an "underground" pamphlet and now seems headed for national notoriety,

By LEROY AARONS
The Washington Post

is based largely on its outrageous proposition that the so-called Kennedy-Johnson rivalry has parallels in Shakespeare's classic tragedy about the lust for power.

Mrs. Garson exploits these possibilities with clever irony, casting Lyndon Johnson in the Macbeth role, John F. Kennedy as the Duncan figure and Robert Kennedy in the MacDuff characterization.

Mrs. Garson has a gift for rapier-like caricature, and she uses it to demolish most of America's political leadership with ridicule. Mr. Johnson is painted as a crude bumpkin, Robert Kennedy as a duplicitous conniver, Ted Kennedy as an idiot. Earl Warren, Wayne Morse, Robert McNamara and the late Adlai Steven also come in for their lumps.

But the play's most explosive passage comes in the first act, where, in keeping with the original plot, Macbird (Johnson-Macbeth) arranges for the assassination of Ken O'Dunc (John Kennedy-Duncan). This implication already has created difficulties for the Garsons.

At least one off-Broadway theatre refused to house the play, largely because of the assassination section.

Mrs. Garson, a petite brunette in glasses and dungarees who now lives in Brooklyn with her husband, is unsurprised, but a little impatient with the attention being paid to this aspect of her play.

MACBIRD
. . . lust for power

It was included, she said, only to keep the parody as faithful as possible to the original. Her basic aim in "Macbird," she added, was to expose the hypocrisy of the nation's political leaders, not to imply involvement of President Johnson in the Kennedy tragedy.

"Most commentators irk me by only taking up the criticism of Johnson," she said, "while they fail to notice that the main villain — Bobby Kennedy — takes up the second half of the play."

Macbird Dies Of Heart Attack

The Robert Kennedy character conspires to destroy Macbird and seize power. After Macbird's death (from a heart attack as Robert is about to plunge in the sword) the Kennedy character makes this closing address to the populace:

A tragic twist of fateful sorrow, friends,
Makes me your president this fearful day.
And though I never sought it, history
Assigned to me her most demanding task . . .
So choked with grief, I pledge my solemn word
To lift aloft the banner of Macbird.

"What I'm doing is reminding radicals that they have to build some kind of independent force, that they can't get improvements by hopping on the Bobby Bandwagon," Mrs. Garson said. "Bobby really has no interest in peace, excecpt as talking about it enhances his political fortunes. On Johnson, it doesn't worry me if people think he killed Kennedy. I really think I've got Johnson right even if he didn't do it."

This kind of tough talk is delivered in casual good-naturedness over a cup of coffee in a three-room flat in a Brooklyn tenement. Barbara Garson is a Brooklyn product.

She became what she is today — a "libertarian socialist" — after spending her honeymoon in Cuba in 1960, where "everything wasn't perfect, but it was quite exciting. We got back and were so overwhelmed by the fantastic distortions in the papers that we started working with groups trying to propagandize for Cuba."

Made a Slip Of the Tongue

It was while haranguing an audience of Berkeleyites in August, 1965, about a projected peace march on Washington that Mrs. Garson made a slip of the tongue, calling Lady Bird Johnson "Lady Macbird."

Afterward, she was struck by the ease with which present-day political realities fit the pattern of the Shakespearean saga. She was especially excited by what she considered to be the similarity of the moral issues: guilt and retribution, lust for power, the disparity between what is said and what is thought.

The Garsons printed 5,000 copies of an "underground" edition, circulated it at Berkeley and sold it out in a matter of a few weeks. Encouraged by the response both at Berkeley and from friends in New York, they tried to find a paperback publisher that would sponsor general distribution, but the publishers either demanded unreasonable options or wouldn't touch it at all.

So the Garsons moved to New York, set up their own firm — Grassy Knoll Press — and put out 5,000 additional copies of "Macbird" in October, contracting with a local distributor to circulate them in New York bookstores. They went like hotcakes. When another printing of 10,000 came out two weeks ago, stores put up signs saying, "Macbird Is Back." These copies, too, are now almost gone.

The play opens at the Democratic National Convention, with Ken O'Dunc and Robert debating about whether to offer the vice-presidency to Macbird.

"But, Jack, you know it isn't merely scruples," protests Robert. "He has a fat, yet hungry look. Such men are dangerous."

The action moves through Macbird's confrontation with the three witches (a beatnik demonstrator, a Black Muslim and an old leftist), the shooting of Ken O'Dunc (while riding in a parade arranged by Macbird and Lady Macbird) and the coronation of his successor.

Plan to Guide By Consensus

Macbird says in his inaugural.
"Our highest goal is peace,"
But in its quest
We shall not fear to use our righteous might.
In short, we seek that pax Americana
That all the freedom-loving world desires.
The unity of all alone contents us,
We plan to guide this planet by consensus.

But Macbird's troubles begin to multiply — a revolution in Viet land, the growing conspiracy of Bobby from his exile in New York and the increasing distractedness of Lady Macbird:

Flower by the roadside . . .
Plant these flowers . . .
Let all the land be lined with living blooms.
Yet all the petals of a summer's roses
Can never sweeten this accursed land.

Macbird, reassured by the witches, is convinced that "no man with beating heart or human blood" can harm him.

ROBERT

But as Robert closes in, he informs Macbird that his father, to "temper us for roles of world authority," replaced his sons' hearts with steel and plastic tubing and their blood with "a tepid antiseptic brine."

And so Macbird, that very man you fear,
Your heartless, bloodless foe now lifts his spear.

But too late. Macbird, crying "Thus cracks a noble heart!" expires.

Barbara Garson is aiming her spear at new targets. Living off a $5,000 grant from the Yale Drama School (a direct consequence of "Macbird"), she is writing a second play based on the Book of Job. In it, Job is a liberal Democrat, God is the Democratic Party and the Devil is the GOP.

What's the Public Interest In the Bank Act Changes?

By DOUGLAS FISHER and HARRY S. CROWE

(Mr. Crowe is associate professor of history at Atkinson College, York University. Mr. Fisher, a former NDP MP, lectures in Canadian government at Carleton University.)

Shouldn't people who claim to be in the progressive or left political tradition automatically oppose anything supported or advocated by bankers? There have been times in the past on this continent when this appeared to be a good rule-of-thumb, particularly in western agrarian communities.

Fisher

But in the complex financial world of 1966 with near-banks as well as banks, with extensive credit operations, with central banking, and with at least the rudiments of a monetary policy, we have a very different situation. The submission by the Canadian Bankers' Association to the House of Commons Committee on Finance, Trade and Economic Affairs in support of most of the features of Bill C-222 (the decennial revision of the Bank Act) seems generally to be in harmony with what appears to be the public interest.

Crowe

In one sense, what has been occurring in financial circles around the world in recent years is largely the banking counterpart of technological changes and changes in international competition in the fields of trade and industry. But in Canada banks have been hindered in making these adjustments because the restrictions of the Bank Act were conceived in an earlier period to meet earlier conditions. As a result, new institutions, near-banks, have taken over more and more of what is essentially banking business in Canada.

These financial institutions which have mushroomed in Canada are not subject to the same rigorous regulation and supervision as banks functioning under the federal Bank Act.

In 1945, banks accounted for about half of the assets of our financial institutions. Today the figure is down to about one-third. During the same period the share of total assets accounted for by mortgage loan companies, trust companies, finance companies, consumer loan companies, institutions like the caisses populaires has jumped from six to 22 per cent. We know of no other example of such a drastic alteration of an economy's banking arrangements.

The main explanation of this phenomenon is that chartered banks (and the Quebec Savings Banks) have been limited to a six per cent interest rate ceiling on their prime loans. Therefore they cannot make loans to many potential borrowers who go to near-banks for loans, often at exceedingly high interest rates.

The Porter Royal Commission on Banking and Finance and also the Economic Council of Canada have recommended the removal of this ceiling. Bill C-222 provides for an immediate relaxation of the ceiling and envisages its removal in the course of time when world-wide interest rates fall back significantly from their present levels.

The Canadian Bankers' Association questions the wisdom of having this transitional arrangement. It fears the short-run may be the long-run as demands for credit may well be sustained for a good long period. More than this one can seriously question the logic of the delayed implementation of a rational change.

The arguments and the recommendations of the Porter Commission were not conditional or transitional. The Commission proposed outright removal of the ceiling.

It was explicit and repetitive on this point:

1. The six per cent ceiling should be eliminated "regardless of other changes in the legislation."

2. The ceiling "impedes the flow of credit to some borrowers and by driving them to higher-cost lenders frequently harms the very people it is designed to help."

3. "The ceiling stands in the way of flexible lending by the banks in that it frequently prevents them from making loans on which higher rates must be charged to cover administrative costs and risks."

4. The ceiling "discriminates against borrowers such as small businesses which, if they are to obtain funds at all, must turn to other lenders which charge rates well above those the banks would ask if free to do so."

5. The ceiling has the effect of "sheltering high-cost lenders from effective competition."

6. Because of the limitation, "the chartered banks are unable to pay as high returns on their liabilities (i.e., deposits) as they otherwise might. Some savers are accordingly penalized, although others are able to obtain higher returns on their funds from unrestricted institutions which are direct competitors of the banks."

7. "The distorting effects of the six per cent ceiling have been most acute in periods of credit restraint . . . At such times (the banks) cannot compete equally for funds and thus have no choice but to resort to arbitrary rationing procedures in their lending."

Aside from the logical position that what is rational should not be introduced piecemeal, the minister of finance appears to be less optimistic than the bankers who see ahead great technological advance, urban redevelopment, economic expansion, demand for more credit, and upward pressure on interest rates.

A New Edge to Old Saw, So 'Veni, Vidi, Vici'

By ART STOTT

Like a kid with a new toy, I take up my shiny "Sword" and prowl our part of the waterfront.

The "Sword" is not Excalibur. It is not a safety razor blade. It is a miniature Swedish bucksaw, with bright red bent tubing providing the frame which makes two sides of an acute angle triangle. The blade is the base and the steel in it gives the piece of equipment its name. My campaign along the shore is a quest for alder driftwood, not too thick, which I can cut into suitable lengths for my fireplaces.

Stott

I am no stranger to a Swede saw. Twenty-odd years ago I bought my first model — a bowed steel frame with a three foot cutting edge. The steel was bright, the tubing a canary yellow and the whole thing so light a child could wield it in one hand.

The purchase was made when Pat was young and vigorous. It seemed to me that if we were going to spend a fair amount of time up in the woods at Shawnigan — and this was before the lady bought herself an oil kitchen range there — she ought to have a wood cutting implement that wouldn't be too heavy for a girl.

Naturally, I didn't tell her this in so many words. My technique was more subtle. I brought the saw out for her to admire, asked her to heft it to see how little it weighed, explained that it cut a very narrow kerf, which made for easy sawing, and called attention to the way the tension in the bowed metal frame kept the saw itself straight and manageable.

She seemed impressed.

With a smile of apparent innocence, which came more naturally to me then than it does now, I suggested she try it.

Patricia is not easily put upon. Her reaction was so violent, her comment about a man who would try to push the woodsawing chores off onto a woman, so scathing, that I tremble even now, thinking of it. From that day to this she has not touched the pretty yellow bucksaw. When she sees it, a look of horrified revulsion sweeps over her face, as it does when she encounters a snake — even a garter snake.

My strategy failed, but the instrument was not a dead loss. It served me very well — and all its obvious virtues were appreciated the more because I knew I would receive no help in wood-cutting. My efforts to spare the lady undue strain at least removed some of my own labor from sawing.

Over the years I have sung the praises of Swede saws to very indifferent audiences. Among my acquaintances is a gentleman who writes an excellent column on wood-sawing. Early in the game I tried to interest him in this particular type. He spurned the whole idea and spoke loftily of the merits of his trusty six-foot crosscut with which a friend in the judicial business was kept in trim sawing downed trees on Shawnigan property for my writing friend's comfort and warmth.

But the judicial gentleman, it appears, gave the matter mature thought, came to the conclusion that the cords of wood he had cut on visits to Shawnigan had more than justified the principles of his earlier Boy Scout training and he arrived at a judgment. His judgment, as I understand it, was that he had wielded one end of the six-foot crosscut long enough. The decision was unfortunate. It followed a winter of heavy blow-down at Shawnigan and my writing friend faced the chore of cutting up the broken trees and their massive limbs.

But my writing friend enjoyed one great benefit from the tragedy of fallen trees. He announced with high elation a great discovery. He had acquired a Swedish bucksaw and it was a wonderful implement, I ought to get one, he said.

I told him I had heard of them.

The shiny yellow original is not so bright now. It still serves its purpose at Shawnigan and currently holds the third replacement blade — a tribute to its use, and occasional misuse.

On the Foul Bay waterfront I wield the new, dapper little "Sword." It is lighter even than the earlier model, though I haven't mentioned this to Pat. And because of its triangular shape, it insists on smaller-diameter wood for me to cut, which eliminates heavy packing. The arrangement is admirable.

A small boy, catching me at my labors on the beach, asked what I was doing. "Venio," I told him, straightening my back, "Vidi. I come and I saw." He looked startled, said "S'long" and left before I could suggest that perhaps, in my own fashion, I also conquered since I was accomplishing my purpose, even though I had not prevailed upon Pat or upon my writer-wood-cutter friend.

Separate Canadian Values, But Internationalism, Too

By LESTER B. PEARSON

(Partial text of an address delivered by the prime minister to the International Conference on Canada and the Atlantic Economic Community, sponsored by the Private Planning Association, at the Seigniory Club, Montebello, Quebec, two weeks ago.)

During the last 20 years, there has been a gradual but encouraging movement toward trade in the world.

The evidence of the beneficial results of this trend are readily apparent and should encourage us to increase its pace.

Since 1953 world trade has more than doubled. The growth in Europe and in Japan has been especially rapid.

On the other hand, the trade of the developing countries, both among themselves and with the industrial countries such as Canada, has shown less improvement.

Canada's commercial transactions with the Atlantic Community, and particularly with the United States and Britain, have generally kept pace with the varying rates of growth in these countries.

Across the Pacific, we are finding new and very active trading partners. Indeed, Japan is our third-largest market and a major supplier to Canada. The recent growth in trade around the "Pacific Rim" holds out great prospects for Canada and especially the western provinces. . . .

It is, and must remian, Canadian policy to enlarge the expansion that has taken place and work for the removal of barriers against that expansion.

In the post-war period the main trading nations made common cause in their efforts to reduce these barriers against expansion.

Indeed, it might be said that in some respects the development of regional arrangements in Europe, through the European Economic Community and the European Free Trade Association, gave the most immediate impetus to this expansion drive. This is all to the good as long as regional arrangements fit into wider international progress.

For such a progress on a broader front, we look mainly to the Kennedy Round to give everyone a chance to share in the economic benefits of closer European or Atlantic integration.

While I would not care to predict the outcome of the Kennedy Round at this stage, there are some reasons to be optimistic.

I hope we succeed, because success in Geneva is important if we are to avoid international economic fragmentation.

Whatever happens, Canada will continue to be faced with the question of whether to continue our efforts to get trade barriers down generally; whether we should look for regional arrangements; or try to find some other solution.

I add at once that "some other solution" should not include for Canada retreat into economic isolationism, either on a national or continental basis.

The strength of the Canadian economy has been realized and will continue to be realized through international trade co-operation on the broadest possible basis with countries throughout the world.

What we really want, is a luxury flat in the same North American duplex, but one which will look like, and give us a feeling of living in a lovely vine-covered, rose-bushed separate cottage all our own. The attempt to have both at the same time may result in a kind of national schizophrenia. I understand that shock treatment for schizophrenia is highly recommended by certain psychiatrists.

To return to less fanciful language, far worse things could happen to Canada than a customs union with the U.S.A. But it would be difficult, if not impossible, in our continental circumstances of today, with so much U.S. ownership of our resources and our industries, to have such a union without a close assimilation of foreign, defence and fiscal policies.

Add to this the other influences — cultural, non-cultural and anti-cultural — already pressing hard on us from the south. My grandson knows all about a new governor of California named Ronald Reagan, but has never heard of a Liberal leader in Nova Scotia named Gerald Regan. Add all these forces together, and a continental free trade area could easily and speedily lead to a continental no-Canada area.

I am an unrepentant and insistent internationalist. Any other positions seems to me a rejection of reality as absurd as relying on the bayonet for defence. But I am old-fashioned and optimistic enough to believe that we can meet these new requirements of interdependence and internationalism, while retaining separate Canadian values, loyalties and identity. "O Canada, our home and native land," still has a deep meaning. So does "God Save The Queen."

I believe there is still a distinctively Canadian contribution to be made to the world and that there will always be a place in international councils for a Canadian voice of reason.

This is one reason why I prefer Atlantic economic arrangements to North American. But I would not support either if they could not be reconciled with global necessities, especially those of the new and developing countries whose expectations are not only rising, but are becoming insistent. And they must be met if we are not to have world chaos before many decades have passed.

Judy to Cry 'All Aboard' Special Train

Prime Minister Pearson will not be in Victoria in January to start the Confederation train on its way across Canada.

The Greater Victoria Centennial Society announced Tuesday that State Secretary Judy LaMarsh will replace the prime minister at the official opening ceremony Jan. 9.

It also was announced the press corps scheduled to travel with the train had been cut from 150 to 75.

The Centennial Society will pick up the tab for a special breakfast for the news-gatherers.

COOL REPLY

Earlier this month the society asked the municipalites of Greater Victoria to pay the breakfast bill, but the bid received a cool answer.

Even with the breakfast paid for by the society the presence of the train will cost the district some $9,000 during its seven-day stand here.

The special train co-ordinating committee was informed the $9,000 would be spent in preparing the area surrounding the train tracks on Tyee Road north of Point Ellice Bridge, providing special but temporary toilet facilities, building platforms for VIPs and in the general decoration of the area.

Victoria's share of the cost, if approved by council, will be about $3,000.

SHARE PLAN

Other municipalites will be invited to share the bill.

In recent weeks the various municipalities have shown a reluctance to part with any more money for centennial celebration purposes.

To date five municipalities—Oak Bay, Saanich, Central Saanich, Esquimalt and Victoria have contributed over $114,000 for the two-year spree marking the 100th anniversary of confederation.

Esquimalt and Oak Bay have already announced they will not contribute further.

During the train's one-week stay here it is estimated that 6,500 junior high school students will take time off from their studies to make the one-hour trip through the 16-coach, half-mile-long train.

400 HOURLY

Ken Bloomfield, research consultant for the Greater Victoria School District, said it would be impossible for all youngsters in the area to view the train.

The youngsters will be moved through the train at a 400-an-hour rate between 9:30 and 11:30 a.m. and 1:30 and 3 p.m., he said.

The general public will be asked to visit the train outside those hours.

Scratch Players

Premier Bennett Tuesday took his turn at political back scratching by endorsing Vancouver Mayor William Rathie for re-election next month.

Mayor Rathie sent the premier a wire last week endorsing Attorney-General Robert Bonner — whom he had unsuccessfully opposed in 1963 as a Liberal candidate — for the Cariboo byelection.

"As premier of this province, I do not participate in municipal elections," the premier said when asked if he backed Mr. Rathie in the Dec. 14 civic elections.

"But I do recoginze in the case of Vancouver there are a number of very important matters before the city and I think the experience of Mayor Rathie and his connections with these matters would lead to their successful conclusion."

The Cariboo Loberal constituency association Monday sent a wire to Ald. Tom Campbell endorsing his bid to unseat Mr. Rathie for the mayoralty.

Ford Plant Seized

CAIRO (Reuters) — Egyptian authorities seized Monday the Ford Motor Co.'s assembly plant in Alexandria because of unpaid customs duty, the official Middle East news agency reported. The agency said Ford had not paid customs duty amounting to $1,120,000. The company said it knew nothing of the action.

FOR ARMED FORCES

Centre Ceases to Exist

The Armed Services Centre at 1305 Broad Street has ceased to exist.

It is closing down because the number of naval men in the area has decreased and ships have been laid up. Most of the centre's customers came from the navy.

Since its opening in 1955, the centre was open 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

"The number of men using the centre dropped from 200 to less than 50 a day," said Lt.-Cmdr. A. B. Southon, club manager.

The pay phones were taken out Tuesday and all that was left were the empty booths. Chairs assembled theatre fashion in the main room stared at a blank wall. The television set had gone.

"We're going to miss this place," one of the servicemen told attendant Tom Newsome. "We used to enjoy coming here to watch TV, especially on Sundays."

The centre held regular dances and socials and arranged for servicemen to visit Victoria homes.

Boy Committed To Brannen Lake For Vandalism

A boy convicted of breaking into two city schools Monday, causing damage to both was committed to Brannen Lake School for Boys on Tuesday.

The boy, 14, appeared before Magistrate Harold Alder after being apprehended by the city's juvenile squad.

Entry to both Central Junior High School and George Jay Elementary was gained through a broken ground-floor window.

Small amounts in coin were stolen from each building, and both offices, and in the case of George Jay, classrooms were ransacked.

Property worth over $70 was taken from George Jay.

Disaster Exercise At Hospital Friday

St Joseph's Hospital will call in extra medical personnel Friday night for a full-scale disaster drill.

The drill will begin at 8:15 (after visiting hours) and emergency procedures will immediately go into effect.

City police will take over traffic direction in the area, parking will be foridden in hospital grounds and all traffic will be one-way around the hospital.

MARINE TRAGEDY

The drill will simulate conditions to be expected if, for instance, a marine tragedy occurred and 50 victims suddenly arrived at the hospital.

The hospital disaster plan calls for establishment of an information centre in the hospital lobby and a treatment centre for walking injured in the nurses' dining room. A temporary morgue will also be set up on the first floor.

The drill involves operating rooms, emergency, physiotherapy (as a fracture treatment area), and almost all other departments.

In an actual disaster non-casualty patients would be removed to their homes or to St. Ann's Academy. In event of a nuclear attack evacuation would be to a 200-bed field hospital which would be set up at Sooke.

CITY FLIER TAKES PART IN RESCUE

A Victoria naval officer recently took part in a life-saving helicopter adventure off the coast of Northern Ireland.

Sub. Lieut. G. C. Gordon, a helicopter pilot aboard the supply vessel HMCS Provider, was called to help when a crewman aboard a Royal Navy submarine was injured.

Sub. Lieut. Gordon and a companion were hampered by high winds and rough seas, but they lifted the injured man from the sub and flew him to hospital at Ballykelly. Provider is one of five ships now on RCN exercises in the North Atlantic.

Fawcett Named NDP's Victoria Riding President

Phillip Fawcett was elected president of the New Democratic Party's Victoria constituency association at an annual meeting this week in the Union Centre.

TOURISM was the topic as Dr. D. B. Turner, British Columbia deputy minister of recreation and conservation, and federal Trade Minister Winters and W. S. K. Jones, Nova Scotia's minister of trade and industry, left to right, chatted in Ottawa Monday at opening session of federal-provincial conference on the tourist industry. Meetings will try to determine how Canada can sustain the increase in tourist business expected during the Centennial year. (CP Wirephoto.)

TRADE MINISTER WINTERS ON EXPO

Canadian Business Rapped

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian business was rapped on the knuckles Tuesday night by Trade Minister Winters, who said it is generally not taking the part it should in Expo 67.

Mr. Winters called for greater business sponsorship of Expo projects and said, "This is an area in which Canadian companies have not responded."

He told delegates to the federal - provincial conference on tourism and travel that a Toronto - based farm implements company will bring 500 of its principal dealers in France to the world fair in Montreal.

"There are still opportunities for other Canadian companies—in fact a number of very prominent ones — to participate in Expo by providing sponsorship of Expo projects and benefit from the facilities it offers."

The minister said later in an interview that more Canadian companies should participate in the world fair next year and take the "opportunity to display Canada and identify their names with the best."

DOESN'T KNOW WHY

His department had initiated discussions with business about Expo. "I don't know why there hasn't been a greater response."

Mr. Winters conceded there will be no opportunity at Expo for firms to display their products, but said this shouldn't prevent their participation.

Mr. Winters read during his speech a statement by Revenue Minister Benson that Canada intends to abolish, beginning next March 1, the requirement that non-residents entering the country be issued vehicle permits.

This would "greatly speed up the entry procedures of tourists visiting Canada."

At an earlier session Tuesday Mr. Winters told delegates that Centennial Year will raise the "whole of Canada to a new level, a new plateau."

I. C. Pollack, president of the Canadian Tourist Association, called on the government to set up a $1,000,000 fund to determine a blueprint for tourist requirements during the next 10 years.

If such an assessment was not made, there would be a "vast national letdown" after the boom in tourist business expected next year.

Overtime Ban Under Fire By Construction Leaders

By AB KENT
Business Editor

The overtime cutback proposed by Premier Bennett will kill exploration and development projects in remote British Columbia, a contractor predicted Tuesday.

Marwell Construction vice-president George Wilkinson, here to attend the Amalgamated Construction Association convention, said the overtime injunction would affect mining, pipeline construction, the oil industry and general construction projects.

"I don't know of any industry where there are so many armchair generals. Everybody knows how to run our business better than we do, Mr. Bennett included," he told a convention discussion on hours of work and overtime.

The premier has urged a cutback on all overtime as part of provincial government guidelines to reduce inflationary pressures.

UNECONOMIC

Mr. Wilkinson said in remote areas where construction camps are necessary the costs of running camps, paying fringe benefits and extra amounts for transporting employees in and out makes adding to the number of workmen uneconomic.

"Nuts," he said after listing some high cost items.

Putting a 40-hour week into effect in camps would mean the construction industry is "a gone goose as far as camp work in British Columbia is concerned."

He said it is obviously cheaper to pay overtime under these circumstances.

A panel discussion and comments from the convention floor indicated considerable uncertainty about the application of the premier's overtime ban.

But it was clear that ACA members have their own opinions about it.

Panelist Robert Saunders, representing general contractors, told the meeting members could expect prosecutions for overtime violations soon.

After Dec. 31 overtime work permits will be "scarce as hen's teeth," he said, a point made clear in an interview with Labor Minister Leslie Peterson.

Mr. Saunders said penalties run from $25 to $125 per employee per day.

NOT NECESSARY

John Patterson, representing the heavy construction firm of Peter Kiewit Construction Co. of Canada Ltd., said his firm would continue to work the hours "we think are the most economic, and I don't think any other regulation is necessary."

One delegate said that "overtime" as referred to by the minister means anything over 44 hours per week, so that any overtime up to 44 hours would no fall within the ban.

Another said application of the ban depends on B.C. Hydro projects on the Peace and Columbia rivers.

Vast quantities of overtime are worked by tradesmen employed on these projects, much of it on weekends.

The delegate said if the river projects continue to pay overtime the government cannot legitimately ask other contractors to stop overtime work.

B.C. Labor Legislation Supported

B.C. labor legislation was described Tuesday by a construction contractor as "the best possible legislation brought down in some time."

He was P. G. Daum, one of a panel taking part in the first annual convention at Empress Hotel of B.C. Amalgamated Construction Association.

He said the court injunction as used in labor-management disputes was "the best possible weapon available to us today."

Mr. Daum explained that any strike of employees during the span of a collective agreement is an illegal strike and therefore picketing would be illegal.

If both employers and unions abide by their collective agreements, there should be no such thing as an illegal strike, Mr. Daum said.

D. J. Manning, another panelist, said the first few days of a labor-management dispute offers ample time for a union to carry on acts outlawed by the Labor Relations Act.

It is therefore necessary to act quickly to forestall trouble by means of the ex parte injunction, he said.

George Wilkinson, vice-president of Marwell Construction, said to speak of stopping illegal acts is fine, "but a lot of unions are not prone to do that."

He suggested that if the Labor Relations Act provided for some arm of the government to bring suit against an offending party, that would end the matter of illegal work stoppages.

PUBLIC APATHY

No civilized state can do without the injunction, especially British Columbia, he said.

But he warned of public apathy toward the issue.

"If we are not careful we are going to lose this one by default, too," he said.

P. J. Shier, ACA counsel, told the convention there is a "great misconception about court injunctions. A court cannot order a man to go to work. If he doesn't want to go to work he doesn't have to."

He predicted there will be "a great deal of pressure at the legislative level to outlaw injunctions," and he enjoined membership to keep close watch on developments.

Mr. Shier also suggested employers should have counsel in ample time if trouble is brewing.

"Don't wait until there is a picket line in front of your place before you go to a lawyer," he said.

Builders Require Information Service

A national information service for the construction industry — perhaps using a system of coding and computers — was suggested here Monday.

Warnett Kennedy, director of the Vancouver Architectural Centre, said Canada has a chance to pioneer the coming revolution in construction information.

He was addressing the B.C. Amalgamated Construction Association which is meeting at the Empress Hotel.

Mr. Kennedy said an avalanche of building information available to the industry today must be directed toward some central agency for quick reference and dissemination to those who must use it.

Information today is in chaos, the speaker said.

What's everybody in B.C. saying about this popular whisky?

Cheers. And you'll cheer too once you've tried Walker's Special Old. You'll like the mellow smoothness and the look of luxury. No wonder it's one of Canada's favourites.

'Banking Needs Competition'

PROBER TELLS COMMITTEE

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government is not going far enough to encourage competition within the financial system, a member of the recent Porter royal commission said Tuesday.

The government has recognized that the ceiling on bank loans is wrong, but won't act now to remove it, Douglas Gibson told the Commons finance committee.

Bank Act amendments will force banks to sell off substantial holdings in other corporations, but no good reasons have been given for this move, he said.

Instead of moving boldly to bring near-banks under its authority, the government is setting up deposit-insurance as a kind of persuasion to make their financial records open to inspection.

He doubted this scheme would work. The least responsible of the near-banks would recoil at the prospect of supervision.

Mr. Gibson was one of seven commissioners whose report in 1964 led to many of the Bank Act changes now proposed by the government and being considered by the committee.

He has been a consultant and lecturer at York University since his resignation a year ago as executive vice-president of the Bank of Nova Scotia.

Appearing before the committee at his own request, Mr. Gibson said the Porter report should have been followed in its recommendation of a definition of banking.

This could have been wide enough to encompass the non-bank institutions who accept deposits — the near-banks such as trust companies, and mortgage and loan companies.

Federal law then would apply to these intitutions and the government could do a better job of promoting competition — the aim of its current Bank Act reforms. The government has instead chosen to offer deposit insurance to the provincially-incorporated near-banks if the provinces and the companies themselves agree to supervision.

Ottawa should have moved into this grey area between the jurisdiction of the two governments. The near-banks, now expanding rapidly, could ultimately become so powerful they would threaten the monetary control of the Bank of Canada.

This view is not held by Louis Rasminsky, governor of the central bank. In an earlier appearance before the committee, Mr. Rasminsky said that in the 10-year period when the amended Bank Act will be in force, he is confident chartered banks will retain their predominant share of Canadian dollar deposits.

Investors Told Money To Be Paid

VANCOUVER (CP) — The holders of $4,600,000 worth of investment certificates in the troubled Sterling Pacific Mortgage Company were told Tuesday they eventually will get all their money back despite current problems.

The assurance came from the trustee for the almost 500 certificate holders, lawyer G. Arnold Armstrong, at a special meeting in the Queen Elizabeth Playhouse.

Mr. Armstrong, himself a director and secretary of the various firms involved in Sterling Pacific's trouble, says the company will begin paying off its certificate holders, on a prorate basis, as Sterling Pacific straightens out its affairs.

RECEIVERSHIP

The mortgage company's troubles came to light this month when nine Slumber Lodge motels in B.C. were put into receivership. Sterling Pacific had loaned Paragon Development Corporation $3,900,000 to build the lodges and had taken mortgages on them. Paragon defaulted on October mortgage payments of some $31,000.

Sterling Pacific was heavily involved with the success of the Slumber Lodges and Paragon Development as its other investments in mortgages amount to only $504,000. The firm has $213,000 in cash and $160,000 in its reserve account.

Mr. Armstrong said profits from the motels and their possible sale should permit the certificate holders to be paid off in full.

STEELERS START EARLY ON NEXT GRID SESSION

Victoria Steelers aren't wasting any time in getting ready for the 1967 Pacific Football League season.

The Steelers today announced that Joe Flood, 28, a sturdy, efficient lineman from Seattle, has been named team public relations director.

Flood will also act as an assistant coach next season. He may also play, but this hinges on his recovery from a knee injury sustained in the Steelers' second last home game.

Flood has moved to Victoria from Seattle and plans to establish residence here.

BREWER ALMOST FREE?

Hockey Loops Fail to Settle Top Problems

By KEN PRITCHARD

NEW YORK (CP)—Representatives of the National, Western and American Hockey Leagues took a look Tuesday at some of the sport's major problems and decided to settle them another day.

"We have reviewed every facet of the relationship of the leagues," said Clarence Campbell, NHL president. "There is no firm agreement on anything."

But there was one almost-agreement—on Carl Brewer. Campbell, who acted as spokesman for the three professional circuits after their one-day closed meeting, said Brewer may be cleared by the end of this week to play with Canada's national hockey team, now preparing in Winnipeg for world competition.

Campbell said the WHL had endorsed the provisions of a bylaw on amateur reinstatement written by the NHL but that the AHL had asked for one amendment. The NHL representatives present had been agreeable but all the NHL governors would have to be polled on the modification.

"If Brewer is agreeable to be reinstated under the conditions which we propose, we should be able to do it by the end of the week," said Campbell.

These conditions have never been revealed, but they are assumed to protect the future rights of any team which loses the services of an ablie-bodied player because he wants to return to amateur ranks.

Brewer, now 28, quit the Toronto Maple Leafs camp in 1965 after having been a star defenceman. This year he applied for reinstatement as an amateur so he could play for Canada internationally.

"We have had to write a bylaw to cover a case like Brewer," said Campbell, who revealed previous NHL bylaws were only adequate for reinstatement of players in the twilight of their careers or who could not make the grade as pros.

Seals Reach Financial Agreement

On other matters, especially indemnification for territorial rights involved in the NHL expansion to 12 teams next year and a player draft, the leagues failed to reach agreement.

The AHL delegation was headed by Jack Butterfield, league president from West Springfield, Mass., and the WHL delegation by president Al Leader of Seattle. They flanked Campbell as he told the press about the indemnification impasse.

The current six-team NHL expands into Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, St. Louis, Los Angeles, San Francisco and Minneapolis next fall. In three of those cities AHL or WHL teams already exist—Pittsburgh, Los Angeles and San Francisco.

In San Francisco, the NHL's new California Seals have reached a financial agreement with the WHL team they replace and the NHL and WHL also have reached agreement.

In Pittsburgh, the yet-unnamed NHL team has settled with the AHL team but the two leagues have not yet agreed on AHL indemnification.

In Los Angeles there is litigation, with the owners of the WHL franchise, Jim Piggott and Dan Reeves, seeking by court action to bar Jack Kent Cooke from exercising his new NHL franchise. Piggott and Reeves were unsuccessful applicants for the provisional NHL franchise awarded Cooke. Agreement also is lacking on indemnification of the WHL for territorial invasion.

Expansion Has Created Contention

The doubling of the NHL's size in one year has created "an enormous field of contention, especially on the drafting of players," said Campbell.

"As of now," he said, "there is no pro draft of any kind."

"The possibility of a pro draft being restored will be reviewed. It is linked closely with the availablity of players and the extent of priorities for the universal amateur draft."

He said there eventually may be a draft of players by the NHL from the WHL and AHL, but only of those players belonging to major-league clubs. Independently-owned players would not be drafted.

Nor was there agreement on the drafting of amateur hockey players. The three leagues reviewed the arrangement negotiated by the NHL and the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, which also acted for the Amateur Hockey Association of the U.S. Under it, pro sponsorship of amateur clubs will end. Players who turn 20, over the junior age limit, will be liable to a professional draft.

"The WHL and AHL may still decide not to come into the NHL agreement with the CAHA," said Campbell. "But regardless of that, the NHL agreement remains firm with the CAHA and the AHA."

Campbell revealed that the NHL had agreed to pay the CAHA or AHA $3,000 a man for the first 72 amateur players drafted each year. This was envisaged as providing six players for each of the 12 NHL clubs after expansion.

Campbell said the proposed hockey draft would be unique in that after a few priority rounds by the NHL, the AHL and WHL would draft players and then alternate with the NHL.

Clay Should Learn Verdict This Week

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — Kentucky Selective Service Appeals Board was expected to make a final ruling this week on heavyweight champion Cassius Clay's request to be reclassified as a conscientious objector.

The appeals board earlier this year rejected this claim and Clay's file was sent to the Justice department for an investigation.

After an investigation that lasted about six months, the department sent the Clay file back to Louisville over the weekend.

CHANGE OF HEART

It also contained a justice department recommendation about whether Clay should be reclassified but this is not binding on the appeals board. The recommendation was not disclosed.

Once the appeals board rules, Clay's local draft board will set a date for a hearing on the champion's request to change the status of his appeal from conscientious objector to minister.

While the justice department was conducting its investigation, Clay had a change of heart and asked for a deferment on the grounds that he is a Black Muslim minister.

No action could be taken on either appeal, however, until the justice department returned the file to Louisville.

The appeals board will probably reject Clay's conscientious objector request — paving the way for the Muslim minister appeal.

The Louisville Lip twice failed the army's mental examinations and was therefore classified 1Y. But the defence department about a year ago lowered its standards and Clay was reclassified 1A.

FRANK MARIO . . . predicts win

Frank Predicts Leafs Will Have Extra Gift

Totems at Arena Tonight For 'Hebenton Night' Game

Frank Mario, who seldom indulges in tree climbing, today was balancing confidently in the branches.

"I'm going out on a limb," said the coach of Victoria Maple Leafs. "We are going to win tonight."

"They (the Leafs) all like Andy and I know they are not going to let Seattle spoil his night. Breaking our losing streak is going to be an extra gift."

Playoff champions of the Western Hockey League last season, the Leafs have run into rugged opposition in this campaign and will go into tonight's "Andy Hebenton Night" game at Memorial Arena against Seattle Totems with a five-game losing streak and owning only one tie in their last five games on home ice.

"I knew we would have things tough after winning the championship," Mario added. "The other teams were bound to save their best for us, but I never thought we would go this long without winning.

"Things are going to change tonight."

If the Leafs manage to shed the slump shackles tonight it will be one more gift for Hebenton, who is being honored for his great endurance feat of playing 1,000 consecutive professional hockey games.

Gifts for the popular Hebenton were still being received today and all will be presented to Hebenton during a special ceremony between the second and third periods of tonight's game.

Highlighting the festivities will be the presentation to the popular winger of a parchment scroll bearing names of persons who have contributed to the "Andy Hebenton Fund." The fund had grown to more than $1,100 Tuesday and contributions from other sources have increased it considerably.

JONES SCORES THREE

Meanwhile, two players who have been individual standouts in the one-two standing of Portland Buckaroos and Vancouver Canucks continued to guide the leaders Tuesday.

Centre Art Jones, who started to sizzle shortly after being benched in a game at Victoria on Oct. 19, maintained his torrid scoring pace by counting three goals as the Bucks pelted last-place San Diego Gulls 4-2.

And veteran speedster Gordie Vejprava was the man-of-the-hour in Vancouver as the Canucks tripped Seattle 1-0.

LEADS BY 10 POINTS

Certainly, there's no holding back either Jones or "Vejjie."

Jones scored once while his team held a man advantage, once while the Bucks were shorthanded, and once while the teams were all even. The three ran his season's goals total to 19 in 22 games.

With 21 assists, Jones now has an even 40 points — 10 more than Vejprava.

Diminutive Arnie Schmautz scored Portland's other goal while Fred Hilts and Del Topoll replied for Gulls before a turnout of 5,106 fans in San Diego. In five home games, the Gulls have attracted a total of 51,749 fans.

INTERCEPTED PASS

Vejprava scored his 13th goal of the year only moments after Canuck teammate Ken Block stepped out of the penalty box. Block intercepted a Seattle pass, then set up Vejprava for a clear run at Seattle goalie Jim Armstrong.

In 62 games last year, Vejprava scored only 13 goals and 15 assists for 28 points. After the first 19 games this term, he has 13 goals and 17 assists and is, along with centre Bryan Hextall, a big reason the Canucks have surged to second place in the league standings.

Goaltender Don Simmons turned in an outstanding game for Vancouver, turning aside 31 shots as Seattle held a slight edge in play throughout.

Milan Marcetta, who leads Victoria scorers with 18 points, will be working on a line with Hebenton and Bob Barlow tonight. Top man on the Totem point parade is Larry Lund, who has 10 goals and 11 assists for 21 points.

Dodgers Acquire Hunt So Wills Up For Grabs

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Los Angeles Dodgers, having acquired second-baseman Ron Hunt, and New York Yankees having given up third-baseman Clete Boyer, looked forward today to molding new infields with shortstop Maury Wills possibly leaving one and joining the other.

The National League champion Dodgers made the first major trade of the annual baseball meetings Tuesday, sending two-time batting champion Tommy Davis and infielder-outfielder Derrell Griffith to New York Mets for Hunt and infielder-outfielder Jim Hickman.

Less than eight hours later, the Yankees and Atlanta Braves completed the first inter-league trade of the meetings and sent Boyer, an eight-year Yankee veteran, to the Braves.

In return the Yankees received outfielder Bill Robinson, who played for Richmond Braves of the International League last season. The Yankees also got Chi Chi Olivo for their International League farm club at Syracuse and will send a player to Richmond later.

CAN MOVE LEFEBVRE

The acquisition of Hunt will enable the Dodgers to move Jim Lefebvre from second to third. John Kennedy, whose weak hitting has prevented him from fulfilling the team's wishes for a third baseman, now is free to move to short if the Dodgers complete a trade for Wills.

Wills, in turn, could fill part of the gaping hole in the left side of the Yankees infield, teaming with rookie Bobby Murcer as shortstop-third base combination.

After announcing Boyer's departure, Yankee manager Ralph Houk mentioned Mike Ferraro, Ruben Amaro and Roy White as possible candidates for the vacancy at third base.

The main problem the Yankees have in seeking Wills is meeting the Dodgers' desire for a shortstop.

GOLF CLUB PRESIDENTS

FIGHT SIX YEARS AGO

Martin Ordered to Pay, Demands Day in Court

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Peppery Billy Martin learned Tuesday that a Chicago jury had decided he should pay pitcher Jim Brewer $100,000 for his part in a baseball diamond fight six years ago, and said:

"They've got to give me my day in court."

Martin contended he was not notified that the civil damage suit was going to trial, and that he was not represented by counsel in the Chicago court.

Brewer was pitching for Chicago Cubs on Aug. 4, 1960, in a National League game in Chicago when he and Martin, then a second baseman for Cincinnati Reds after stardom with New York Yankees in the 1950s, tangled on the field.

ASKED $260,000

Brewer and the Cubs brought a $260,000 damage suit, alleging that Martin broke Brewer's cheekbone and nearly cost him the sight in his right eye. Brewer, now with Los Angeles Dodgers, did not lose his sight, however.

The Cubs withdrew from the suit Monday when the trial began, saying any money awarded by the jury should go to Brewer.

MORE SPORT PAGES 13, 14

Martin, now a coach for Minnesota Twins after retiring as a player following the 1961 season, claims he's got pictures which dispute Brewer's and the Cubs' contentions.

"It was proved in pictures that I didn't hit the man in the eye where he claimed he was hit," Martin said. "I hit him in the jaw. Another player, a team-mate of mine, hit him in the eye and this player gave a deposition to a lawyer to that effect.

Martin, who insisted he didn't know a thing about the two-day trial in Chicago until told by The Associated Press, claims the Cincinnati baseball club was supposed to handle his defence but dropped it last summer.

All's Ready For Ski Club Except Snow

Equipment, quarters and executive all are geared up for a new season, and the only thing the Sno-Birds Ski Club needs now is snow.

The club's Green Mountain lodge is tidied up, a new drying room is near completion, and the snow-mobile has been overhauled for the new season.

Also overhauled, to some extent, is the executive. New officers are: John Thompson president; John Smith vice-president; Jack Gilmore, secretary; Bud Peetz, treasurer; Briand Findlay, Ron Steele, Ian Holder, Marion Olson and Susan LaBerge, committee.

Victoria zone officers are Gerry Warren, Shirley Schoberg, John Dennis, Susan Leahy, Cliff Whitfield, Alyce Cockin and Leoise Johnson.

A general meeting of the Victoria zone will be held next Wednesday.

Moilanen Helps Vics Forget Early Fright

A charged-up University School team threw a big but much-too-early scare at the Victoria High Totems Tuesday night.

Because the jolt came early, Totems had plenty of time to recover and go on to post a 51-34 decision over University School in an Inter-High Boys' Basketball League exhibition.

Hustling all the way, University School bounced away to an 18-16 lead at halftime.

Ollie Moilanen came on to spark Totems' comeback. In addition to playing an outstanding game on the backboards, Moilanen also contributed 15 points in the second half. He scored only two in the first half.

Dexter Mason added nine points for Totems and Donaldson paced U.S. with 14.

University School (34)—Rosenberry 8, Donaldson 14, Leppman, J. Watkins 2, M. Watkins 6, Bunkley, Wild 2, Code, Gomez, Strand, Garragues 2.

Victoria High (51)—Mason 9, Halfhide 4, Schroeder 4, Rouche, Moilanen 17, Teller 6, Moen 4, Lee 2, Clark 5.

Comers Help Hawks to Fly

By The Canadian Press

Chicago Black Hawks appeared headed for a little trouble before the season started, but they've come up with a few surprises that are helping to keep them on top of the National Hockey League.

The Hawks started the season without veterans Bill (Red) Hay, Elmer Vasko and netminder Glenn Hall, who decided to retire. But they won their first four games.

Since then, Hall has come out of retirement to help strengthen the talent-loaded Hawks, getting solid performances from a few players who are raising eyebrows around the league.

The comers are Dennis Hull, younger brother of high-scoring Bobby Hull, Wally Boyer, picked up from Toronto Maple Leafs, and defenceman Ed Van Impe, a 26-year-old rookie.

Stan Mikita, Ken Wharram and Eric Nesterenko are helping to keep the Hawks in first place.

MEET RANGERS

Chicago will be out to increase its lead tonight when New York Rangers are the visitors. Montreal Canadiens will be in Toronto in a game to be televised nationally by the CTV network (channel 8, in Victoria), starting 5:30.

Dennis Hull, who has played in the shadow of his record-breaking brother since he came into the league in 1964-65, is outdoing Bobby this season.

In 16 games, he has eight goals and 10 assists and ranks third in the individual scoring race. His NHL scoring output prior to this season was 11 goals and nine assists in 80 games.

Bobby has nine goals and four assists in 15 games.

Boyer spent eight years in the minors before coming up to the Leafs last year. In 46 games with Toronto he had four goals and 17 assists.

The Hawks picked him up during the league's annual meeting in Montreal and in 14 games this year he has four goals and three assists.

GETS NHL CHANCE

Van Impe finally got a chance at the big league this season after spending his entire pro career in the minors, including the last five seasons with Buffalo Bisons of the American Hockey League. In 16 games this year, he has four goals and three assists.

Mikita is the league's top goal scorer and top point getter with 11 goals and 17 assists for 28 points.

Four New York players rank among the league's top 10 point getters.

Phil Goyette is the league's top playmaker with 18 assists in 18 games and Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion, 35, a former Montreal star who came out of retirement this season, has picked up one goal and 11 assists in his last eight games, making him the most consistent point-getter during the Ranger winning streak.

LINDGREN, JEROME, GRELLE . . . IN SATURDAY RELAY RACE

In Right Places, You Can See How Champs Run

"See how they run . . ."

Remember the line from the nursery rhyme?

It fits, in a measure, the 180 runners who will trespass hill and dale Saturday in the B.C. Centennial Relay road race.

If you are at the right places at the right time, you'll see the best run.

Among the cavorters will be Harry Jerome, one of the world's fastest sprinters; and, Gerry Lindgren and Jim Grelle, two crack U.S. milers.

Nine teams, two of them from Vancouver Island, will compete in the 68-mile jaunt. The number does not include entries from Oregon State, Washington State and Oregon. They are expected but not confirmed.

Each runner will cover a minimum of 2.3 miles and a maximum of 5.6 miles. Presumably Jerome will handle the shorter routes on the flat sections with Grelle and Lindgren (who is formidable over distances) tackling the more arduous sections.

The race begins at 10 a.m. from the Simpsons-Sears lot in Nanaimo. First runners are expected at the finish line, north gate at HMCS Naden, about 4:30 p.m.

Island entries will come from Royal Roads and a team known as the "Islanders." Coach Ollie Sarakannas will select 20 men from the following:

Ed Shook, Al DeMelt, Ken Hirst, Brian Zelly, Les Amos and Alf Kristiannsen of Nanaimo; Frank Reynolds, Ralph Olson, Barry Greenhaugh and Dan Kinney of Duncan; and, Norm Patenaude, John Van Schaik, Larry Corbett, Hans Rufeger, Steve Hume, Charlie and David Thorne, Jim Easton, Steve Sullivan, Greg Beaveridge, Peter Busch, Dan Cousins, Allan Wise and Chris Garrett-Petts of Victoria.

All runners will be guests of the B.C. Centennial Committee at an awards dinner in the Empress Hotel Saturday at 7 p.m.

BOWLER OF WEEK

Leading lady in fivepin division during eighth week of Times Bowler-of-the-Week competition is Saanich housewife Mary Ball, who earned weekly award with 306-289-249 — 844 series in Classic League at Gibson's Recreations. Mrs. Ball, who won award in 17th week of last season's competition with 888 triple, is now eligible for Bowler-of-the-Year rolloff in May.

West Choices Dominate All-Canada Selections

OTTAWA (CP) — Hugh Campbell of Saskatchewan Roughriders was the only player named on every ballot for all-Canadian honors, the Football Reporters of Canada announced today.

Terry Kielty, FRC president, said the poll, conducted among sports writers and broadcasters throughout the nine Canadian Football League cities, showed the West placed 10 men on the offensive squad to three for the East; on defence, the count was eight from the East and five from the West.

There was a tie in each category.

Both Russ Jackson of Ottawa, as quarterback, and Wayne Harris of Calgary at middle linebacker, the two players of the year in earlier voting, made the list of all-Canadians.

Saskatchewan led the offensive squad with six places, followed by Edmonton and Winnipeg with two each and one each from Ottawa, Hamilton and Toronto.

On defence, Ottawa took four positions, Hamilton three, Calgary and Winnipeg two each and Toronto and Edmonton one each.

Montreal Alouettes and British Columbia Lions failed to place a player on either team.

OFFENSIVE TEAM

Quarterback—Russ Jackson, Ottawa.
Fullback—George Reed, Saskatchewan.
Halfbacks—Dave Raimey, Winnipeg; Jim Thomas, Edmonton.
Flanker—Hugh Campbell, Saskatchewan.
Centre—Ted Urness, Saskatchewan.
Guards—Al Benecick, Saskatchewan; Chuck Walton, Hamilton.
Tackles—Bill Frank, Toronto; Frank Rigney, Winnipeg and Clyde Brock, Saskatchewan, tie.
Ends—Tommy Joe Coffey, Edmonton; Jim Worden, Saskatchewan.

DEFENSIVE TEAM

Tackles—John Barrow, Hamilton; Don Luzzi, Calgary.
Ends—Billy Ray Locklin, Hamilton; E. A. Sims, Edmonton.
Middle Linebacker—Wayne Harris, Calgary.
Corner Linebackers—Phil Minnick, Calgary; Jim Conroy, Ottawa and Ken Lehmann, Ottawa, tie.
Backs—Gene Gaines, Ottawa; Garney Henley, Hamilton; Marv Luster, Toronto; Ed Ulmer, Winnipeg; Joe Poirier, Ottawa.

On the offensive team, Reed, Campbell, Urness, Benecick, Rigney and Coffey were repeaters from the 1965 list.

Henley, Gaines, Harris, Lehmann, Barrow and Locklin made it again from last year's defensive crew.

Jackson polled 31 votes at quarterback to eight for Ron Lancaster of Saskatchewan, who piloted the Prairie Roughriders to a 29-14 victory over the Ottawa club in Saturday's Grey Cup game in Vancouver.

Last year's all-Canadian quarterback, Kenny Ploen of Winnipeg, pulled four votes.

Reed's election was a runaway — 41 votes to one each for Dave Thelen of Toronto and Don Lisbon of Monteal. Lisbon, however, picked up 13 votes at halfback, eight fewer than he needed to nose out Thomas.

Campbell got 40 votes as flanker and picked up three others as an end.

Moe Racine of Ottawa, leading scorer in the East this year, was a single vote away from making it a three-way tie with Rigney and Brock at tackle.

Terry Evanshen of Calgary just missed at end, polling 12 votes to Jim Worden's 13 and Coffey's 23.

Who Needs Interns? Healthy Students Ask

Things may be somewhat more than difficult than first anticipated for University of Victoria broomball players Friday night at Esquimalt Sports Centre.

The Uvic men were expecting an easy victory after accepting a challenge for a broomball game from student nurses at Royal Jubilee Hospital. Today the collegians are less confident. They have learned that the nurses will be assisted in the broom operation by hospital interns.

Brooms will be flashing between the first and second periods of a hockey game between Uvic Vikings and University of B.C. Hockey time is 8 p.m.

GIANTS GET PEANUTS

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Harry (Peanuts) Lowery has been named to the coaching staff of San Francisco Giants.

Lo$ing Rifles To Try Again

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Rifles of the Continental Football League probably will remain in Toronto for the 1967 season but the decision rests with the club's executive, president Alan Eagleson said Monday night.

Asked whether the club will remain in Toronto despite increased losses, Eagleson said: "Yes, without any question."

"It is still subject to a meeting of the full executive, but everybody I have talked to is in favor of returning. The board of directors has already approved it."

The Rifles, who lost the Eastern Division crown Sunday by dropping a 31-14 decision to Philadelphia Bulldogs, had losses amounting to $185,000 last season, and Eagleson said the figure will slightly exceed $200,000 this year.

Cunningham Rejects San Francisco Bid

GLASGOW, Scotland (AP) — Willie Cunningham, general manager of the Dunfermline Athletic soccer team, says he has turned down an offer of $25,200 a year from San Francisco, a member of the National Professional League of America.

Oriole Fans to Pay Championship Price

BALTIMORE (AP) — The world champion Baltimore Orioles, facing a record payroll for 1967, said Tuesday they would raise the price on box seats at Memorial Stadium and change the pice structure on reserved seats for the 1967 baseball season.

The Orioles will open the season at home against the Minnesota Twins Tuesday, April 11.

Executive vice-president Frank Cashen informed season ticket holders the 1966 prices were the lowest in the major leagues.

"Conversely," he said, "our 1966 player pay roll was the highest in Oriole history, and in all candidness, we expect the 1967 one to be even higher."

For a starter, outfielder Frank Robinson, the American League's most valuable player, has indicated he may seek $100,000 next season compared with an estimated $68,000 for 1966.

RECORDS IN 1966

Sandown Asks Usual 17 Days

The customary, 17-day season will prevail at Sandown Park during the next thoroughbred racing season.

The B.C. Jockey Club has requested 110 days of racing next year, including the 17 days on Vancouver Island. Approval, by the provincial government, is expected to be merely a formality.

The Sandown season would start Sept. 16 and end Oct. 14.

Racing at Vancouver's Exhibition Park, 93 days in all, will start April 14 and end Sept. 14.

RECORDS SET

Figures released by the Jockey Club Tuesday showed 1966 was a record year for racing in B.C. despite a slight decrease at Sandown.

Wagering for 93 days at Exhibition Park totalled $23,429,215 — up from the $20,804,115 wagered in 1965. A one-day high was recorded on Labor Day when 24,962 fans wagered $548,102 at Vancouver.

Total purse distribution was $1,599,560.

BUCKPASSER SELECTED BEST OF YEAR

NEW YORK (AP) — Buckpasser, only three-year-old to win more than $1,000,000, officially has been acclaimed Monday as the American champion Thoroughbred of the year.

The son of Tom Fool-Busanda, winner of 12 straight races after running second to a stablemate in his 1966 debut, was the unamious choice of the 34 racing secretaries comprising the Thoroughbred Racing Associations' Board of Selection.

Buckpasser was the 1965 two-year-old titleholder with overall earnings of $1,218,874. The colt earned $650,778 this year although a hoof injury caused him to miss the Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Belmont Stakes.

Home Garden

CHANGES CREATE CLIMATES

By HILDA BEASTALL

The very nature of growth determines that the character of a garden changes as soon as permanent features are added to the property.

Hilda

A piece of ground by itself will be open to the sun and winds but as soon as a house is built, some shade is cast on the soil at certain times of the day and winds are blocked in their progress.

Then on the sunny, open piece of ground we begin to plant a tree or two and some shrubs.

LITTLE CLIMATES

Within three years we have little climates near the house and around each tree and shrub.

The character of the garden is slowly changing.

This development is what we call making a garden and is one of the reasons why gardeners must be versatile.

While we may begin with all the plants which thrive in full sunshine and have outstanding success with them, our plans will need to be modified after a few years.

The only scheme which will enable us to keep on growing the sun-lovers exclusively, is to limit our gardening to annuals and herbaceous perennials.

The annuals live only from spring to fall and must be replaced in the following spring, and the herbaceous perennials die down to ground level in late fall and grow again from the same roots in the spring for several years.

By using these two classes of plants only, no increase of shade or permanent wind shelter is built up with time.

Most of us like to plant permanent features, with the hope of creating something in the way of a satisfying garden picture, and this is why we are able to go on from year to year adding new plants as the character of the garden changes.

Extend Lines Up Peninsula Reeve Urges

Central Saanich Reeve Gordon Lee today called on the Greater Victoria Water Board to start immediately extending its system to the northern half of the peninsula.

Expressing concern at the growing water shortage during the summer months, the reeve predicted Central Saanich, North Saanich and Sidney will suffer from an acute shortage of water by 1970 unless something is done to bring water to the area.

He suggested the water board extend its pipeline to Elk Lake as the first stage in a program to bring water to north Saanich.

Cost of the project would be about $1,250,000.

MORE FROM LAKE

The extra flow of water would permit Central Saanich to draw more heavily from Elk lake. It now takes out 1,000,000 gallons a day and is seeking permission from the provincial government to increase this by 200,000 gallons.

Reeve Lee supported Esquimalt Reeve Ray Bryant's suggestion that the Greater Victoria Water District be run on a regional basis.

The water system is owned by the city.

Reeve J. B. Cumming of North Saanich also favors this.

"But whether or not this proposal is acceptable to civic officials," said Reeve Lee, "some plan should be worked out without delay to extend the water district's pipe lines to the north."

"Every summer the problem gets worse and worse," he said.

At present, he pointed out, the north end of the peninsula with a population of 12,000 people is entirely dependent on Elk Lake and various wells.

The population is expanding rapidly and the demand for water is increasing at an alarming rate, he said.

Is Genocide the Only Solution?

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dr. Hugh Keenleyside said Monday that genocide is the only possible outcome unless a solution is found to the world's increasing population problems.

"Unless doctors or scientists can come up with some revolutionary form of birth control, or unless some unforseen catastrophe takes place, genocide will be the only solution left to us for keeping down the world's population," he said in an interview.

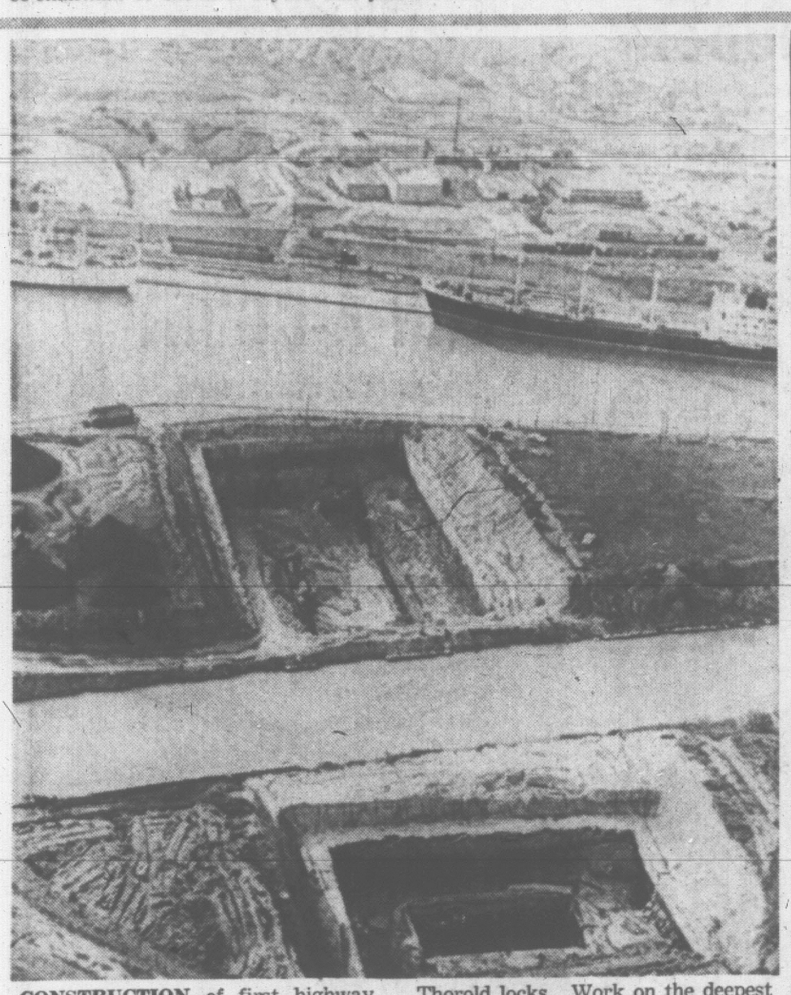
Dr. Keenleyside, former director-general of the United Nation's technical assitsance program and co-chairman of the B.C. Hydro had just returned here from New Delhi, where he addressed a world conference on medical education.

Dr. Keenleyside said if present population rates of expansion continues that by the year 2100 the situation would be intolerable.

Present methods of birth control, he said, are not satisfactory—"The pill, for instance, is far too fallible, particularly among the poorer, backward nations where it is most needed.

"A woman only has to forget to take one pill, and this can mean she has rendered quite useless all the others she has taken."

He said doctors are working on a pill that would be taken once a year.



CONSTRUCTION of first highway tunnel under the Welland Canal is ahead of schedule at Thorold, Ont. Twin shafts of concrete and steel will carry traffic under the busy waterway and end long tieups at the Thorold locks. Work on the deepest part of the $14,200,000 tunnel, under the canal itself, will be carried out during next two winters when shipping stops and auxiliary channels are drained dry. (CP Photo.)

Extra Aid For India, Pakistan

OTTAWA (CP) — An extra $22,500,000 in famine aid to India and Pakistan was announced Tuesday in the Commons by Prime Minister Pearson.

The money will be spent for shipments of wheat and flour in the next few months, Mr. Pearson said.

It supplements Canada's existing aid this year of 30,000,000 bushels of wheat for India. Mr. Pearson also confirmed a pledge of $75,000,000 in food aid for the 1967-68 fiscal year.

A cabinet committee had been studying the problems of increasing food shipments to India and reported to the prime minister Monday that up to $21,000,000 worth of wheat and flour could be moved before the end of the fiscal year.

Mr. Pearson told the House the new aid formula would also enable Canada to meet a request from Pakistan for assistance. He did not say what sum would be involved.

Fertilizer Purchase

PEKING (AFP) — An agreement providing for purchase by China of 3,000,000 tons of chemical fertilizer was reached here recently between the Chinese government and the Geneva-based firm Nitex, an informed source disclosed Monday. Peking will pay cash—$22,000,000. The agreement amounts to China's biggest fertilizer order to date.

NEW REPORT ANALYZES DEATH RATES

Still More Bad News for Smokers

WASHINGTON (AP)—A new report backing the U.S. government's contention that cigarette smoking imperils health, this time from the standpoint of increased death rates, was issued Tuesday by the U.S. public health service.

The report attacks the subject from a somewhat different angle than the surgeon-general's report of 1964. That report blasted cigarette smoking as the major cause of lung cancer and said it was either a direct cause of or closely associated with a number of other death-dealing ills.

The new report includes an analysis of death rates compiled from the records of every state health office in the country for the period 1950-64, and deals specifically with "mortality" from diseases associated with smoking."

Among the major findings of the report, prepared by the health service's national centre for health statistics:

1. Rises in death rates from lung cancer and emphysema—the latter already rated by the health service as the "fastest growing crippler disease in the United States"—were "of unprecedented proportions for non-commercial diseases" during the period studied.

2. Mortality from chronic bronchitis nearly doubled during the period. Chronic bronchitis is one of the diseases the surgeon-general's report said are caused by cigarette smoking.

3. There were "substantial increases" during 1950-1964 in mortality from three of the eight groups of diseases which the surgeon-general's report had said were "associated with but not clearly casually related to smoking."

These three were:

—Arteriosclerotic heart disease," including coronary disease, especially in the male population."

—Cirrhosis of the liver—"with the most-marked increase for the non-white population."

—Emphysema — "Especially for the white male population."

Regarding emphysema — a disease marked by progressive and so far irreversible destruction of lung tissue—the report said:

"For emphysema, a disease associated with atmospheric pollution as well as with cigarette smoking, the death rate for the male population for 1964 was about 10 times the corresponding rate for 1950. This precipitous rise in mortality from emphysema resulted in the mortality from this cause becoming higher among men at ages 35-64 years than mortality from ulcer of the stomach, and higher at ages 65-74 years than mortality from eitheg ulcer of the stomach or cirrhosis of the liver."

"COME RIDE with me," says the Mad Hatter to Alice as she is helped by the March Hare into the wackiest teapot train ever seen. Janet Runn, lovely skating star, portrays Alice in the Ice Capades' version of "Alice in Wonderland" at the Memorial Arena, December 14 to 17.

20-YEAR CONTRACEPTIVE STUDIED

Woman Would Take a Pill To Have a Baby in Future

WASHINGTON (WP) — Researchers are working on experiments that could lead to a long-lasting contraceptive — possibly up to 20 years — with the option for a couple to take a "birth" pill when they want to have a child.

The birth-control "time capsule," which would be implanted or injected under the skin, still is in the future for regular human use.

But experiments with rat implants already have been done, and one researcher says his private guess is that test implants on human beings could be made within five years.

The new long-term contraceptive would be a tiny capsule placed under the skin on any part of a woman's body. It would slowly and continuously diffuse measured amounts of progestin, one of the female sex hormones, into the blood. This could provide contraceptive protection for months and years.

When a woman wished to have a child, the contraceptive capsule would be removed. Or — in the science-fiction future — the woman would take a "birth" pill to have a child rather than a "birth-control" pill not to have a child.

"This is speculation. But it is reasonable speculation," says Dr. Christopher Tietze.

The idea is to put the progestin in a plastic "time capsule" and implant or inject this into the body. This has been done with rats implanted with grain-size capsules. The progestin diffuses through the plastic in measured, constant doses.

The capsule implant has not been tried on human beings. The hope, Dr. Tietze says, is to miniaturize the much larger pellet needed for a human being and inject it under the skin of the woman with a surgical needle.

Artist Wins Appeal On Narcotics Count

CALGARY (CP) — Vancouver artist Donald W. Braun was released Tuesday from a two-year sentence when court of appeal agreed that no proof of possession had been introduced at his trial.

Mr. Braun originally was sentenced on a charge of possession of narcotics after his arrest in Banff last summer.

A police officer reported that he saw a man "throw a white object" away and a later search produced a marijuana cigarette. The appeal court ruled that the cigarette could have been thrown away by someone else.

TEAM DRIVES CAR

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—Police report the arrest of two young auto thieves so tiny one squatted on the floor to work the gas and brake while the other, perched atop a wash pan on the driver's seat, did the steering. Police said Tuesday the youngsters, 9 and 13, admitted using this technique to take 10 stolen automobiles on joyrides.

MAGISTRATE HOPES TO DETER OTHERS

Marijuana Essay 'Punishment'

VANCOUVER (CP)—A 20-year-old student was ordered Tuesday to write a 5,000-word essay describing his experiences with marijuana—or go to prison.

Magistrate Les Bewley made the essay a condition of a two-year suspended sentence he gave Donald Richard McKinnon, 20, who pleaded guilty to trafficking in marijuana.

The magistrate said he was imposing the unusual condition in the hope it would deter other young persons from experimenting with marijuana.

He said the essay, to be completed within 10 days if possible, would be made available to any publication the court deemed necessary.

TRIAL ORDERED IN BIG HAUL

VANCOUVER (CP) — Jeffrey Martin, 19, of Seattle was committed for trial Monday on charges of possession of marijuana for the purpose of trafficking.

Martin and Dennis Ray Hadley, 19, of Auburn, Wash., are charged with possession of 55 ounces of the drug seized by police from a parked car in Vancouver's West End. Hadley was earlier committed for trial on Oct. 27.

A preliminary hearing last month heard the marijuana is worth $3,000 on the illicit market. RCMP constable George Ripley told the hearing the marijuana was the biggest amount ever seized in Vancouver.

AS PLANES GET BIGGER

Air Crash Deaths to Jump

MONTREAL (CP) — Robert Belton, flight safety officer of British Overseas Airways Corp., said Tuesday the number of people killed in aircraft accidents will likely increase as planes get bigger and air traffic becomes heavier.

Mr. Belton told the International Air Transport Association's conference on public relations that the number of aircraft accidents, however, is likely to remain constant at about 25 to 35 a year.

He said passenger fatalities on scheduled flights are likely to increase to about 1,000 a year by 1970 and to about 1,860 a year by 1980.

There was a constant effort to improve safety standards. Although the fatality rate for 100,000,000 passenger miles improved from 40 in 1920 to 0.9 in 1966, the number of accidents had remained about the same while the size of planes involved more than doubled.

Pro-Camp MPs Ousted From National Executive

OTTAWA — The pro-Diefenbaker forces within the Conservative federal caucus were successful today in moving to weaken president Dalton Camp's hold on the party's national executive.

Led by the overwhelming majority of John Diefenbaker supporters within the caucus, six MPs on the national executive, who had been labelled as anti-Diefenbaker in the recent convention, were removed from the executive.

They are S. J. Enns from Manitoba, Mrs. Jean Wadds and Gordon Aiken from Ontario, Tom Bell from New Brunswick, Heward Grafftey from Quebec and Heath MacQuarrie from Prince Edward Island.

Caucus chairman Waldo Monteith said the selection of Members of Parliament to sit on the national executive was arrived at by democratic action within the caucus. He said the election of only one of the 22 appointed by the caucus was contested. One man had resigned before the election took place.

The man who resigned was Tom Bell. As he emerged from the caucus he said, "I resigned. I wasn't kicked out."

One member of the national executive from the caucus who was re-elected and who is not a staunch Diefenbaker supporter was Gordon Fairweather from New Brunswick. Mr. Monteith said Mr. Fairweather's re-election was not contested.

71 Drown on Launch

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI)—Seventy-one passengers drowned when an Iranian motor launch capsized and sank in the Gulf of Oman, the evening newspaper Kayhan reported today. It said the passengers included one Iranian and 70 Arabs. The captain and the crew managed to swim to a nearby island, the newspaper said.

50 Soldiers Off to Foothills

Fifty members of the 1st Battalion, Queen's Own Rifles of Canada, will engage in battle manoeuvres in the foothills of Alberta next week.

They will join the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery of Winnipeg, the Fort Garry Horse and the 2nd Battalion, Queen's Own Rifles, in an exercise in the Bragg Creek area, 30 miles southwest of Calgary.

Improvements $8,000

Saanich council will be asked at its next meeting to approve a $32,750 winter works program of improvements in seven parks.

The municipality's share of the total costs of the federal program are $19,500.

Biggest single item in the program is $8,000 for Gorge Park, being acquired from the city.

Flying Santa Claus On Lighthouse Run

A flying Santa Claus will drop in on children at Vancouver Island lighthouse stations next month.

Instead of his traditional sleigh, Santa will arrive aboard a department of transport helicopter based on the icebreaker Camsell.

The Camsell leaves Dec. 7 on a routine supply trip to the remote coastal stations.

Officers and crew of the vessel decided to give the youngsters a treat by dressing up second steward George Thomas in the traditional beard and red outfit.

If the children get too inquisitive, the ship's crew can always say they picked up Santa while on Arctic duty this summer.

Memorial To Blanshard

A memorial to Sir Richard Blanshard, first governor of the crown colony of Vancouver Island, will be unveiled at the Church of Our Lord, Blanshard and Humboldt, Sunday at 2:30 p.m.

It consists of a centennial seat made of stone and concrete and a bronze plaque, and will be unveiled by L. J. Wallace, chairman of the B.C. Centennial Committee.

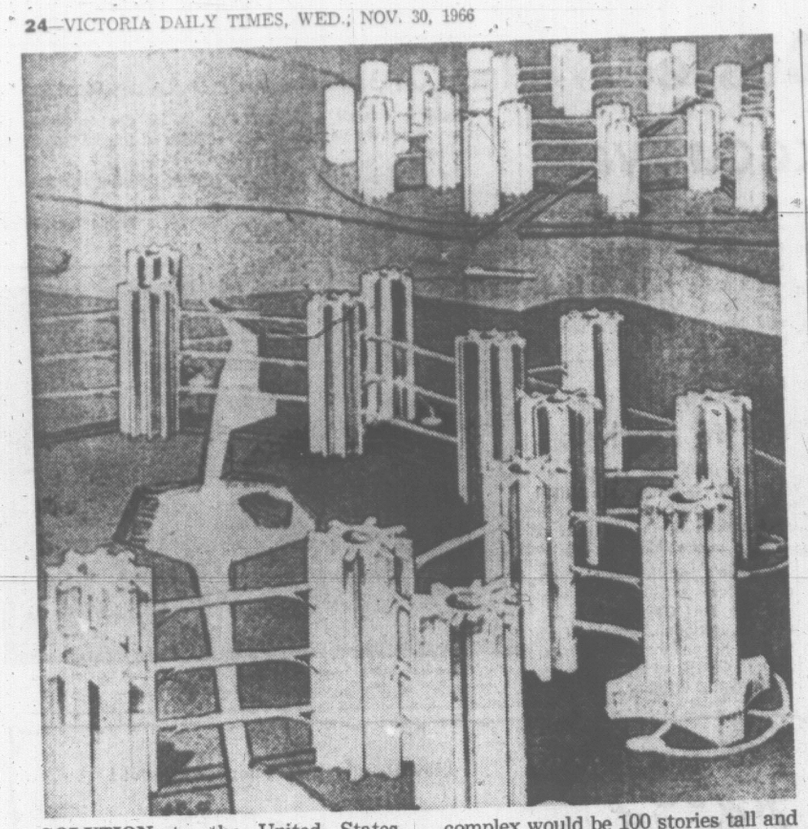
CIVIC PARKING ← P TICKETS VALIDATED



SOLUTION to the United States crowded city condition is to start from scratch and build whole new cities such as these suggested by two aerospace scientists. Each apartment building in the one-mile-diameter complex would be 100 stories tall and the city would house 250,000. The centre would be a recreational area, with no autos allowed. The idea was presented at a meeting of scientists in Boston. (AP Wirephoto.)

Super City To Eliminate Present 'Sickening' Areas

BOSTON (AP) — Two space scientists said today the aerospace industry should be enlisted to solve "the burgeoning problems" of "sickening" U.S. cities and presented their own idea of the "super city" of the future.

In their ideal city, all residents would live in 100-storey apartment buildings built in a circle around a vast recreational centre. There would be no automobile travel except for leaving the city, and each building would be filled with luxuries such as health and beauty resorts.

The concept was outlined in a paper presented here at the annual conference of the American Institute of Aeronautics and Astronautics.

The authors, Vernal M. Tyler and Carl F. Asiala Jr. of the McDonnell Aircraft Corp., St. Louis, reported their future city idea "has met with a most gratifying acceptance. And, of course, there have been detractors . . . All are unanimous in the feeling that something will have to be done."

Why should the aerospace industry be called upon to solve the problems?

"Aerospace," their paper said, "has the largest private reservoir of scientific talent in the world. Its engineers have come up with workable solutions for almost every problem presented —no matter how difficult."

Prospect Lake Still Unsafe For Drinking

Water in Prospect Lake cannot be reclassified as safe from human consumption "due to the inhabited area," Saanich health and welfare committee was told Tuesday night.

This was stated in the first part of an environmental report by the Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health and requested earlier this year by Saanich.

Residents of the area have been warned in the past to boil all domestic water to make it fit for use.

The report said bacterial counts of lake water are caused by a variety of factors including animal pollution, gulls, ducks, geese, recreational use "and possibly some pollution during faulty performance of various existing systems."

It said private sewage disposal systems have not too much bearing on lake water quality.

SAFE FOR SWIMMING

"Bacterial counts, although higher than permitted for drinking water, are still very much within limits considered safe for swimming purposes," said the report.

Eighty-six premises were checked around the lake.

Seventy have water carried by waste disposal, 15 have pit privies and one doesn't have any toilet facilities.

Three lots have trailers and there is no evidence of any type of toilet facility.

The committee decided to:

- Ask for the removal of the trailers;
- Have Metro Health complete the second part of its study with tests during the winter-rainy season;
- Draft a notice to be sent to all residents advising them that permits are needed before changes are made to drainage systems.

Victoria Daily Times

VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, NOV. 30, 1966--PAGE 25

Arthur Mayse

The elk in its natural state is a lordly creature, but when it lies gut-shot and feebly kicking by a roadside, it makes an ugly sight. When the elk has been left to die by a sadistic vandal who shot just for the hell of it, the picture becomes uglier still. And when the slaughter takes place in a provincial park game reserve, the language I would apply to it does not belong in this family journal.

The shooting I refer to is but one of a number which, according to information received from official and private sources, have taken place within the Strathcona Park limits in recent months.

The total of elk assertedly killed or crippled may run as high as seven.

To it, you may add an undetermined number of blacktail deer, and one trumpeter swan.

All, my informants assert, fell victim to guns fetched in by the public roads that now traverse the park. One of these is a link in the Gold River route. The other skirts Buttle Lake to Western Mines' Myra Creek beach-head.

Reports turned in to the RCMP at Gold River by B.C. Forest Service men include these specific claims:

That a bull elk was on one occasion found shot not far from the road. No attempt had been made to remove it; the beast was apparently gunned down and left to rot.

That another bull was discovered lying with antlers hacked off, where a poacher's bullets had felled it.

That a crippled cow elk was put out of her misery by a trucker who happened upon her, and was buried under loose earth by a highway department bulldozer operator.

These qualify as known kills. Other sources insist that the tally runs much higher.

According to Inspector Robert Sinclair of the Fish and Wildlife Branch, only one man has so far been caught popping off within what was once a wilderness park and is still a game sanctuary.

This fellow, who gave a West Vancouver address, paid a $150 fine for dropping a deer.

But there are others—and will continue to be until or unless this rotten business can be made so costly by fine and prison term that the risk outweighs the "sport".

The fact that the guns have invaded Strathcona—a probability I warned against in this column months ago—does not reflect on our efficient but grimly under-staffed Fish and Wildlife Branch.

This month and last, its eight Vancouver Island wardens brought 55 Game Act and Firearms Act violators to court for a total of $4,695 in fines.

But eight game wardens are fantastically few for an area of close to 12,500 square miles. These are good men; they cannot, however, be everywhere at once.

The immediate blame for the situation lies with a group whom I will not dignify with the honest title of hunter. No fish or game club can reach these trigger-happy outlaws.

But the roads gave them entry, and despite all government persuasions, I cannot agree that these have any place in Strathcona.

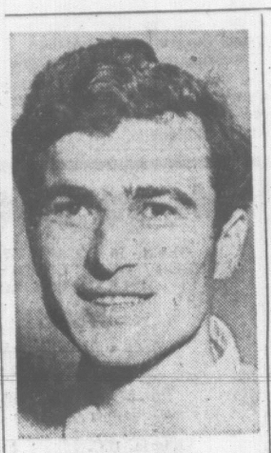
We had a park there of wild magnificence unmatched in North America.

Untouched, it was an asset that could only have multiplied in value with the years. There is scarce a state in the American union which, today, would not prize and rigidly guard such a tract.

That it should have been esteemed so lightly, and that its violation should have been permitted on grounds so shaky, is no credit to this present government.

But we've been over all that before. It remains now for those who created the condition to minimize its evil effects as best they can.

One of those effects I have outlined for you here. It should be dealt with, fast and effectively . . . and I hope such action will be forthcoming.



VINKO KUCINA
. . . ordered out

SLAVS FIGHT OUSTER

Victoria's Yugoslavian community today launched a campaign to prevent the deportation of one of their countrymen.

And they're getting a strong assist from Victoria MP David Groos and city lawyer Douglas A. M. Patterson.

The man ordered deported is Vinko Kucina, 26, a laborer who has worked here four months since jumping ship in Quebec to escape his Communist-controlled country.

His story was told The Times by his cousin, Milko Jadresko, 120 Dallas, a landscape gardener who came to Canada as an immigrant 10 years ago. Mr. Jadresko has been in Victoria since 1963.

THREE ESCAPE BIDS

He said he grew up with Vinko Kucina in a small village in Yugoslavia. He said Mr. Jucina has three times attempted to escape the first time when he was under 16. On his second attempt he was jailed for 40 days.

Mr. Jadresko says if Mr. Kucina is returned now he will be in serious trouble, he will lose his passport, his job on a ship and will be called a deserter and looked down upon.

SMUGGLED WIFE

Mr. Jadresko came to Canada by jumping a ship in Italy after smuggling his wife there in a clothes cupboard. In Italy, where the first of their four children was born seven days later, he was able to arrange legal immigration to Canada.

"We know what he did was illegal. But he did not know," said Mr. Jadresko.

But since then Italy has refused to accept Yugoslavian refugees. For Vinko Kucina there was no avenue of escape except to do what he did — jump ship in Canada. Then he reported to immigration officials in Vancouver.

He has put up $1,000 bond for his cousin and guaranteed he will report weekly to immigration authorities.

Last week Ottawa ruled that Mr. Kucina must be deported. But Mr. Jadresko has obtained a promise from Mr. Groos that he will help.

PETITION SIGNED

Mr. Groos phoned Mr. Jadresko twice Tuesday and left instructions for him to phone back if any attempt is made to take Mr. Kucina into custody. Mr. Groos said he is hopeful Mr. Kucina will be allowed to stay.

Meantime 44 Yugoslavian friends here have signed a petition asking Mr. Kucina be permitted to remain. They swear he would make a first class citizen as Mr. Jadresko has done.

Mr. Kucina has a wife and child in Yugoslavia and if he is permitted to remain he would then be able to apply to bring them out, Mr. Jadresko says.

'May Day' Search Under Way

Department of Transport officials reported receiving a distress signal from a ship early today which indicated it was taking water in the forward hold 150 miles west of the Queen Charlotte Islands.

The U.S. Coast Guard in Juneau, Alaska, is co-ordinating the search for the vessel, whose name was not distinguishable over the radio.

An RCAF Neptune, an anti-submarine patrol aircraft from Comox, reported no sign of the ship after searching the area for an hour and a half today. A U.S. Coast Guard craft and two merchant vessels were en route to join the search.

Careless Drivers Pay Fines of $35

Fined $35 each today in traffic court on careless driving charges were Craig Matthews, 1505 Bay, and Verna Hughes, 1229 Juno.

Fire Hits Boat

U.S. Ship's Bow Damage Heavy

The bow of the $200,000 United States torpedo recovery boat Telic Belle was extensively damaged by fire today at Nanaimo.

Firemen had to cut holes in the 80-foot Seattle vessel to get at the fire, which broke out while the boat was berthed.

Flames did not reach the vessel's forward fuel tanks.

Crewman Jim Krueger said the fire appeared to start under a generator.

WIRING BURNED

Skipper A. G. Rodal said the main damage was to wiring but some equipment in the bow received water damage.

The Telic Belle, on contract to the U.S. Navy for recovery work on the torpedo range near Nanoose, about 12 miles north of Nanaimo, is equipped with underwater television cameras.

Restoration Under Way On Square

A $13,000 face-lifting for the Duncan Building on Bastion Square is under way

And Thursday bids close for the second phase of the operation to restore the former Burnes House to its earlier glory.

The second phase of the project is expected to cost about $50,000.

While complete details of the project remain secret it is understood a restaurant designed on period decor will occupy the main floor of the three-storey building.

Burnes House was famous at the turn of the century for the quality of food served by the original owner.

INDOOR FOUNTAIN

In addition to the restaurant preliminary plans call for part of the interior to be cleared to make way for an indoor fountain and pool which, it is expected, will form the centre of the restaurant.

Acting Mayor Cecil Parrott said he is delighted to see such rapid progress made on the restoration of the old building.

"Even the face-lifting job is making a tremendous difference in the Square," he said. "Once the full restoration program is completed the new Duncan building will make a great difference to the entire area."

Plans to restore the old Board of Trade building, facing the Duncan building across the Square, are also under way though no final decision has been made as to the form the restoration will take.

NO, THERE ISN'T SIGN OF LET-UP

Victoria—city of ducks.

This could be next year's slogan unless the heavens let up.

Since last Thursday, when the rains began, it has been getting steadily worse.

Three-quarters of an inch fell overnight, bringing the six-day total to 1.68 inches. Of this, 1.10 inch has fallen in the last 2¼ days.

And there's no sign of a let-up.

Overnight forecast: showers.

Thursday's forecast: continuous rain.

After that it's anyone's guess.

But a safe bet according to weatherman Allan McQuarrie, would be more rain.

GOLDSTREAM

11,000 Watched Salmon

The annual salmon run at Goldstream Park has attracted more than 11,000 visitors during the past six weeks.

"It is by far the biggest turnout we have ever had," said Freeman King, who acts as guide for the B.C. Recreation Department.

"I would say the salmon run is now an established tourist attraction at Goldstream Park. It draws more people every year."

A number of football fans from Saskatchewan visited the park Sunday after attending the Grey Cup game in Vancouver.

"We also had visitors from Manitoba and Alberta," Mr. King said. "Since the middle of October we have had many parties from up-Island and the mainland. Most of them said they would be back next year."

Mr. King estimates 60 per cent of the salmon who fought their way up the river were females. About 9,000 of them were Chum salmon and 500 were Coho.

Three-Car Crash On Douglas Injures Woman

A car driven by a Duncan man struck a city motorcycle dealer's store early Tuesday evening, causing considerable damage.

Injured in a car driven by George Christo was passenger Mary Newman, who was treated at St. Joseph's Hospital for fractured ribs.

The Christo car was one in a three-car collision at Douglas and Saanich about 7 p.m.

Drivers of the other cars were Janice McLean, 721 Porter, and Thomas Corbett, 224 Cadillac.

The injured motorcycle dealer was Amor's Motorcycle Sales, 3400 Douglas.

The collision was the only accident with injuries reported in the city overnight.

FIRST PHASE

Imperial Conversion Nearing Completion

First phase of converting Imperial Oil's Esquimalt bulk storage plant to a computer-based operation is nearing completion.

A $300,000 replacement and expansion program is expected to be finished by Dec. 15, except for exterior painting of bulk storage tanks in pastel colors next spring.

Then work will start to make the Victoria plant the first of its kind and among the most modern in Canada.

AUTOMATIC BILLING

An Imperial Oil engineer said automatic billing equipment will be put in, which together with new pumping equipment will streamline loading and accounting.

Drivers of oil and gasoline tank trucks will have individual keys coded to operate automatic billing equipment. Records will be sent directly to accounting headquarters in Edmonton for preparation and distribution to clients.

Machinery is already installed that steps up loading to 500 gallons per minute.

This is part of a modernization program that has been under way all this year with Farmer Construction as general contractor.

NEW TANKS

It includes replacement of storage tanks installed as early as 1915. Two old tanks still on the site—of about 140,000 gallons capacity each — will be pulled down in the next few weeks.

Yarrows Ltd. has built the new tanks and Bickerton Erectors Ltd., Vancouver, has done the installation. G. H. Birnie Ltd., Victoria, has handled pipeline installation.

Work is under way on a 420,000-gallon gasoline storage tank and a 350,000-gallon high octane tank is finished.

Other finished work includes a 700,000-gallon furnace oil tank, a new diesel oil tank and a floating roof gasoline tank finished last year.

The terminal on Victoria View Road is the main distribution point for south Vancouver Island for products coming from the Imperial refinery at Ioco.

Garage Man Burned When Fumes Explode

'Whole Place Went Up With Whoof'

A service station attendant is in fairly good condition at St. Joseph's Hospital with burns and cuts following an explosion shortly before 11 a.m. today.

James McDonald, 48, was cleaning a bay in a double-bay garage at Oak Bay Avenue and Bank Street when an explosion, apparently caused by the ignition of solvent fumes, occurred.

'WENT WHOOF'

Cecil Kay, an employee of service station across the street, said "the whole place went up with a whoof. There was a sheet of flame and a bang and that was it."

Mr. Kay turned in the alarm to city fire department who responded with two trucks and an inhalator truck.

The interior of the building was badly charred and paint on the ceiling blistered.

WINDOWS BROKEN

Almost all the plate glass windows in the service station were either shattered or cracked.

Bob Burkholder, 17, of 1536 Bank, said: "I was just sitting in my living room when I heard a big pop.

"It was real hot around here when I ran over."

Estimate of damage to the station, owned by Phil McQuade, was not available.

HUNTER FINED FOR CARRYING LOADED GUN

A hunter was fined $25 today in central court when he pleaded guilty to carrying a loaded firearm in his car Oct. 16.

Steve Perry, 4010 Braefoot, checked near Duncan, was found to have four rounds of ammunition in a rifle.

"People who go hunting mustn't read the papers," said Magistrate Ostler, referring to recent hunting tragedies.

Suspect Seen Peering Down Open Skylight

Vernon Umphrey, 620 Huxley, pleaded not guilty in County Court today to a charge of breaking and entering Ensign Motors, 1061 Yates, on July 8.

Crown prosecutor Alan Bigelow said city police kept an all-night watch on the building after two men were seen loitering around the premises at about 10:30 p.m. on July 7.

Constable Ivan Purdy and Kenneth Clark stood guard inside the building for several hours. They heard noises on the roof and, upon investigation, discovered a skylight had been removed.

Mr. Bigelow said Umphrey was seen looking down through the space where the skylight had been.

The trial is being heard by Judge Montague Drake and a jury composed of 10 men and two women. Dermod Owen-Flood is defending Umphrey.

SHIP MOVEMENTS

Farmer Fined For Passing Checkpoint

A Happy Valley man wasn't so happy when he returned home with a truckload of cattle, purchased in Alberta, to find he had transported them illegally.

James Bartholow, 777 Kangaroo, was fined $10 in central court today for an offence against the Stock Brands Act.

A department of agriculture officer told court Bartholow had taken his 27 cattle past a Dawson Creek checkpoint without submitting to ownership inspection.

He said transporters must show proof of ownership of their cattle cargoes east of the Cascade Mountains.

Bartholow said he stopped for the inspection at Hope, adding that this is what he had done on another occasion.

Passing sentence, Magistrate William Ostler said the act "protects honest people like you."

B.C. Farmers Fight For Bigger Share In Dynamic Society

B.C. farmers today pressed their fight for a better standard of living.

The two-day meeting of the 13,000-member B.C. Federation of Agriculture opened at the Empress Hotel and faced a batch of controversial resolutions aimed at improving the lot of B.C.'s farm population.

Delegates decided the federation should take a new look at itself with a view to seeing what can be done to raise the financial status of growers.

COMMITTEE

A special committee will be appointed to study the problem.

Gill Rumley, manager of the Saanich Fruit Growers' Association, said farm incomes are not rising in line with other segments of the economy.

"We are standing still," he said. "We are supplying large quantities of raw material for processing plants, with little or no consideration given to the cost of production."

He also said growers in many cases were faced with unfair foreign competition.

"When we start negotiation for the sale of strawberries we have to compete with Mexican berries," he said. "Labor wages on a Mexican farm is $24 a month. How can you compete with that?"

"DISMAL FAILURE"

One delegate from Deep Creek said the efforts of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture to maintain a decent standard of living for farmers was a "dismal failure."

It also was disclosed at the convention that two major farm organizations scuttled a grower's brief to reduce taxes on the land. It was to be presented to the government.

L. A. Curie said the B.C. Beef Growers' Association and the Lower Mainland Dairyman's Association found the brief unacceptable.

The question of taxes on the land is expected to become one of the major issues at Thursday's session.

CITY SETS UP HEBENTON SCHOLARSHIP

The City of Victoria will honor hockey player Andy Hebenton tonight by awarding a $250 scholarship in his name.

The scholarship, to be known as the Andy Hebenton Scholarship, will be awarded annually for the next five years to a student selected by the Greater Victoria School District for outstanding sports and academic achievement.

Although set with a five-year time limit city officials noted that once established the annual award of $250 could become a permanent part of the city's budget.

'Condemn O'Neal Activity' Thompson Tells Federation

By ROGER STONEBANKS

The president of British Columbia's biggest union local today unleashed what he hopes will raise "a storm of protest" over the union bugging incident earlier this month.

In a letter to the B.C. Federation of Labour, Syd Thompson, president of the 7,000-member Vancouver local of the International Woodworkers of America, suggests the federation:

- Request E. P. O'Neal resign from the executive;
- Publicly condemn Mr. O'Neal for his "activity;"
- Publicly declare that workers must have the right to belong to the union of their choice and request the Labour Relations Board to reconsider the situation at the Harmac pulp mill near Nanaimo.

TO ALL COUNCILS

Copies of Mr. Thompson's letter were sent to all labor councils and union locals in B.C.

The move stems from the bugging incident and the feud which rages between two rival unions —the International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers (CIC) and the unaffiliated Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada.

Earlier this month electronic bugs were found in the convention rooms of the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada.

A private detective said Mr. O'Neil paid him $250. Mr. O'Neil confirmed he hired the detective but denied prior knowledge that bugs would be used.

Mr. O'Neil is the former secretary of the B.C. Federation of Labour who resigned last summer to become regional organizer for the international pulp union.

The Canadian union was unsuccessful in bids for recognition at three pulp mills this summer. In no case did the Labour Relations Board call a representation vote among the workers.

After the bugging incident, the provincial government appointed a royal commission with wide-ranging terms of reference. Hearings start Monday.

Mr. Thompson said he and his union local remained silent until now to "avoid providing further ammunition for our political enemies" during the Cariboo by-election.

He continued:

"Because of the seriousness of the issues embodied in this letter and the wide publicity this will receive, we wish to state at the outset that we hold no brief for the Canadian pulp union nor for the people running that organization.

"NO CURE"

"In fact, we strongly believe that wrapping ourselves in the Maple Leaf flag, as is being done by those advocating Canadian unions, is no cure for some of the ailments afflicting the labor movement.

"In fact, splintering and dividing organized labor, as is being done, can only assist the employers.

"However, it must also be recognized that the undemocratic structure of some American unions bring about some of the problems that we are faced with.

"The international pulp union falls in this category. We wish to point out that 21,000 members left that organization in the states of Washington and Oregon.

"Canadian unionism is not an issue in that part of the world. Democratic membership control, however, is.

"Events at the Harmac pulp mill make a mockery out of working peoples' rights to freedom of choice. We firmly believe that the working man must

Enlarge Your Child's Stuffed Animal Zoo

By Penny Saver

Of all the youngsters' rooms that I have seen, I'm sure that my little cousin's was the most well organized, considering all her various collections, which contained hundreds of items collectively. Her sea shells were all kept in a huge basket, neatly arranged one inside the other according to size. She placed her "family" of dolls on top of one bureau, and had a tiered shelf in one corner which housed her "zoo". Some of her rock collection was mingled with her shells, and likewise, some of the shells with her rocks. However, she was still very organized for a youngster.

Her favorite corner was naturally her zoo. She was continually rearranging all her stuffed animals, putting newer ones in the most conspicuous places. Her idea of that central view, however, changed frequently. I think it all depended on what part of the room you were standing in and looking at the shelf.

Because of her stuffed-animal-loving tendencies, she is one of the easiest youngsters to shop for on my list. I found the perfect store to find her gift.

One creature that her zoo lacks is a dolphin. This store has large dolphins with grey tops and white undersides, with large flippers. These laughing fish are soft and cuddly and seem to beckon you to play with them. Priced at $4.98, these come in a blue shade as well. They're the perfect gift for any youngster.

A baby elephant is something that no animal collection can be without. Pink elephants have blue ribbons tied around their necks. Your child will love to have one of these standing in a special spot in his room. They sell for $2.98.

Dogs of every description and color are a favorite in Santa's bag of toys. Poodles with fluffy top knots and pom pom tails come in every shade. Price is $2.98.

My favorite puppy is one that looks like a small lion. This mischievous dog has whiskers to spare! He's in a sitting position and sells for the same price as the poodles. Color is tawny brown.

Give Penny a call at 382-3131 if you want to know where I found these animals.

Any little girl—or boy—would be delighted to help Mrs. A. L. Campbell (at left) and Mrs. Gertrude McKeown with this gathering of "characters" who will be joined by many more gift-geared creations when the Gorge Road Hospital Auxiliary holds its annual bazaar at the hospital this Thursday from 1 to 4:30 p.m. Afternoon tea will be served and stalls will feature Christmas novelties, home cooking, aprons, Lucky Seven and a variety of raffles. Proceeds will go toward the group's project of buying Hi-Lo hospital beds.

Victoria Man Wed in Ontario Now Honeymooning in Europe

Following their recent wedding in Trinity United Church, Port Arthur, Ont., Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Alastair Merrett left on a honeymoon trip touring Europe. While travelling, the newlyweds will be visiting the bride's relatives in Finland.

The bride, the former Leena Karina Bergroth, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eino Bergroth of Port Arthur, and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. E. Alastair Merrett, 1330 Coventry Avenue, Victoria.

Arrangements of white and yellow chrysanthemums decorated the church for the service at which Dr. R. Peden officiated. B. Vickers was organist and Mr. Bergroth gave his daughter in marriage.

A cathedral coat en train, bordered with delicate lace at the front, topped the bride's floor-length gown of rich heavy satin. The gown also featured lace accents and three-quarter-length sleeves. The trim was echoed on her scalloped veil which misted softly from a high coronet of lace. A trio of large mauve orchids, and three smaller pink orchids were in her bouquet.

Cherry-red velvet formed the empire-line bodices of the gowns worn by the bride's attendants. The floor-length skirts were shocking pink silk and the outfits were topped with full-length coats. Completing the ensembles were velvet coronets, edged with pink veils, and they each carried a single white orchid.

Maid of honor was Miss Judy Lynn Felde, Vancouver, and bridesmaids were the Misses Maie Sigus and Beverly Taylor of Port Arthur. Reta Bergroth was junior bridesmaid for her sister.

Best man was Douglas Gilliland, Vancouver, and ushering guests to pews marked with bows were Gary Dahlgren, Sidney, and the bride's brother, Osmo Bergroth, Port Arthur.

Sweetheart roses topped the four-tier wedding cake which centred the head table at the reception, dinner and dance which followed. E. Hautala proposed the toast to the bride in English and Finnish.

For travelling on honeymoon, the bride chose a brown and black woollen suit trimmed with brown Persian lamb. A suede hat and black accessories completed the outfit.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Teacher Has A Lot to Learn

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: In reference to the letter about the boy who tore off part of his lip when he ripped off the adhesive tape a teacher had placed over his mouth: As a school teacher I object to your telling the boy's mother to "go to school and give the teacher some of your lip."

If a parent ever gave me any of her lip I'd give her a slap across the mouth. If parents don't like the way we discipline their children, why don't they discipline them at home!

FELLOW TEACHER.

DEAR TEACHER: Good question. However, a teacher has the right to toss a student out of her class — only figuratively, that is. A teacher who needs anything other than language to discipline a child, be it a ruler, a dunce cap, or adhesive tape, is in the wrong profession.

DEAR ABBY: How important do you think clothes are? I am a 33-year-old woman who has been told many times that if I want to get a man I should pay more attention to the way I dress. I am average looking. Not too fat or too thin, but I've never been clothes-crazy.

I've always dressed neatly and inconspicuously but I never did have much style. I think if a man is going to get interested in a woman, what she wears won't make that much difference. I'd appreciate your opinion.

PLAIN JANE.

DEAR JANE: In this day of competition, "packaging" is important. To quote my friend, Edith Head, winner of seven academy awards for costume designing, and still reigning queen of the fashion world: "All women look alike in the bathtub. The only chance a woman gets to show her individuality is when she puts her clothes on." I vote with Edith.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is 19 and I am 18, and we have been married for 10 unhappy months. The five months we went together he said he loved me, and he acted like it. Now I'm not so sure. He told me the other night that he's been thinking a lot about his first love. He went with her for two years, then she married someone she'd known only a few weeks.

I asked him if he would go back to her if he could, and he said, "Yes, but I wouldn't want to break up her marriage." Then he hurt me awful bad when he said he didn't think he could ever love anybody else like he loved her.

Abby, I told him I loved him more than anything in the whole world and I would try my best to make him happy. He said, "That's the trouble, you love me too much."

I didn't know a person could love anybody too much, Abby. Can they? Please help me. It's so hard to give your love to a man when he has another woman on his mind.

UNLOVED.

DEAR UNLOVED: Your husband is right. You do love him too much. One loves "too much" only when that love is unreciprocated. Quit begging. Ask your husband if he wants to try to make a go of your marriage.

If he does, he will see a clergyman, or a professional counsellor with you. Otherwise, face it. You'll be tied to a little boy who will be blubbering about his "first love" till the day he dies.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Have You Forgotten to Care For Your Natural Lashes?

We think so much in terms of false eyelashes today that we almost forget what to do about natural lashes.

While it is not always true, many women find that their lashes have become thinner by middle age. Stimulation is one way to prevent this. Use one of the little brushes designed for applying mascara. Brush the lashes of the upper lids upward, over and over again. Give your eyes this treat once daily. Another way to stimulate circulation is to massage gently along the edge of the lids, using a little petroleum jelly or baby oil.

Lowman

Here are some more eye lifters. If your eyes are too close together, apply mascara only on the lashes toward the outer half of the lids. Elongate the brows at the ends with a brow pencil. This is also flattering to a wide nose.

If your eyes are too far apart, do just the opposite. Elongate your brows at the ends over the nose. Apply mascara lightly, if at all, to your lashes toward the outer corner of the eyes.

If your eyes are deep set, use mascara only on the tips of the upper lashes. If your eyes protrude, narrow the space between the inner ends of your brows by extending them inward with a pencil. Apply mascara on the centre lashes. Lashes appear much longer if they sweep upward. Use one of the little curlers available to give them this sweep.

Be certain that the brush is not too wet when you use mascara. Have your brush just barely damp. When you use an eyebrow pencil, do not draw a straight line but use little feathery strokes and then blend them or brush the color on.

The eyes reflect our general physical condition. Regular exercise and good nutrition play an important part in eye beauty. I have often noticed the effect exercise has on the eyes. They may become much clearer.

For more information about eyes you may want to send for my free leaflet "Lines and Puffs Under the Eyes." To obtain your leaflet send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

A WOMAN'S VIEWPOINT

By Pat Dufour

English crusaders have changed a great deal since the years when they sallied forth, armed with clanking mail and heavy lances. One such crusader visited Victoria last week. Appearances were deceptive, but this one was every bit as devoted and militant as those who did battle with the Mohammedans.

Mrs. Arthur Wareham is on a six-week tour of Canada. Her enemy is those who, she feels, distort the image of British youth. Her weapons are a series of lectures, based on the depth of understanding she's acquired as a mother, journalist, traveller and councillor for Bromley, where she and her husband make their home.

Obviously the British government has faith in the adequacy of her weapons. They're sponsoring the tour.

This quiet-spoken woman goes to battle stations with those who visit her country, spending most of a short stay in London, coming back with the conviction that "English youth has gone to the dogs, having an addiction for long, greasy hair, beating up old women and riding in aggressive packs on our highways."

A realist, Mrs. Wareham admits that a small percentage of English youth is suffering from this type of 'growing pains' but stresses that this is no English preserve.

A Sickness That Is Universal

"Every country where modernization has resulted in the breaking down of family and other ties suffers with the same sickness. You only have to see Toronto's Yorkville area or remember Vancouver's Halloween fracas to realize this."

Mrs. Wareham, whose son Richard is a civil engineer, and whose young daughter, Susan, is at present working out of Boston, Mass., as an airline stewardess, says that most English parents are adjusting to the revolution that youth is staging in her country and find the new challenges exciting.

"A lot of the stuffiness has disappeared from the English scene. The young people are able to travel much more than we did and they come back determined to have a country that's 'with it.'

"They've broken down a lot of the old class distinctions. An example of this can be seen in the British Broadcasting Corporation. There was a time when you heard nothing but smooth Oxford or Cambridge-educated voices. Now, it's more often a strong Northern accent that's heard as the young, bright thinkers, designers, artists and technicians bring their ideas forward.

"Television is another mirror of the revolution. Can you imagine the England of a few years ago permitting programs on the best use of contraceptives, colored marriages and prison reforms?"

Force Change in Government

Kathleen Wareham also attributes the change of government policy to the demands of the young. "Our youth has not been depleted by war and they are very politically involved, which is normal in a tight little island with 55½ million people. They were instrumental in putting in a left modernizing government, not only voting but standing as candidates. Our youngest Member of Parliament is in his early 20s."

As in every state, outside Utopia, Mrs. Wareham admits that Britain's youth-geared drive is posing its own problems and dangers.

"They are pushing for reforms in our education system and I have personal misgivings. I would hate to see our system changed into a cultural sheep-dip like that of the United States. I feel that our grammar schools should be upgraded to the standards of our famous public schools. It seems to me that the latter, if we are not careful, could end up being downgraded in a general comprehensive system."

University education is free in her country and Mrs. Wareham is not too sure of the merits of this procedure.

"Most of my lectures in Canada have been at universities and I am amazed and impressed at the number of young women who go out and earn so that their husbands can continue their educations. This is something unheard of in Britain. Your system of government loans, where the student must eventually meet a commitment, is a wonderful innovation.

"I'm against a complete welfare state—even where education is involved—it leads only to debilitation."

There's one British society that Mrs. Wareham would like to see wiped out. This is the Latchkey Society.

"Many of my talks at home are given in libraries and I am sick when I see so many of these youngsters sitting there, with the latchkey tied around their necks, so that they can let themselves in when they get home to an empty house. I feel that no mother, except for drastic financial reasons, should go to work until her children are old enough to be integrated in their own age group, at least 8 to 10 years of age."

Unlike her warrior ancestors, Mrs. Wareham will be hard put to assess whether she won or lost her overseas battle when she returns to her own country. But, like them, she'll be taking back some of the spoils, this time in the shape of ideas that will help in the revolution taking place on the home front.

Beth Guthrie Feted at Parties Prior to Wedding This Saturday

The days preceding her forthcoming marriage are busy ones for bride-elect Miss Elizabeth Guthrie. She will wed Hugh Skillings this Saturday.

Red roses and carnations en corsage were presented to the bride-elect when she was entertained at a shower given by Mrs. J. Atkinson in her Pacific Avenue home. Mother of the honor guest, Mrs. M. C. Guthrie, and the groom-elect's mother, Mrs. Waldo Skillings were given carnation corsages. A gaily decorated basket contained the gifts presented by the 20 guests who attended. Mrs. Guthrie and Mrs. Skillings presided at the refreshment table.

The Rockland Avenue home of the groom-elect's mother was the setting when she entertained at a coffee party for Miss Guthrie. An arrangement of snowball chrysanthemums centred the refreshment table at which Mrs. V. Skillings and Mrs. T. Bowden presided. Approximately 100 guests attended.

An attractive arrangement of fall flowers decorated the refreshment table when Mrs. A. E. Bowden held a buffet luncheon and shower in her Beresford Place home. The honor guest was given a corsage of white carnations and wedding bells and the mother of the principals received pale pink rosebuds. There were 14 guests.

The groom-elect was surprised with a variety of useful gifts when he and his fiancee were feted with a party in the Rock Heights home of Mr. and Mrs. R. Skillings.

Mrs. T. H. Evans and Mrs. M. O'Hanlon were co-hostesses at a shower in the Kinross Aveune home of the latter. A decorated umbrella concealed the gifts.

The Ripon Road home of Mrs. F. A. E. Manning was decorated in a Japanese motif when she held a shower. Freesia corsages were given to Miss Guthrie, her mother and the groom-elect's mother.

Lt.-Cmdr. and Mrs. R. Newstead held a dinner for the honor couple in their Hobbs Road home.

A "little grass shack" contained the gifts for Miss Guthrie when she was entertained at a cup and saucer shower by Mrs. N. Reilly and Miss Barbara Reilly in their Beach Drive home. Orchid leis were given to the bride-elect, her mother and the groom-elect's mother. Leis and Hawaiian flowers carried out the Hawaiian theme on the refreshment table at which the groom-elect's mother presided.

Premier W. A. C. Bennett and Mrs. Bennett entertained at a dinner party for the honor couple in the Empress Hotel. Guests included the parents of the principals and Mrs. W. Harris.

A gaily decorated Eaton's shopping bag (the groom-elect is associated with Eaton's in Vancouver) held the gifts presented to Miss Guthrie when Mrs. J. F. K. English and Mrs. Brian Whitlow were co-hostesses at a shower in the rectory of Christ Church Cathedral. Mrs. T. H. Evans presided at the refreshment table and there were 17 guests.

Mrs. R. Green was hostess at a luncheon in the Union Club. Miss Guthrie received a corsage of pink rosebuds and the mothers of the principals received pink carnations. Also attending were Mrs. H. B. MINISTER SILENT ON COLOR OF UNIFORM

OTTAWA (CP)—Defence Minister Hellyer declined Tuesday to confirm or deny reports that green may be the color chosen for the uniform of the unified armed forces.

At first he made no reply when Michael Forrestall (PC—Halifax) asked him in the Commons about news reports on the uniform.

When Mr. Forrestall protested his silence, Mr. Hellyer said the report is "strictly speculative and certainly is not from any reliable sources that I know about."

He promised that when a decision on the color is made it will be announced after the members of the forces have been advised themselves.

Speck 'Went Blank' on Day of Mass Murders

CHICAGO (AP)—Four medical experts have testified that Richard Speck used liquor at 13 and "goofballs" at 15, but is competent to stand trial on charges of murdering eight student nurses.

The testimony was presented Tuesday to a jury of five women and seven men in a hearing to determine Speck's competency.

The nurses were slain July 14 in their town house dormitory on the far South Side.

Three psychiatrists and a physician testified as state's witnesses that Speck was capable of understanding the charges and intelligent and rational enough to go on trial.

But under cross-examination, they told how Speck "went blank" the day the nurses died; had been drinking and taking drugs that day; had used drugs and liquor since his early teens; and had suffered several head injuries as a child.

USED DRUGS EARLY

Dr. William Norcross, associate director of Cermak Memorial (Bridewell) Hospital in the Chicago city jail, testified that Speck had "indicated" during frequent interviews he started drinking at age 13 and began using "blockbusters," "yellowjackets" and "bennies"—slang names for amphetamines and other dangerous drugs—at age 15 or 16.

He said Speck had told of suffering head injuries as a child in falling out of a tree, running into a steel awning and being hit by a policeman.

But, Dr. Groves Smith of Alton, Ill., said he would not call Speck retarded and that Speck did not show evidence of brain damage.

'Wait for the Evidence' O'Neal Tells His Critics

The man at the centre of the union bugging incident earlier this month Tuesday advised his critics to wait for the royal commission's evidence.

"I am sure all the trade union policians will have something to say but I think they would be well advised to reserve their comment until all the evidence is in," said E. P. O'Neal.

Mr. O'Neal is the regional organizer for the International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers.

Earlier this month, electronic bugs were found in the convention rooms of the rival Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada.

A private detective said Mr. O'Neal paid him $250. Mr. O'Neal admitted hiring the detective but denied knowing bugs would be used.

The provincial government appointed a royal commission to look into the affair. Hearings start next Monday.

ATLANTIC CONQUERORS

. . . And They Still Don't Like Rowing

LONDON (AP) — Two Britons who rowed the Atlantic in a 20-foot boat took their tiny vessel up the River Thames Monday and one said afterward: "We still don't like rowing."

The pair, British paratroop Capt. John Ridgway, 27, and Sgt. Chay Blyth, 26, reached Ireland Sept. 3 last, 92 days after setting out from the United States.

Monday they rowed the red and green boat, English Rose III, a mile up the River Thames under Tower Bridge and past the Tower of London.

"It was a lot better than the Atlantic," Ridgway said later. "But we still don't like rowing. It's darn hard work."

Ridgway said he now would like a crack at the single-man transatlantic yacht race, scheduled in 1968.

"But I need a sponsor for this. Our rowboat only cost $414 and the whole Atlantic crossing $1,500. "I'll need a lot more to take part in the trans-Atlantic yacht race."

ADVENTURERS HAILED

Tugs tooted sirens and wharfmen waved as the two Britons rowed along the Thames into wind and rain.

Occasion of the trip was the launching of a book, A Fighting Chance, which tells of their adventure.

Two other Britons — David Johnstone, 34, and John Hoare, 29 — apparently perished in an attempt to row the Atlantic. Their 15-foot boat Puffin was found by a Canadian destroyer-escort in mid-Atlantic Oct. 15, with no sign of the pair.

Somebody Told Crows About Shooting Law

KUALA LUMPUR (AP)—Residents of the picturesque Malaysian town of Klang have a problem — crows. Some 300,000 of them, by estimate.

A visitor can see them perched ready to swoop, on trees, walls and even on the gold-domed palace of the sultan. The old bust of King George V at Klang Park is barely identifiable.

Hardest hit are the open air markets. "They dart down in swarms and steal anything before you can say shoo," one stall keeper complained.

Housewives have had items snatched out of their hands.

An expert at the Institute of Medical Research here said: "There are two crows to every resident and they are so used to human environment that they have developed a certain cunning."

A municipal law says shooting below eye level is unlawful and it seems somebody told the crows. The sight of a gun brings them quickly to the ground.

The game warden has offered a reward of 30 cents a dead crow. So far this year only $6 has been paid.

Soap 'Bargains' Can Cost More

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP) — The problems of housewives finding boxes of detergent only two-thirds full, white nylons turning pink in the wash, and septic tanks clogging up because of detergent use were aired in a parliamentary committee Tuesday.

Members and Senators — men and women — told of their shopping experiences, such as finding five bars of soap and a face cloth selling at two cents a cake more than three bars of soap, although supposed to be sale priced.

And Richard C. Beeson, president of Colgate-Palmolive Ltd., defended a six-year jump in advertising expenditures by saying not to advertise in the soap and detergent business is to head into regression.

The Senate-Commons prices inquiry was told there is no certain way of measuring the cleaning power of soaps and detergents because of wide variations in domestic laundry conditions.

But under controlled laboratory conditions, Mr. Beeson said, Colgate-Palmolive can measure cleaning power and construct a detergent with perfume, texture, package shape, and other features designed to attract customers.

He told the committee the wholly-owned Canadian subsidiary of Colgate-Palmolive Co. of the United States increased its sales to $34,244,000 last year from $30,532,000 in 1960 and $27,568,000 in 1961, but the only significant price increase over this period was in soap.

This 27-per-cent increase resulted from higher world prices of tallow, coconut oil and other raw materials. Prices of powdered detergents, on the other hand, remained unchanged in 1966 from 1960, while the company's selling price of liquid detergents had gone down 13 per cent.

Mr. Beeson said Colgate-Palmolive's advertising expenditures had risen to $5,522,000 or 16.1 per cent of gross sales last year from $3,243,000 or 10.6 per cent of gross sales in 1960.

"Were it not for sales secured through advertising, we would not have a market position," he said. "We would lose revenue and with it the ability to pay for improvements to our existing products. In short there would be no progress, rather retrogression."

BOUGHT 'FREE' CLOTH

Reid Scott (NDP — Toronto-Danforth) said he bought three bars of Palmolive toilet soap for 41 cents, or 13.6 cents a bar, and five bars packaged with a "free" face cloth for 78 cents, or 15.6 cents a bar.

He also bought a giant size package of Ajax laundry detergent, marked 40 cents off regular price, for $1.43 and found the price tag had been pasted over an earlier price on the package of $1.35.

When he opened the package, he found a third of it "filled with good Canadian air."

Mr. Beeson said the usual retail price of the package was $1.83 and the 40 cents off was a genuine price reduction made by the manufacturer to the retailer. The package was filled when it left the factory, but the tiny globules of detergent break and pack together in shipping with no loss of weight or cleaning power.

Ron Basford (L — Vancouver-Burrard) produced seven packages of Colgate tooth paste he said were bought in one corner drug store at the same time. They all had different prices marked on them.

Mr. Beeson said the store must have carried over old stocks of various sale-priced goods, something the company tries to avoid.

Drug Arrests High

VANCOUVER (CP) — The RCMP and city police drug squads have made a record 64 arrests so far this month, city Staff Sgt. John Gillies said Tuesday.

Spring Housing Program Set For Songhees

A tentative agreement has been reached with the Indian affairs department for a spring housing building program on the Songhees Reserve.

Chief John Albany said a building program for the 185-acre reserve bordering Esquimalt and View Royal, is being discussed with J. V. Boys, superintendent.

"We hope three houses will be started this spring, and as many as seven or eight by the end of the summer," he said.

There are 165 people and about 150 houses on the reserve. Most of the dwellings are 54 years old.

Witness Jailed

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP) — A member of the Jehovah Witnesses sect was sentenced to five years in prison Monday for refusing to report for civilian medical duty in lieu of military service. Allen James Pitt, 21, had been classified by his draft board as a conscientious objector.

Co-Ops Help Keep Prices Down

OTTAWA (CP) — Co-operatives in the retail food field have proven to be an effective way of keeping family food bills down and curbing excessive promotional expenses, an executive of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture said Tuesday.

David L. Kirk, executive secretary of the national farm organization, said co-operatives can control profits in the retail business, and can make innovations in the present system of food distribution.

He described one co-op which has been operating in Ottawa for the last 18 months, in which food products are sold to co-op members at wholesale prices. Members cover overhead costs with monthly dues.

Mrs. Grace MacInnis (NDP — Vancouver-Kingsway) asked whether it is not too late for the co-operative movement in Canada to get firmly established, in view of the advances already made by the big grocery chains. Mr. Kirk said co-operatives are spreading in Western Canada and could do so elsewhere.

DESPERATE RICH MAN

Only Death Stemmed The Flow of Money

By ELIZABETH FORBES

The talk had turned to accumulation of money, particularly through investments or as some might name it, speculation.

Forbes

It was then that the visitor from England (for whom this particular gathering had been arranged) spoke his piece.

"Some are born rich," he said, "some achieve riches and some have riches thrust upon them."

There were those among us who didn't hesitate to tell him that as far as they were concerned this was a well-worn cliche.

"Riches are never really thrust on a person," one contended.

Our visitor disagreed and he offered to prove his point.

He once knew a man, he said, who had fortune thrust upon him against his will. He was a Welshman who lived a quarter-century ago in the town of Woodstock in Oxfordshire.

We begged him to tell us more. So he settled back in his chair and gave us an amazing story that, with his permission, I am now going to share with you.

John Evans, a British millionaire copper mine owner, tired of wealth and gave his fortune of more than three million pounds to various charitable foundations. Then, on an annuity of four hundred pounds a year, he settled in Woodstock, where he hoped to find peace and privacy.

Ten months later he was advised that lands in British Guiana, which he had thought to be worthless, had been found rich in copper.

He was offered half a million pounds for this land but he didn't want the money. So he gave the mines outright to the engineer who had discovered them and who suddenly found himself — because of this gift — with a yearly revenue of around ninety thousand pounds.

Our raconteur paused for a moment to relight his pipe which gave one of our number time to breathe that Evans "must have been mad."

"No, indeed," we were told. "He was as sane as anyone in this room. All he wanted was peace and the right to live as he wished in the village he had chosen as his home."

He wasn't to have that type of peace however for two months after he had signed away his wealth in Guiana, Mr. Evans was notified that an inheritance of one hundred thousand pounds had been left to him. He immediately gave this money to an orphan asylum.

At the same time he decided to leave Woodstock and "hide himself" at Taverstock, hoping to escape further publicity.

It made no difference. The news followed him. He had fallen heir to a further thirty thousand pounds which in desperation he gave to hospitals.

This wasn't the last of his worries. In order to rid himself of some of the annuity money he bought a number of tickets in a charitable auction in Devonshire.

You've guessed it. He won the capital prize of five thousand pounds.

A few days later he died. Our story teller said it was as if he felt that it was the only way he could avoid the riches that persisted in forcing themselves upon him.

There was silence in the room when he completed his tale. Then one in the group gave an explosive sigh and whispered — "incredible!".

Another inferred that it at least made interesting listening. Immediately our visitor from overseas took exception to this remark.

This was a true story, he insisted. He had known Mr. Evans and the events of his attempted retreat from wealth were authentic.

And again he reiterated that "some are born rich, some achieve riches and some have riches thrust upon them."

At that moment we were willing to agree with him.

HEIGHT LIMITS SCRAPPED

Quake-Proof Buildings On the Rise in Japan

By AKIO OGAWA

TOKYO (AP)—Tokyo is growing in a new direction—upward.

Skyscrapers are beginning to change the profile of the metropolis.

There was a time when a law banned buildings more than 102 feet high. But the law has been scrapped, and at least a dozen skyscrapers under construction or in the blueprint stage will rise twice as high as the old limit.

Japan's ban on tall buildings went back about 40 years. It stemmed from memories of the disastrous 1923 earthquake that killed thousands of people in Tokyo and Yokohama.

Architects and engineers argued that the limit on high buildings was vital in a country such as Japan, where there are several earth tremors every day.

But the limitation produced some unhappy side effects. Buildings, forced to grow sideways, spilled over into parks, roads and even school playgrounds. Some buildings seemed stunted, with engineers burrowing into the soft Tokyo subsoil to build downward. More than one building has gone five or six storeys underground, with only a few more storeys above ground.

The limitation was scrapped in 1963.

The highest of the new skyscrapers will be the 482-foot Kasumigaseki Mitsui building with 35 floors in the sky, three in the soil. At its site in the heart of Tokyo a steel skeleton has begun to rise. The building is to be completed in December 1967.

Next highest will be a Tokyo government building at 427 feet.

Other Japanese cities are following Tokyo's lead. In Yokohama a 260-foot hotel already is in operation. A bus terminal now under construction in Agoya will stand 326 feet when completed in August, 1967. In Takamatsu, a 213-foot bank building is near completion.

With the skyscrapers springing up everywhere, some Japanese still worry about earthquakes. However, Kiyoshi Muto, a specialist in quake-proof buildings and a professor emeritus at Tokyo University, explains:

"Today's architecture features thin, high-quality steel columns and light materials like glass or special metals for walls. A skyscraper can sway to and fro. It can ride out an earthquake. It's like standing in a train, moving with its motion."

City planners say the merits of skyscrapers for such overcrowded cities as Tokyo cannot be overemphasized. The planners will use the increased amount of open space for gardens, parks, roads and parking lots.

Sharp Jump In Deaths On Highways

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's tolls of traffic deaths, injuries and property damage have shown alarming increases for the first six months of 1966 compared to last year, the Canadian Highway Safety Council reported Monday.

In its latest highway accident summary, the council said 2,022 persons were killed in traffic accidents from Jan. 1 to June 30, 1966, an increase of 6.6 per cent. This compares with a three-per-cent increase at the same time last year.

The 69,491 persons injured represented an even sharper increase—almost 11 per cent more than last year. The percentage increase a year ago was only 4.7.

Majority of Negroes May Live Outside South by 1970

WASHINGTON (AP)—American Negroes are steadily moving out of the South to the north and west and, if present trends continue, the majority of the Negroes will no longer be living in the Old Confederacy by 1970.

In the five years between 1960 and 1965, more than 2,000,000 Negroes migrated from the South, census bureau and labor department studies show. In 1960, 60 per cent of the country's 18,850,000 Negroes lived in the South. Five years later, only 53.6 per cent of 20,940,000 Negroes still lived below the Mason and Dixon line.

The studies also show that Negroes have larger families but lower incomes and less schooling than whites, factors which undoubtedly play a part in Negro movement and protest.

A census bureau study of the Negro population indicates that in general Negroes fare better economically and educationally outside the South.

The exodus began during the northern manpower shortage of the First World War and it intensified during and after the Second World War.

Mechanization of southern plantations, which once employed hundreds and even thousands of Negroes, is another reason not only for the exodus but also for a movement of the Negro from the farm to the big city in the South, an official added.

Census studies note that the largest percentage increase in Negro population came in the West, especially California.

About half the Negroes in the six cities with the largest colored populations — New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Detroit, Washington and Los Angeles—were born elsewhere, chiefly in the South.

The department said the percentage of Negroes in the total population — about 11 per cent—has changed little since the turn of the century.

CORONER CONGRATULATES JURY FOR 'EXCELLENT' VERDICT

Contractors, Consultants Share Blame for Ottawa Bridge Collapse

OTTAWA (CP)—The contractor and consulting engineers building the Heron Road bridge here have been blamed by a coroner's jury for the Aug. 10 collapse that killed nine workmen and injured 50 others.

A seven-day inquest into the collapse of wooden falsework ended Tuesday night with the five jurors blaming O. J. Gaffney Construction Co. of Stratford and M. M. Dillon Co. of London, Ont., for the disaster.

Gaffney was the chief construction firm on the $1,700,000 civic project, which is to span the Rideau River and create a new traffic artery in the city's south end.

The Dillon Co. was hired as consulting engineers for the project.

While Gaffney engineers were solely responsible for the falsework which was to bear the weight of concrete pours on the giant span under their contract with the city, the jurors said:

"We feel that the consulting engineers should bear some of the responsibility for failure of the falsework.

"We are of this opinion as the result of the engineers having suggested and approved changes in the falsework design."

The falsework failed because of the lack of bracing in the diagonal longitudinal level, the jury said.

Lack of the bracing came about because Gaffney was inexperienced in designing falsework of such magnitude, it said. Evidence at the inquest revealed that Gaffney engineers designed such structures up to 25 feet high before tackling the 60-foot-high Heron Road project.

Coroner H. B. Cotham congratulated the jury on its "excellent verdict" and commended it for spending 10 hours and 48 minutes before rendering a verdict.

He said it was at least an Ontario record for an inquest jury to ponder a decision and maybe a Canadian one.

The $100,000 cost of the provincial investigation into the collapse also was a record, he said.

U.K. GIVES UP ANOTHER COLONY

Barbados: Newest Nation

BRIDGETOWN (Reuters)—Barbados ended more than 300 years of British rule today and became the world's newest independent nation.

This tropical coral island of 250,000 inhabitants on 166 square miles, devoted mainly to sugar and rum production, emerged as a sovereign state at midnight Tuesday night when its blue and gold national colors were run up a flagpole at a track here.

Thousands of Barbadians stood bareheaded as the Queen's cousin, the Duke of Kent, gave Prime Minister Errol Barrow Britain's official assent to ending the long colonial tie.

Barbados—most easterly island in the West Indies and the most densely populated — was the fourth British Caribbean territory to gain independence.

Following in the steps of Jamaica, Trinidad and Tobago and Guyana, formerly British Guiana, the island will become the 26th independent member of the Commonwealth.

The tiny isle, whose main assets are sun, surf, and sugar, entered independence with one of the smallest defence forces in the world—about 500 regular police and a 250-man volunteer military battalion.

PRODUCTION BEGINS ON '67 MEDALLIONS

OTTAWA (CP) — The Royal Canadian Mint began production Monday of 5,500,000 souvenir medallions to be distributed to all school children next June to mark the Centennial of Confederation.

The medallions are about the size of silver dollars and are minted from a red alloy of copper and zinc.

One side bears the Canadian Coat of Arms, while the reverse shows the maple leaf Centennial symbol with the inscription, "Confederation 1867-1967".

They will be packaged in plastic containers.

'Breakdown' of Marriage Urged as Divorce Grounds

OTTAWA (CP)—Two lawyers and a women's rights group made a plea Tuesday that "marriage breakdown" be allowed as legal grounds for divorce. The principal acceptable grounds now is adultery.

Toronto lawyers James C. MacDonald and Lee K. Ferrier presented a joint brief to the Senate-Commons special committee on divorce. It sought marriage breakdown as the sole grounds for divorce.

The Canadian Committee on the Status of Women thought marriage breakdown allied with more traditional grounds such as adultery, cruelty and desertion "would more aptly reflect public opinion."

The brief of the 10-member committee—founded in 1953—said the courts could take into account the over-all situation and specific matrimonial offences in deciding.

The lawyers argued that an offence such as adultey fails to provide either real or moral cause for dissolving a marriage. It was the failure of the relationship between the two people that did so.

Breakdown allowing breakup was defined as the point when there was no reasonble possibility of a couple living together again. It would not be divorce by consent because applicants would have to prove breakdown.

Nature's Balancing Act Plays Encore

Duncan's Tree Nursery, Seed Centre Made for Years Like This

By DON VIPOND

DUNCAN — This is the year!

It happens every seven to 14 years — when everything goes just right.

It has to be dry and hot enough in the summer, but not too parched. There must be rain in the spring, but only so much.

A tardy frost in the first blush of summer or one which strikes too early in the fall leaves everything ruined for another year.

But when Nature does pull off this delicate balancing act, perhaps with a hand from the law of averages, it's a significant year for this island.

Because it means trees. Trees for the next century.

And trees mean lumber, pulp and paper — jobs and new homes, cars and groceries.

The B.C. Forest Service tree nursery and seed centre here is really made for years like this one. From now until spring the 40 men at this operation will handle the countless millions of tiny flakes which will be towering fir stands a century from now.

This work is at the heart of promising term in the lumber industry — "perpetual yield" — the idea of having trees growing at the same rate they are logged so that Vancouver Island's most important natural resource will last forever.

But the cones which yield the seeds are rarely worth collecting by man. Most years the weather squeezes the life from most seeds before it really begins.

In the coastal ranges there is a harvest about every seven years, explains Bruce Devitt, the forester in charge of the seed operation. On the higher ranges it may come just once in 14 years.

But 1966 is a harvest year. And right now the seed centre is busy processing 33,000 bushels of cones, mostly from fir but some spruce and hemlock too.

Forty thousand fir trees can spring from a pound of seed. The seed centre is now gathering 16,000 pounds of seed which will some day reforest 800,000 acres.

This means those who work for the nursery can take a somewhat different perspective on their labors.

Take Michael Hill of Duncan, for instance. For four weeks in September this teenager climbed hardy young firs near the upper reaches of the Gordon River to pluck their cones. From the fruits of his labors will some day blossom a forest stretching over 7,300 acres — about the size of the city of Victoria.

The centre at Duncan processes the tree seed for the entire province. Here the cones come to be dumped from their sacks, spread on tiers of shallow trays and then dried in a walk-in kiln for 24 hours.

In this gentle bake at 110 degrees Fahrenheit the tiny petals open and the seeds can be shaken free in a tumbler and cleaned through screening.

Experience had taught that the seeds wait best at zero degrees and eight per cent moisture content. So this is how they stay in a giant ice box, rows and rows of plastic bagfuls for they represent a supply which might have to last a decade.

The seed centre then harvests and holds the seed for the nurseries where seedlings are given a two-year headstart in life before they are planted in the meadows left by the logger.

There are six major government tree nurseries in B.C. The one at Duncan is in two plots, 30 acres alongside the seed centre and 60 acres down the road at Koksilah.

Here the seeds are planted, the soil fertilized, the gardens weeded and the roots of the seedlings pruned before they are dug out, graded, counted, packaged and shipped.

Seedlings natured by man aren't intended to fill all the gaps left by lumbering, says Alf Bamford, second in command of the reforestation division.

Foresters calculate only 30 per cent of the open land needs planting. Nature will fill the rest.

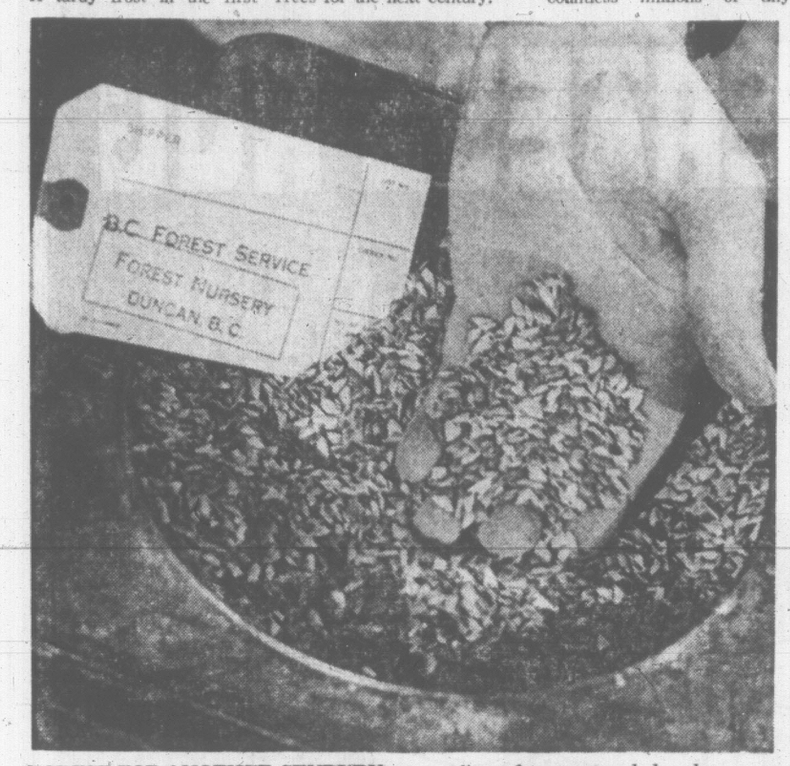
The Duncan nursery can raise about 16 million seedlings a year. Across the province the target is 75 million seedlings by 1975. This will plant about 150,000 acres, an estimated 30 per cent of the timber cut at that time.

It's a long-term business.

Those at the nursery stage will never live to see their work bear all its fruit.

For seedlings planted in the coastal range now will produce a light harvest 40 years from now and will be finally lumbered off within 80 years.

And a little tree from the nursery this year dug into some interior plateau may not be cut until the year 2100.



FOREST FOR ANOTHER CENTURY will begin with these seeds, now being harvested from 33,000 bushels of cones at the Duncan seed centre. The quality of cones needed only comes along every 7 to 14 years. This is such a year. The last harvest was in 1959.

CONE HARVEST BEGINS with the boys who climb the vigorous young trees with hooked stick and sack. It takes about two bushels of cones to produce a pound of fir seed. But from this pound of seed 40,000 trees may someday spring. Seeds collected this year may have to last tree nurseries for the next 10 years, until Nature produces bumper harvest.

TWO YEARS OF BABYING in the nursery produces the hardy seedlings needed to survive when planted in the gaps left by loggers. Some seedlings on the coastal range will be ready to cut within 40 years. Others in the Interior won't be logged for over a century.

Teen-Towners Hanging On, Extend Option on Centre

DUNCAN—Teen Town members Tuesday evening agreed to put up $500 to extend the option on a downtown building to be used as a recreation hall.

A five-member committee was appointed to revive the currently defunct Cowichan Community Centre Association, which will act as administrative body of the $17,500 former frozen food centre.

Ald. James Saunders said he is sure city council will accept the association as a responsible body to underwrite the purchase.

The present $300 option expires at midnight tonight.

Municipal council candidate Joseph Haddock said: "If we can get 20 people to each guarantee $1,000 I'm sure the teenagers would raise the balance of the money within six months."

$1,000 PLEDGE

Mr. Haddock followed the example of Ald. Saunders in offering to sign a $1,000 pledge.

Coun. Gerry Smith of North Cowichan, said: "I'm willing now to go back to North Cowichan council and recommend financial aid for this project.

"I guarantee to do my best to get you a donation."

Members of the new committee are John Sanders, chairman, Ald. James Saunders, Joseph Haddock, Mrs. Bernie Falconberg and Roy Wilson.

Forty attended the public meeting to enlist support for the project.

HOBBYCRAFT

Jim Quaife, adult adviser to Teen Town, said the aim is to provide youth with hobbycraft facilities, a meeting place for old people, and renovate the building to accommodate Duncan Drama and Duncan Music clubs.

Down payment for the building is $6,700 with monthly payments of $150.

Mr. Quaife said: "We don't have any recreation facilities in this area at present.

"To date Teen Town has raised $3,500 and can double that in another 30 days."

ISLAND DIGEST

Ambulance Complaints 'Unwarranted'

PORT ALBERNI — The local ambulance service, which has come in for considerable criticism in past months, was given a clean bill of health Tuesday by city manager H. D. Thain.

Following investigations into 10 specific complaints, the city manager reported that in each case the complaints were unwarranted.

The complaints alleged delays in answering calls, mishandling of patients, and lack of qualifications on the part of attendants.

Having queried hospital authorities and doctors, Mr. Thain says in his report: "The doctors were unanimous in their opinion that the ambulance service was operating satisfactorily.

"There were no complaints of mishandling, or undue delay in the service which may have been prejudicial to the health of the patient."

He said Ed Mill, who operates the service, had several years experience in handling ambulance calls in Manitoba and also spent several years during the war evacuating front line casualties.

Late Report From Zeballos

VANCOUVER (CP)—Stanely Jones has been re-elected chairman of the Zeballos village commission by acclamation, it was announced today.

News of the election—the last nomination in B.C. to be announced for the Dec. 10 elections—was telephoned to Vancouver by officials of the Vancouver Island village.

Officers Named

FULFORD—Officers elected at the annual meeting of Fulford Sea Scouts were: Leslie Mollet, chairman of the group committee; Mrs. J. B. Stewart, Mrs. Hattie Stewart, Norman Shaw, Bob Patterson and E. R. Olson.

FREE BAIT, ADVICE

Rat War Declared At Port Alberni

PORT ALBERNI — A "Get-That-Rat" campaign has been started here.

The campaign is designed to rid the city of the rodents which have been sighted in residential areas away from the waterfront.

City aldermen and city managers of Port Alberni and Alberni have agreed to detail a city employee to act as chief rat exterminator.

FREE BAIT

Residents with a rat problem can contact the employee who will provide free rat bait and advice on how to use it.

In addition, the city dump will be open Sundays to allow residents to dispose of unwanted garbage.

Residents have been warned to remove all food sources, cover and brace garbage cans and remove old lumber and refuse which serves as a nesting ground for the rats.

Downtown businessmen and waterfront industries will also be asked to co-operate.

At least one case of a child being bitten has been reported.

And this is the time of year when rats are in search of a comfortable home for the winter.

Lack of Indians on Jury Cited in Islander's Appeal

VANCOUVER —(CP)—Decision on a murder conviction appeal, based on a claim there were no Indians on the jury, has been reserved by the British Columbia Court of Appeal.

Jackson Ginger, a Port Alberni Indian, is serving a life sentence for the July 20, 1965, non-capital murder of Violet Jones, 16, whose body was found near a Port Alberni CPR roundhouse.

Lawyer Tom Berger said Ginger did not get a fair hearing because he was not tried by a jury of his peers. He said no Indian could get on the jury because there were no Indians on the 150-man jury "array" from which the jury was selected.

END OF AN ERA

Indian Hospital Closes

NANAIMO — The Indian hospital here closed its doors today.

The last few patients were either discharged or transferred to general hospitals to mark the end of an era.

Closure has been made possible by the tremendous decrease in tuberculosis patients and increased general hospital facilities in the Nanaimo area.

WAITING LIST

In 1947, the Indian hospital's 220 beds were full and there was a long waiting list.

In the last four years there has been only one death and less and less demand for the hospital's inadequate facilities.

Said former hospital administrator, Dr. C. S. Gamble: "We are improperly staffed and equipped for general hospital work.

"Why should the Indian have to get anything but the best?"

No decision has yet been made on what to do with the old hospital buildings.

Andy Stephen Looks at TV

No matter what Canadians think of their television programming, some of the CBC-TV produced shows do enjoy exposure in other countries.

Four such TV programs or series of programs have recently been sold to outside broadcasting organizations by the CBC's Overseas and Foreign Relations (Export Sales) division.

Stephen

The National Educational Network in the U.S. has purchased 143 episodes of the award-winning Friend Giant children's series. Last year at this time N.E.T. bought 52 episodes of the same series. The Friendly Giant, created by and starring Robert Homme, is in its eighth year on CBC-TV and has won Ohio, Sylvania and Liberty awards.

The Eastern Educational Network in the U.S. has purchased 100 episodes of Misterogers, a 15-minute children's puppet program, written by Fred Rogers, who also provides all the puppers' voices.

N.E.T. Tokyo, a Japanese network, has purchased 26 quarter-hours of the instructional Stan Leonard golf series.

The Gift, a poetic documentary telling the story of a Japanese girl who survived the atomic holocaust at Hiroshima, has been sold to Netherlands Television. The Gift was produced by Ron Kelly and won the Directors' Guild of Canada award last year.

The 13-week series, This Land of Ours, filmed across Canada and produced by CBC's farms and fisheries department, returns for a second season on Jan. 7.

The series is designed to show the importance of Canada's natural resources to its residents. These resources include wildlife, agriculture, fishing, forestry, water and soil conservation.

In addition, the series shows the experiences and attitudes of people in rural areas, particularly those earning a living from one of these resources.

A cougar hunt in Alberta and an overnight canoe trip by Boy Scouts in Northern Ontario's Algonquin Park are two of the features to be presented.

The series is worthy of attention for the publicly-owned corporation does a thoroughly good job on such programs.

"S. Hurok Presents," a 90-minute musical tribute to impresario Sol Hurok, will be colorcast on Channel 12 at 10:30 p.m., Dec. 6.

Artists who will appear include singer Marian Anderson as narrator, pianist Van Cliburn, violinist Isaac Stern, guitarist Andres Segovia, prima ballerina Maya Plisetskaya and members of the Bolshoi Ballet.

$100 Billion 'Indemnity' Proposed

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Writer Harry Golden, himself a ghetto alumnus, proposed today that the Negro be paid a $100 billion "indemnity" for the centuries he has spent locked away from the mainstream of American life.

"The war to keep the Negro securely locked away has been lost. The Negro has won," he said. "He deserves back pay. We had them locked away during the greatest wealth-producing period in the history of the world, such a period will never come again."

Golden, publisher of the weekly Carolina Israelite and author of a number of best-sellers, suggested that the money be spent over a 10-year period for increased welfare, education, vocational training and housing aid.

"We must say to ourselves . . . that we will provide an adequate living for those who became adults in the segregated society and who may not be able to compete in the industrial world of today. . . .

"This is an 'indemnity' paid not to a foreign power but to ourselves," he said in testimony prepared for a senate subcommittee studying the problems of the cities. "If we only got 10 W. C. Handys out of it, or one George Washington Carver, it will have repaid us a thousand-fold."

have the right to belong to the union of his choice, or no union for that matter, through majority decision.

"The work force at Harmac in our opinion have been denied this right. This is contrary to the whole concept of the labor movement in a democratic country.

ASSISTED

"We mention the Harmac episode to point out that having remained silent while this was going on we assisted in bringing about the mess that now is staring us in the face."

Mr. Thompson was strongly critical of the bugging incident.

It behooved labor to "clean up and prevent such unsavory messes" and this was why his local proposed the three points mentioned earlier.

"We feel strongly that the B.C. labor movement must take a forthright position as suggested.

"Keeping silent or sweeping this filthy mess under the rug is not in the best interest of the membership. To leave this clean-up task for Premier Bennett and the employers would be criminal neglect on our part."

'FAIL MISERABLY'

In a covering letter to all labor councils and union locals in B.C., Mr. Thompson said:

"Far too often within the house of labor we fail miserably in correcting our own shortcomings and condemning the, at times, undesirable behavior of some of our own leading lights.

"Unfortunately by remaining silent we inevitably bring about still more harm to ourselves. Our enemies see to that.

"Many rank and file members, and the public at large, are asking the question about the bugging incident: 'What is organized labor doing about this?'

"And all that we can say, up until now, is absolutely nothing.

"The officers of Local 1-217 IWA strongly urge that you lend your voice in condemning these activities that we all deplore."

Mr. O'Neal could not be reached this morning for a reply to the comments.

Pilot Training Open To All Servicemen

Training to become aircraft pilots will be taken by some sailors, soldiers and airmen on an integrated basis early next year for the first time.

Selection of candidates from applicants already in the service — officers and men — will be made this fall. RCAF navigators who apply for pilot training have particularly good chance of being accepted as their airerew experience will reduce the conversion training required.

Initial training will be done on the Tutor jet training plane with advanced training on other types of aircraft. It normally takes about a year to turn out a pilot.

Candidates who show a flair for jet flying may be selected for training on the CF104 Starfighter. This is the longest course and takes about another year to qualify as a pilot on the supersonic Starfighter.

Successful candidates will become members of the public component of their respective services and will eventually become part of an integrated pilot list.

It's possible that a navy or army officer who successfully completes the pilot course could conceivably become a Starfighter pilot or an air force pilot could find himself flying an RCN Tracker.

capital. (At Sept. 30, 1966, Mercantile's total assets were $226,067,000 which is already over the limit of 20 times its authorized capital of $10 millions.) The ratio between authorized capital and total assets of other Canadian banks runs between 40 and 62.

DISCRIMINATION

The American state department is so vitally concerned about our proposed action because, in its view, it constitutes retroactive discrimination against an existing American corporate subsidiary in Canada.

The Americans don't want to see a precedent set which would open the door to similar legislative steps being taken against their corporate interests in other parts of the world. (Citibank itself operates 192 branches in 60 countries.)

INTENSE LOBBYING

To head off the Canadian legislation, the U.S. embassy in Ottawa has been engaged in an unusually intense lobbying effort. Executives of Canadian chartered banks are reported to have been contacted by members of the embassy staff and warned in unsubtle terms of the retaliatory measures that might be taken, if the legislation is passed. Canadian directors of Mercantile have also been active lobbyists—particularly Senator Louis Gelinas and A. T. Seedhouse, president of Manufacturers Life Insurance Co. The Toronto-based insurance firm underwrites half its new business in the U.S., and presumably fears that retaliatory measures might affect that lucrative market.

The full force of Mercantile's case will be made next Thursday, when executives of Mercantile are due to appear before the Commons committee on finance, trade and economic matters.

The bank's annual meeting is being held in Montreal Dec. 14.

THIRD LARGEST

The First National City Bank of New York (or Citibank, as it's known in financial circles) is the third largest banking institution in the U.S. and the third largest in the world. Its financial resources of $14 billion are twice those of Canada's largest bank (The Royal) and about half those of Canada's entire banking system. No other bank in the world operates on such a large scale in so many countries. In Canada the Mercantile now has offices in Halifax, Quebec City, Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg, Calgary and Vancouver.

Citibank came to Canada in 1963, by acquiring the assets of the Mercantile, then controlled by Nationale Handelsbank of Amsterdam. Citibank chairman James S. Rockefeller and Mercantile president R. P. MacFadden came to see Walter Gordon on July 18, 1963, and according to civil servants who attended the meeting, told the then finance minister that they "had made arrangements to acquire the shares of Mercantile, but that no firm commitment had been made."

Gordon warned the bankers that if they go ahead "it might tend to encourage restrictive legislation" and advised them not to proceed. "In other words, if we do so, it will be at our own peril," Rockefeller replied, and Gordon acknowledged that he would not have volunteered this expression, but that he thought Mr. Rockefeller had sized up the situation correctly.

This incident has become the key on which the whole controversy turns. The Canadian government claims that its legislation cannot be considered retroactive, since Citibank executives were warned they would face discriminatory action if they proceeded with the purchase. When Walter Gordon alluded to his conversations with Rockefeller and MacFadden in the House of Commons earlier this year, Mitchell Sharp, who had succeeded him as minister of finance, telephoned the Mercantile president, to suggest that the controversy be settled without any public furor. But despite his warning, Mr. MacFadden issued a statement, which in effect, called Walter Gordon a liar. ("our understanding of what transpired at the meeting is not in accord with his.")

SUPPORT GORDON

The government then published a memorandum signed by Deputy Minister of Finance Bob Bryce and Inspector General of Banks C. F. Elderkin — two of Ottawa's most respected public servants — which supported the Gordon version.

The two main factors which have caused the government's concern about Mercantile having unlimited access to the Canadian money market are these:

- That if left to expand without limits, Mercantile might have easy access to many of the big banking accounts in Canada. Presumably it could persuade the American parent companies (who are its customers in the U.S.) to switch the accounts of their Canadian subsidiaries to Mercantile.
- The fact that Mercantile could, if it wanted to, disregard monetary policies laid down by the Bank of Canada. Unlike the Canadian banks, it has direct access to extra funds. (In the 17 months between Nov. 30, 1963 and April 30, 1965, for example, Mercantile's assets jumped 50 per cent partly because of the infusion of outside funds.

The outcome of the dispute over the rights and wrongs of the Mercantile case remains far from clear. But at the moment, neither Washington nor Ottawa appears ready to give way.

MAN, WIFE

$2 Million Stock Theft Arrests Made

TORONTO (CP) — A Boston man and his wife were arrested here Tuesday in connection with a $2,000,000 stock robbery in New York City.

Detectives arrested Samuel Greene, 36, and his wife Gloria, 32, and charged them with fraud, possession of stolen goods and possession of counterfeit money.

On Nov. 15 a Toronto brokerage house bought an International Business Machines stock certificate for $37,917. The money was deposited in a local bank.

Monday the brokerage house learned that the stock had been stolen in New York.

Police learned a taxi was to pick up the cheque Tuesday and take it to a downtown intersection where a man had arranged to pick it up. A detective hid on the floor of the cab and arrested the man when he showed up.

The woman was arrested later in a telephone booth in front of Union Station.

Two men have already been arrested in Montreal and charged with possession of $250,000 worth of the stock.

GALE-LASHED LAKE HURON

Ore Ship Missing, 33 Feared Drowned

HARBOR BEACH, Mich. (UPI)—A Great Lakes ore ship with 33 men aboard was reported missing and feared sunk in gale-lashed Lake Huron today. The coast guard reported at least two bodies had been recovered in the area.

The coast guard station in Detroit said the 600-foot Daniel J. Morell owned by the Bethlehem Steel Co., had not been heard from since 12:15 p.m Tuesday.

The lake has been swept by full gale winds and near blizzard conditions for the last two days.

One body was found floating amid wood and other debris. His life jacket bore the inscription "Daniel J. Morell."

A massive sea and air search was started immediately, but one rescue ship reported there were no signs of life in the area.

New Car Safety Plans Unveiled

U.S. Highway Safety Chief Reveals 23 Proposals for 1968 Models

DETROIT (AP) —The four largest automakers had the word today on what they must do to make 1968 cars safer. Their first reaction indicated they were neither surprised nor disturbed by it.

The word came Tuesday night from Dr. William Haddon Jr., the recently named U.S. highway safety boss, as he released 23 safety proposals described only in capsule form.

Dr. Haddon said many of them are "already met by most of the vehicles to which they would apply."

The newly created National Traffic and Highway Safety Agency is expected to release detailed, technical versions of the proposals.

Dr. Haddon unveiled the proposals at a dinner sponsored by the Detroit Automobile Show. It marked his first meeting with the four auto company presidents.

Here are the 23 safety standards for 1968 model automobiles:

1. Standard location and identification of certain controls.

SHIFT IN SEQUENCE

2. Requirements that automatic transmissions have a braking effect, that transmission shift levers are in the same sequence in all cars and for a device to prevent accidental starting of an auto with a transmission in drive position.
3. Standards to eliminate frost and fog conditions on windshields.
4. Requirements for performance of windshield wiping and washing systems.
5. Assurance of adequate braking performance with hydraulic and parking brake systems in case of partial system failure.
6. Standards to reduce chances of brake failure due to fluid leakage from hydraulic hoses.
7. Reduction of reflection from instrument lights and shiny hardware in the driver's field of view.
8. Requirements for lamps, reflective devices and other equipment used for lighting and signaling.
9. Standards for tire strength.
10. Assurances that tires and rims will not be overloaded under reasonable conditions.
11. Rear view mirrors providing a clear, undistorted and reasonably unobstructed view to the rear.
12. Protection of car occupants from injury in any interior impact from instrument panels, seat backs, sun visors, arm rests and other projections.
13. Head restraints (often called head rests) to reduce frequency and severity of whip lash-type neck injuries in rear end collisions.
14. Steering control systems that will absorb force and minimize chest, neck and facial injuries from any impact with the steering device.
15. Limitation of how the steering control extends into the car, to reduce chances of impaling a driver in a collision.
16. Protection against car occupants being cut from, or thrown through, windows.
17. Standards to keep doors from snapping open during a crash.
18. Assurance that seats are anchored securely.
19. Installation of seat belts in all forward-facing seats, except jump seats.
20. Specific standards for seat belt assembly.
21. Strong anchoring of all seat belts.
22. A ban against any hub caps, wheel nuts or wheel discs with projections or other factors that might be hazardous to pedestrians or cyclists.
23. Standards for the strength and integrity of fuel tanks and connections to minimize any fire hazard as a result of collision.

Saanich No. 4 in Province

Saanich is the fourth biggest incorporated area in B.C.

Latest census figures show only Vancouver, Burnaby and Surrey ahead of Saanich.

The 1966 figures were given by Saanich Reeve High Curtis, following the census taken earlier this year.

The figures confirmed earlier expectations that more people live in Saanich than Victoria, making Saanich the biggest incorporated area on Vancouver Island.

The province-wide figures show the city of Vancouver well in front with 408,105 residents.

Second was Burnaby with 111,093 and third was Surrey with 80,741.

Then came Saanich with 58,397, just ahead of the city of Victoria with 56,464.

They were followed by such centres as Richmond, North Vancouver, Coquitlam and New Westminster.

SOLUTION FRIDAY

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Eay Turner, age 11, of Nashville, Tenn., for her question:

What are radioisotopes?

Radioactive and isotope are two words of the Atomic Age. They teamed up to give us the word radioisotope. Radioactive in now an everyday word and most of us know what it means. The isotope is not so well known but it is much a part of the Atomic Age as radioactivity.

An isotope belongs in the miniature world of atoms. In fact it is an atom of a certain kind. It is a sort of stand-in or substitute for another atom almost like itself. The only difference is that the isotope is a trifle heavier or lighter than its brother atom. All the atoms of an element such as carbon or hydrogen are basically alike. Every carbon atom has six proton particles in its nucleus and every hydrogen atom has only one of these positively charged protons.

As small as it is, a proton has mass that adds to the weight of an atom. A neutron has no electric charge but it equals the mass of a proton, and most atoms have neutrons that add to their weight. If an atom gains or loses a proton it becomes an atom of some other element. Extra protons add weight, but they do not make a different atom. A few atoms in every sample of hydrogen have one or two extra protons. The same is true of carbon and most other elements. Atoms that are alike in every way except weight are called isotopes.

Overweight, however, can upset the balance of an atom. When there are too many particles in the nucleus, it tends to break apart. And this does not happen gently. The heart of the atom is held together with tremendous force and when it splits some of this is released as nuclear energy. The shattering atom is radioactive.

Used as Tracer Materials

Heavy atoms such as uranium are radioactive, whether they have extra neutrons or not. But too many extra neutrons may upset even the smallest atoms and make them radioactive. Deutrium, alias heavy hydrogen, is not radioactive though it has one proton more than normal. Tritium, with two extra protons, is a radioactive isotope of hydrogen. Carbon 14, alias radiocarbon, is a topheavy isotope of carbon. Harmless amounts of these and other radioactive isotopes are all around us.

Nuclear physicists discover and create many new radioisotopes. Researchers in biology often use them as tracer materials. A trace of radiophosphorus travels with normal phosphorus through a plant or animal. But it clicks off its identity on a Geiger counter. A researcher can trace it from cell to cell — and hence the normal phosphorus that goes with it. Tiny doses of radioisotopes are being used to reveal the hidden processes that go on inside living plants and animals.

Radioisotopes have industrial uses but their greatest value is in the life sciences of biology. A tracer of radioactive iodine clicks off the normal route to the thyroid gland. Other radioisotopes point out the exact location of diseased cells and tissues. Others solve problems in the animal world.

Andy sends a 15-inch World Book Globe to Henry Hamm, age 11, of Fox Lake, Ill., for his question:

When does a baby skunk get his scent?

A baby skunk is born blind and bare. He has a pair of budding scent glands at the base of his tail but the little fellow is much too helpless to use them. For the first three weeks of life, he cannot even open his eyes. But already he is sprouting a furry coat of black and white and in the next two weeks he does a great deal of growing up.

The baby skunk may have three to seven brothers and sisters. Mrs. Skunk is one of the best mothers of the wild woods and her babies are tended with loving care. At the age of five weeks, she begins their outdoor education and during their first summer they learn the proper way to use their defensive scent glands.

PEDICABS, three-wheeled vehicles capable of carrying two passengers, will form part of the transportation system at the 1967 Montreal World's Fair. Four-year-old Andrew Gow enjoys a preview tour with Expo hostess Micheline Gaboury. Propelling pedicab is Jeff Fripp, of Tilden Rent-a-Car Company, which has been granted the concession. YOUR HEALTH

Few Rules on How To Stop Worrying

By DR. W. C. ALVAREZ

A number of people have written to say that they would like a copy of the rules about worrying that they once heard me tell about. These rules were set down many years ago by the great Dr. Austen Riggs, who was a wise psychiatrist. He used to say that much of nervous illness is due to worry, and often the worry that caused so much trouble could easily have been avoided.

Alvarez

He said: 1. Ask yourself: Is it really my worry? For instance, a mother may be worrying herself sick because her daughter is not accepting a beau who keeps proposing. But that is not the mother's worry — hence she should leave it alone.

2. If it is your worry, can you attend to it now? If not, then leave it until you can do something about it. The other day I saw the owner of a little store who was worrying terribly for fear her rent would be raised. I asked, "When is your lease up?"

And she said, "The end of next June."

That was many months away, so I said, according to Dr. Riggs, "You should not be worrying about that now; wait until later."

3. If it is your worry and you can handle the problem now, but you do not know what decision to make, get the help of an expert. Go to a good doctor, lawyer, banker, realtor, or income tax expert, and ask his advice and help.

For example, a while ago, a patient of mine was worried sick because a wealthy aunt had died and left her a run-down apartment. She did not know what to do with it. I found for her a realtor who was an expert in handling run-down apartments, and after some study of the problem, he showed her how to get rid of the place at a profit to herself.

4. Then, after the worry is settled, leave it alone. Don't go back to it, as thousands of people do. Make up your mind and then stick by your decision.

I would add still another admonition to these rules, which is, don't do your worrying at night.

THIS is a closeup photograph of crater Copernicus, a prominent feature on the face of the moon. It was taken November 23 by Lunar Orbiter II satellite and released today in Washington. The view looks due north. Mountains rising from the crater's floor are 1,000 feet high with slopes up to 30 degrees. The 3,000-foot mountain on the horizon, left, is the Gay-Lussac Promontory in the Carpathian Mountains. From the horizon to the base of the photograph is about 150 miles. The horizontal distance is about 17 miles. Lunar Orbiter was 28.4 miles above the moon and about 150 miles due south of Copernicus when the picture was recorded. The lines on the picture are caused when the completed picture is assembled. It is received in strips, which must be matched later. (AP Wirephoto.)

Summit 'In Air' Over Rhodesia

Salisbury Talks Continue

SALISBURY (Reuters) —Prime Minister Ian Smith today conferred with Morrice James, the British envoy sent here to continue negotiations on the year-old Rhodesian independence deadlock.

They were together about 45 minutes in the prime minister's city office, a Rhodesian spokesman said, but did not give any other details.

The announcement that the two men had met increased the secrecy already surrounding the negotiations.

Informed sources said they understood the meeting took place before a special Rhodesian cabinet meeting about noon. Smith said earlier he did not think he would meet James today.

Smith's cabinet meeting was the second in two days—an unusual event.

MEETS WITH GIBBS

James, a high-ranking official of the British Commonwealth office, arrived in Salisbury Tuesday night and today talked with Governor Sir Humphrey Gibbs at Government House.

Without satisfactory assurances from Smith's white minority regime by today, British Prime Minister Wilson is pledged to take the issue of mandatory sanctions to the United Nations by the end of the year. But he was believed to be ready to delay this last resort for a while.

The two sides are divided about the question of progress to majority rule for Rhodesia's 4,000,000 Negroes and a formula for ending what Britain tedms the unconstitutional condition of the Smith regime.

Wilson-Smith Meeting Possible

LONDON (AFB) — The Daily Express, in a dispatch from Salisbury, says a summit meeting between British Prime Minister Wilson and Rhodesian Premier Ian Smith "seems to be in the air".

A decisive tete-a-tete between the British and Rhodesian leaders could take place in Blantyre, Malawi, on the condition that the talks scheduled for today in Salisbury, the Rhodesian capital, between special envoy Sir Morrice James and Smith achieve a positive result, the paper reports.

The paper's optimistic forecast was based on statements Wilson is reported to have made in private.

Though in the Commons Tuesday the prime minister spoke of only a "small movement" from Salisbury, The Express says he actually believed that Smith made "considerable concessions".

U.S. Warns Canada On New Bank Act

By PETER NEWMAN
Special to The Times

OTTAWA— American-Canadian relations, already ruffled by our new China policy, may soon escalate into an even more unpleasant phase.

Newman

At issue is a clause in the revision of the Bank Act, now before Parliament, which would severely limit the future growth here of the Mercantile Bank of Canada, a wholly-owned subsidiary of the First National City Bank of New York.

Washington sources indicate that this dispute is the subject of a private diplomatic note to the Canadian government, from the U.S. State Department. The note is described by those who have read it as one of the toughest diplomatic initiatives that has ever been directed at Canada by the U.S. It is said to call the Canadian action unacceptable and even to threaten retaliation, if it is not withdrawn.

RESTRICTS HOLDINGS

The basis of the American complaint is the clause that restricts non-Canadian holdings in any chartered bank to 25 per cent and limits to 10 per cent the holdings of any shareholder. If either of these provisions is violated—and Mercantile violates them both—the foreign-owned bank will be prohibited from increasing its assets to more than 20 times its authorized

3 CEASEFIRE PERIODS AGREED IN VIET WAR

SAIGON (UPI) — United States and South Vietnamese forces today promised to observe 48-hour ceasefires throughout Viet Nam during the Christmas and New Year's holiday—provided Communist forces do the same.

The order suspending fighting by all allied forces was signed by South Vietnamese Premier Nguyen Cao Ky and will temporarily bring to a halt all combat operations, including United States bombing of North Viet Nam.

It went one step further than a similar ceasefire pledge announced by Communists earlier, providing in addition for a four-day combat truce during the Asian lunar new year beginning February 8.

Storm Dumps Snow

VANCOUVER (CP)—Snow plows were in operation late Tuesday and early today to keep traffic moving through the Fraser Valley after four inches of snow fell in the area during a 12-hour period.

The snowfall, first major storm of the season, left the Trans-Canada and Hope-Princeton Highways in slippery, but passable condition. Both highways have been sanded, but police warned that cars using them should be equipped with snow tires.

In other parts of the province, Prince George recorded a record low temperature of zero Tuesday. Previous low for that date was 14 above, set in 1919.

The weather office at Vancouver said cold Arctic air would continue to cover the province east of the coastal mountain range with some seepage to the coast through valleys today.

The weatherman predicts Thursday will be cloudy east of the mountains with rain and snow in some areas.

Scandinavians Merge Tariff Round Policies

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) (AP) — The four Scandinavian countries today merged into a single negotiating bloc within the Kennedy round negotiations and promptly threatened to withdraw a number of their industrial offers if the six European Common Market countries do not improve theirs.

The threat followed an announcement that Sweden, Norway and Denmark have agreed to a 50-per-cent across-the-board cut in all industrial tariffs. The fourth country, Finland, submitted a small list of exceptions. The Kennedy round, initiated by the late U.S. president, aims at a 50-per-cent cut in all industrial and agricultural tariffs.

But Ambassador Nils Montan of Sweden, appointed chief Scandinavian negotiator, told a press conference:

"If better offers are not forthcoming from the Common Market, we will withdraw offers we have made which are of interest to the other side."

He declined to give details or name a deadline.

Scandinavia is the market's most important single export market—13.5 per cent of Common Market exports go to the four countries. The Common Market enjoys a trade surplus of $1,300,000,000 with Scandinavia.

The Common Market countries are France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — A one per cent increase in Newfoundland's five per cent sales tax was forecast in the speech from the throne read today at the opening of the provincial legislature.

Settlement This Week Or Else . . .

LONDON (AP) — The British government plans to ask the United Nations this weekend for compulsory economic sanctions against Rhodesia if Prime Minister Ian Smith does not come to terms by then, government sources report.

The sources said Prime Minister Wilson apparently hopes the threat of such a request to the Security Council will prompt Smith to accept a settlement of the year-old rebellion by the African territory's white minority.

Wilson won cabinet approval of the request Tuesday and told the House of Commons the UN action would be in effect before Christmas. UN approval of sanctions is considered certain since the General Assembly earlier this month voted overwhelmingly for Britain to use force, if necessary, to end the rebellion.

British authorities, however, were said to feel they still have about a week to work something out with Smith's regime since it will take about five days to set up a Security Council meeting

Mill Layoffs Begin Because of Dispute

The pulp production plant at Crofton was partially closed today, resulting in the layoff of 170 men.

B.C. Forest Products took the action, which was announced last Monday, because of the current shutdown of the British Columbia waterfront.

Jack Gallagher, industrial relations officer at the mill, said the dock dispute has left the company with three times the normal amount of pulp jammed into storage areas.

There was no more storage room available at the 950-ton a day plant.

Another 150 men will be out of work by the weekend unless the situation changes

Production of newsprint will continue as long as it can be shipped by rail or barge.

MacMillan Bloedel said the dispute will force closures at some mills this Friday.

STORAGE EXHAUSTED

"The company has notified its employees at Alberni Pacific Sawmill Division at Port Alberni and Vancouver Plywood Division, that production will come to a halt Friday unless shiploading is resumed. Storage space for the mills' products will be exhausted by that day.

"Closure of the Port Alberni sawmill and Vancouver plywood mill will put more than 1,700 men out of work, some 1,235 at the plywood mill and more than 500 at the sawmill."

A company spokesman said that closure of other mills on Vancouver Island and in the Greater Vancouver area will follow unless loading of ships resume.

The disruption of shipping will ultimately lead to the closing of all the company's wood product mills, involving some 4,300 employees. If the mills are forced to close, shutdown of the company's logging divisions, which employ almost 3,000 men, will follow.

'CRITICAL'

"The shortage of storage space is becoming critical at the mills because of our inability to move products to our export customers," said the company spokesman.

"The developing situation will not only create a hardship for our production employees but it also will not be received well by traditional customers for B.C forest products."

The strike by 190 dock foremen entered its 13th day today with the waterfront idle because companies won't hire longshoremen until the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union gives an assurance of no more slowdowns.

The union has said any slowdown is caused by the absence of experienced supervisors.

MASS MEETING

A mass meeting of Vancouver longshoremen was being held this afternoon. No similar meeting was called in Victoria although a meeting is expected later in the week.

About 3,000 longshoremen are out of work with only a hundred or two continuing to work bulk cargo shipments.

Sixty ships are waiting to be handled in Vancouver alone. There were no ships at Ogden Point this morning.

U THANT
. . . under pressure

UN Chief To Accept New Term?

UNITED NATIONS (AP)— United Nations headquarters buzzed with rumors today that U Thant had decided to stay on for a second five-year term as secretary-general of the world organization.

Thant had scheduled an announcement for this morning on his final decision, but this was postponed at the request of the UN Security Council.

The rumors came in the midst of intense activity among UN diplomats to persuade the secretary-general to reverse his earlier decision to leave at the end of the current General Assembly session, Dec. 20.

The members of the 15-member council were spearheading the move.

Many diplomats believe that the secretary-general eventually will bow to the pressure to remain for at least part of another five-year term despite his desire to return to private life. None could be found, however, who claimed to know definitely what Thant would do.

Thant told a reporter Monday night that he had reached a decision, but he refused to say what it was.

Informed quarters said the Security Council would meet Friday to make a formal request that the Burmese diplomat accept a new term.

UN Troops on Border Agreed to by Jordan

AMMAN, Jordan (UPI)— Jordanian King Hussein, blaming the powderkeg crisis in the Middle East on Soviet agitation, strove desperately today to turn aside new threats to his regime by hardline Arab extremeists and to establish a "balance of power" with Israel.

As tensions remained higher than at any time in the past decade, the young monarch summoned the Jordanian parliament to discuss the crisis.

In a conciliatory gesture, Hussein said at a news conference Jordan would agree to basing United Nations peacekeeping troops along the border with Israel.

As Hussein acted, Syrian radio reports told of a general strike and new demonstrations against him in the Gaza Strip.

Syria's ruling Baath socialist party called Tuesday for the overthrow of Hussein. Syria's rulers, long at odds with the Hashemite monarchy of Jordan, called on "rebellious forces in Jordan" to overthrow the 31-year-old king and "create the necessary climate for the return to palestine."

And in Cairo it was announced that the Arab League's defence council will hold an urgent meeting Dec. 7 to discuss the Middle East crisis.

Extraordinary security precautions remained in effect in Jordan, as Arabs began demonstrations to protest the 1947 United Nations resolution partitioning Palestine and leading to the establishment of Israel. There were fears the demonstrations would be turned into new protests against Hussein, whom extemists accuse of weakness in dealing with Israel.

SHARE WITH ASIAN CHILDREN FUND

Suddenly, Friends Transformed Into Killers

By CANDIDE TEMPLE

In India, where many of the men and women dress in tattered rags and saris and the children in nothing, clothing is needed as much as food.

Aid from the Unitarian Service Committee, backed by The Times' Share with Asian Children fund, often takes the form of needed garments, as well as Canadian milk and barley.

On her recent Asian trip to supervise USC relief projects, the agency's executive director, Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova, assisted at one clothing distribution in Indian, which, she recalls, made a "brutal impact" on her of the need for more aid.

With a USC doctor and an Indian midwife, Dr. Hitschmanova travelled to the small village of Villpatti outside Kodaikanal.

According to plan, they gave out tickets to the villagers, who would claim their clothing bundles later that morning — blankets, saris and baby clothes.

"We though we had it perfectly organized," Dr. Hitschmanova recalls, "and I was looking forward immensely to the distribution.

"The urgency to replace the dirty rags adults and children were wearing was only too obvious."

However, things did not go according to plan.

"The scene in front of our dispensary that morning I shall never forget.

"Not only had the 70 people come to whom we had given tickets, but several hundred others as well, since in typical Indian village style, everybody has to participate in everything that happens.

"And so every last living soul had turned up, hopefully expecting to receive his share when the distribution started."

Naturally there was not enough clothing to go around.

"As soon as I started handing out the first saris and blankets to ticket-holders, the fighting broke out.

"These were no longer men and women who had lived peacefully in the same community. Suddenly they had become competitors and enemies.

"It was absolutely horrifying to see human beings transformed into brutes, ready to kill a friend and neighbor for the sake of a garment worth a dollar."

"The scene in front of our dispensary that morning I shall never forget.

Victorians may help USC to continue their work through donations to The Times Share with Asian Children Fund, sent care of this newspaper or made at the main branch, Bank of Montreal, 1225 Douglas.

Homemade Bomb Found

TORONTO (CP)—Police found a homemade bomb on the lawn in front of the Yugoslavian consulate early today, a few hours after Serbian and Croation immigrants had demonstrated in front of the building.

The police bomb squad dismantled the small bomb, similar to a grenade. They said it didn't go off because the fuse system wasn't working properly.

ARSENIC FED TO GUESTS

AUCKLAND (Reuters) — A New Zealand hostess entertaining prominent international legal figures including Hazen Hansard of Montreal, former president of the Canadian Bar Association, fed them food containing arsenic and committed suicide herself by poisoning, a coroner reported here today.

The socially prominent woman, Mrs. Marjorie Edna Ellingham, 54, took care that other guests, including prominent visitors from Britain and Australia, should not be killed. She wanted it to appear they had food poisoning.

But one woman took home a portion of chicken for her 11-year-old son who died after eating it.

The coroner, A. D. Copeland, released details of the inquest into the deaths Easter Sunday, April 10, and of intensive investigation by police who questioned 1,400 persons about Mrs. Ellingham's activities.

The coroner found that Mrs. Ellingham committed suicide with arsenic and that the death of the boy, David Charles Davision, was due to arsenic poisoning.

Mrs. Ellingham, who took 10 times the amount of arsenic she gave anyone else, told guests not to worry if they felt ill as she had a doctor present.

Her personal physician told the inquest Mrs. Ellingham had a history of depression, with feelings of guilt over the earlier suicides of her mother and an uncle.

Arthur Mayse

The elk in its natural state is a lordly creature, but when it lies gut-shot and feebly kicking by a roadside, it makes an ugly sight. When the elk has been left to die by a sadistic vandal who shot just for the hell of it, the picture becomes uglier still. And when the slaughter takes place in a provincial park game reserve, the language I would apply to it does not belong in this family journal.

The shooting I refer to is but one of a number which, according to information received from official and private sources, have taken place within the Strathcona Park limits in recent months.

The total of elk assertedly killed or crippled may run as high as seven.

To it, you may add an undetermined number of blacktail deer, and one trumpeter swan.

All, my informants assert, fell victim to guns fetched in by the public roads that now traverse the parks. One of these is a link in the Gold River route. The other skirts Buttle Lake to Western Mines' Myra Creek beach-head.

Reports turned in to the RCMP at Gold River by B.C. Forest Service men include these specific claims:

That a bull elk was on one occasion found shot not far from the road. No attempt had been made to remove it; the beast was apparently gunned down and left to rot.

That another bull was discovered lying with antlers hacked off, where a poacher's bullets had felled it.

That a crippled cow elk was put out of her misery by a trucker who happened upon her, and buried under loose earth by a highways department bulldozer operator.

These qualify as known kills. Other sources insist that the tally runs much higher.

According to Inspector Robert Sinclair of the Fish and Wildlife Branch, only one man has so far been caught popping off within what was once a wilderness park and is still a game sanctuary.

This fellow, who gave a West Vancouver address, paid a $150 fine for dropping a deer.

But there are others—and will continue to be until or unless this rotten business can be made so costly by fine and prison term that the risk outweighs the "sport".

The fact that the guns have invaded Strathcona—a probability I warned against in this column months ago—does not reflect on our efficient but grimly under-staffed Fish and Wildlife Branch.

This month and last, its eight Vancouver Island wardens brought 55 Game Act and Firearms Act violators to court for a total of $4,695 in fines.

But eight game wardens are fantastically few for an area of close to 12,500 square miles. These are good men; they cannot, however, be everywhere at once.

The immediate blame for the situation lies with a group whom I will not dignify with the honest title of hunter. No fish or game club can reach these trigger-happy outlaws.

But the roads gave them entry, and despite all government persuasions, I cannot agree that these have any place in Strathcona.

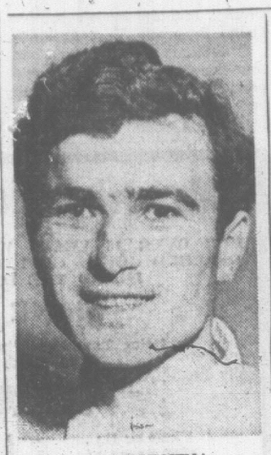
We had a park there of wild magnificence unmatched in a North America.

Untouched, it was an asset that could only have multiplied in value with the years. There is scarce a state in the American union which, today, would not prize and rigidly guard such a tract.

That it should have been esteemed so lightly, and that its violation should have been permitted on grounds so shaky, is no credit to this present government.

But we've been over all that before. It remains now for those who created the condition to minimize its evil effects as best they can.

One of those effects I have outlined for you here. It should be dealt with, fast and effectively . . . and I hope such action will be forthcoming.



VINKO KUCINA
. . . ordered out

SLAVS FIGHT OUSTER

Victoria's Yugoslavian community today launched a campaign to prevent the deportation of one of their countrymen.

And they're getting a strong assist from Victoria MP David Groos and city lawyer Douglas A. M. Patterson.

The man ordered deported is Vinko Kucina, 26, a laborer who has worked here four months since jumping ship in Quebec to escape his Communist-controlled country.

His story was told The Times by his cousin, Milko Jadresko, 120 Dallas, a landscape gardener who came to Canada as an immigrant 10 years ago. Mr. Jadresko has been in Victoria since 1963.

THREE ESCAPE BIDS

He said he grew up with Vinko Kucina in a small village in Yugoslavia. He said Mr. Jucina has three times attempted to escape from behind the iron curtain, the first time when he was under 16. On his second attempt he was jailed for 40 days.

Mr. Jadresko says if Mr. Kucina is returned now he will be in serious trouble, he will lose his passport, his job on a ship and will be called a deserter and looked down upon.

SMUGGLED WIFE

Mr. Jadresko came to Canada by jumping a ship in Italy after smuggling his wife there in a clothes cupboard. In Italy, where the first of their four children was born seven days later, he was able to arrange legal immigration to Canada.

But since then Italy has refused to accept Yugoslavian refugees. For Vinko Kucina there was no avenue of escape except to do what he did — jump ship in Canada. Then he reported to immigration officials in Vancouver.

"We know what he did was illegal. But he did not know," said Mr. Jadresko.

He has put up $1,000 bond for his cousin and guaranteed he will report weekly to immigration authorities.

Last week Ottawa ruled that Mr. Kucina must be deported. But Mr. Jadresko has obtained a promise from Mr. Groos that he will help.

PETITION SIGNED

Mr. Groos phoned Mr. Jadresko twice Tuesday and left instructions for him to phone back if any attempt is made to take Mr. Kucina into custody. Mr. Groos said he is hopeful Mr. Kucina will be allowed to stay.

Meantime 44 Yugoslavian friends here have signed a petition asking Mr. Kucina be permitted to remain. They swear he would make a first class citizen as Mr. Jadresko has done.

Mr. Kucina has a wife and child in Yugoslavia and if he is permitted to remain he would then be able to apply to bring them out, Mr. Jadresko says.

'May Day' Search Under Way

Department of Transport officials reported receiving a distress signal from a ship early today which indicated it was taking water in the forward hold 150 miles west of the Queen Charlotte Islands.

The U.S. Coast Guard in Juneau, Alaska, is co-ordinating the search for the vessel, whose name was not distinguishable over the radio.

An RCAF Neptune, an anti-submarine patrol aircraft from Comox, reported no sign of the ship after searching the area for an hour and a half today. A U.S. Coast Guard craft and two merchant vessels were en route to join the search.

Careless Drivers Pay Fines of $35

Fined $35 each today in traffic court on careless driving charges were Craig Matthews, 1505 Bay, and Verna Hughes, 1229 Juno.

Fire Hits Boat

U.S. Ship's Bow Damage Heavy

The bow of the $200,000 United States torpedo recovery boat Telic Belle was extensively damaged by fire today at Nanaimo.

Firemen had to cut holes in the 80-foot Seattle vessel to get at the fire, which broke out while the boat was berthed.

Flames did not reach the vessel's forward fuel tanks.

Crewman Jim Krueger said the fire appeared to start under a generator.

WIRING BURNED

Skipper A. G. Rodal said the main damage was to wiring but some equipment in the bow received water damage.

The Telic Belle, on contract to the U.S. Navy for recovery work on the torpedo range near Nanoose, about 12 miles north of Nanaimo, is equipped with underwater television cameras.

Restoration Under Way On Square

A $13,000 face-lifting for the Duncan Building on Bastion Square is under way

And Thursday bids close for the second phase of the operation to restore the former Burnes House to its earlier glory.

The second phase of the project is expected to cost about $50,000.

While complete details of the project remain secret it is understood a restaurant designed on period decor will occupy the main floor of the three-storey building.

Burnes House was famous at the turn of the century for the quality of food served by the original owner.

INDOOR FOUNTAIN

In addition to the restaurant preliminary plans call for part of the interior to be cleared to make way for an indoor fountain and pool which, it is expected, will form the centre of the restaurant.

Acting Mayor Cecil Parrott said he is delighted to see such rapid progress made on the restoration of the old building.

"Even the face-lifting job is making a tremendous difference in the Square," he said. "Once the full restoration program is completed the new Duncan building will make a great difference to the entire area."

Plans to restore the old Board of Trade building, facing the Duncan building across the Square, are also under way though no final decision has been made as to the form the restoration will take.

NO, THERE ISN'T SIGN OF A LET-UP

Victoria—city of ducks.

This could be next year's slogan unless the heavens let up.

Since last Thursday, when the rains began, it has been getting steadily worse.

Three-quarters of an inch fell overnight, bringing the six-day total to 1.68 inches. Of this, 1.10 inch has fallen in the last 2¼ days.

And there's no sign of a let-up.

Overnight forecast: showers.

Thursday's forecast: continuous rain.

After that it's anyone's guess.

But a safe bet according to weatherman Allan McQuarrie, would be more rain.

GOLDSTREAM

11,000 Watched Salmon

The annual salmon run at Goldstream Park has attracted more than 11,000 visitors during the past six weeks.

"It is by far the biggest turnout we have ever had," said Freeman King, who acts as guide for the B.C. Recreation Department.

"I would say the salmon run is now an established tourist attraction at Goldstream Park. It draws more people every year."

A number of football fans from Saskatchewan visited the park Sunday after attending the Grey Cup game in Vancouver.

"We also had visitors from Manitoba and Alberta," Mr. King said. "Since the middle of October we have had many parties from up-Island and the mainland. Most of them said they would be back next year."

Mr. King estimates 60 per cent of the salmon who fought their way up the river were females. About 9,000 of them were Chum salmon and 500 were Coho.

Three-Car Crash On Douglas Injures Woman

A car driven by a Duncan man struck a city motorcycle dealer's store early Tuesday evening, causing considerable damage.

Injured in a car driven by George Christo was passenger Mary Newman, who was treated at St. Joseph's Hospital for fractured ribs.

The Christo car was one in a three-car collision at Douglas and Saanich about 7 p.m.

Drivers of the other cars were Janice McLean, 721 Porter, and Thomas Corbett, 224 Cadillac.

The injured motorcycle dealer was Amor's Motorcycle Sales, 3400 Douglas.

The collision was the only accident with injuries reported in the city overnight.

Imperial Conversion Nearing Completion

First phase of converting Imperial Oil's Esquimalt bulk storage plant to a computer-based operation is nearing completion.

A $300,000 replacement and expansion program is expected to be finished by Dec. 15, except for exterior painting of bulk storage tanks in pastel colors next spring.

Then work will start to make the Victoria plant the first of its kind and among the most modern in Canada.

AUTOMATIC BILLING

An Imperial Oil engineer said automatic billing equipment will be put in, which together with new pumping equipment will streamline loading and accounting.

Drivers of oil and gasoline tank trucks will have individual keys coded to operate automatic billing equipment. Records will be sent directly to accounting headquarters in Edmonton for preparation and distribution to clients.

Machinery is already installed that steps up loading to 500 gallons per minute.

This is part of a modernization program that has been under way all this year with Farmer Construction as general contractor.

NEW TANKS

It includes replacement of storage tanks installed as early as 1915. Two old tanks still on the site—of about 140,000 gallons capacity each — will be pulled down in the next few weeks.

Yarrows Ltd. has built the new tanks and Bickerton Erectors Ltd., Vancouver, has done the installation. G. H. Birnie Ltd., Victoria, has handled pipeline installation.

Work is under way on a 420,000-gallon gasoline storage tank and a 350,000-gallon high octane tank is finished.

Other finished work includes a 700,000-gallon furnace oil tank, a new diesel oil tank and a floating roof gasoline tank finished last year.

The terminal on Victoria View Road is the main distribution point for south Vancouver Island for products coming from the Imperial refinery at Ioco.

Garage Man Burned When Fumes Explode

'Whole Place Went Up With a Whoof'

A service station attendant is in fairly good condition at St. Joseph's Hospital with burns and cuts following an explosion shortly before 11 a.m. today.

James McDonald, 48, was cleaning a bay in a double-bay garage at Oak Bay Avenue and Bank Street when an explosion, apparently caused by the ignition of solvent fumes, occurred.

'WENT WHOOF'

Cecil Kay, an employee of service station across the street, said "the whole place went up with a whoof. There was a sheet of flame and a bang and that was it."

Mr. Kay turned in the alarm to city fire department who responded with two trucks and an inhalator truck.

The interior of the building was badly charred and paint on the ceiling blistered.

WINDOWS BROKEN

Almost all the plate glass windows in the service station were either shattered or cracked.

Bob Burkholder, 17, 1536 Bank, said: "I was just sitting in my living room when I heard a big pop.

"It was real hot around here when I ran over."

Estimate of damage to the station, owned by Phil McQuade, was not available.

HUNTER FINED FOR CARRYING LOADED GUN

A hunter was fined $25 today in central court when he pleaded guilty to carrying a loaded firearm in his car Oct. 16.

Steve Perry, 4010 Braefoot, checked near Duncan, was found to have four rounds of ammunition in a rifle.

"People who go hunting mustn't read the papers," said Magistrate Ostler, referring to recent hunting tragedies.

Suspect Seen Peering Down Open Skylight

Vernon Umphrey, 620 Huxley, pleaded not guilty in County Court today to a charge of breaking and entering Ensign Motors, 1061 Yates, on July 8.

Crown prosecutor Alan Bigelow said city police kept an all-night watch on the building after two men were seen loitering around the premises at about 10:30 p.m. on July 7.

Constable Ivan Purdy and Kenneth Clark stood guard inside the building for several hours. They heard noises on the roof and, upon investigation, discovered a skylight had been removed.

Mr. Bigelow said Umphrey was seen looking down through the space where the skylight had been.

The trial is being heard by Judge Montague Drake and a jury composed of 10 men and two women. Dermod Owen-Flood is defending Umphrey.

Farmer Fined For Passing Checkpoint

A Happy Valley man wasn't so happy when he returned home with a truckload of cattle, purchased in Alberta, to find he had transported them illegally.

James Bartholow, 777 Kangaroo, was fined $10 in central court today for an offence against the Stock Brands Act.

A department of agriculture officer told court Bartholow had taken his 27 cattle past a Dawson Creek checkpoint without submitting to ownership inspection.

He said transporters must show proof of ownership of their cattle cargoes east of the Cascade Mountains.

Bartholow said he stopped for the inspection at Hope, adding that this is what he had done on another occasion.

Passing sentence, Magistrate William Ostler said the act "protects honest people like you."

B.C. Farmers Fight For Bigger Share In Dynamic Society

B.C. farmers today pressed their fight for a better standard of living.

The two-day meeting of the 13,000-member B.C. Federation of Agriculture opened at the Empress Hotel and faced a batch of controversial resolutions aimed at improving the lot of B.C.'s farm population.

Delegates decided the federation should take a new look at itself with a view to seeing what can be done to raising the financial status of growers.

COMMITTEE

A special committee will be appointed to study the problem.

Gill Rumley, manager of the Saanich Fruit Growers' Association, said farm incomes are not rising in line with labor wages and businessmen.

"We are standing still," he said. "We are supplying large quantities of raw material for processing plants, with little or no consideration given to the cost of production."

He also said growers in many cases were faced with unfair foreign competition.

"When we start negotiation for the sale of strawberries we have to compete with Mexican berries," he said. "Labor wages on a Mexican farm is $24 a month. How can you compete with that?"

"DISMAL FAILURE"

One delegate from Deep Creek said the efforts of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture to maintain a decent standard of living for farmers was a "dismal failure."

It also was disclosed at the convention that two major farm organizations scuttled a grower's brief to reduce taxes on the land. It was to be presented to the government.

L. A. Curie said the B.C. Beef Growers' Association and the Lower Mainland Dairyman's Association found the brief unacceptable.

The question of taxes on the land is expected to become one of the major issues at Thursday's session.

CITY SETS UP HEBENTON SCHOLARSHIP

The City of Victoria will honor hockey player Andy Hebenton tonight by awarding a $250 scholarship in his name.

The scholarship, to be known as the Andy Hebenton Scholarship, will be awarded annually for the next five years to a student selected by the Greater Victoria School District for outstanding sports and academic achievement.

Although set with a five-year time limit city officials noted that once established the annual award of $250 could become a permanent part of the city's budget.

'Condemn O'Neal Activity' Thompson Tells Federation

By ROGER STONEBANKS

The president of British Columbia's biggest union local today unleashed what he hopes will raise "a storm of protest" over the union bugging incident earlier this month.

In a letter to the B.C. Federation of Labour, Syd Thompson, president of the 7,000-member Vancouver local of the International Woodworkers of America, suggests the federation:

- Request E. P. O'Neal resign from the executive;
- Publicly condemn Mr. O'Neal for his "activity;"
- Publicly declare that workers must have the right to belong to the union of their choice and request the Labour Relations Board to reconsider the situation at the Harmac pulp mill near Nanaimo.

TO ALL COUNCILS

Copies of Mr. Thompson's letter were sent to all labor councils and union locals in B.C.

The move stems from the bugging incident and the feud which rages between two rival unions —the International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers (CIC) and the unaffiliated Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada.

Earlier this month electronic bugs were found in the convention rooms of the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada.

A private detective said Mr. O'Neil paid him $250. Mr. O'Neil confirmed he hired the detective but denied prior knowledge that bugs would be used.

Mr. O'Neil is the former secretary of the B.C. Federation of Labour who resigned last summer to become regional organizer for the international pulp union.

The Canadian union was unsuccessful in bids for recognition at three pulp mills this summer. In no case did the Labour Relations Board call a representation vote among the workers.

After the bugging incident, the provincial government appointed a royal commission with wide-ranging terms of reference. Hearings start Monday.

Mr. Thompson said he and his union local remained silent until now to "avoid providing further ammunition for our political enemies" during the Cariboo by-election.

He continued:

"Because of the seriousness of the issues embodied in this letter and the wide publicity this will receive, we wish to state at the outset that we hold no brief for the Canadian pulp union nor for the people running that organization.

"NO CURE"

"In fact, we strongly believe that wrapping ourselves in the Maple Leaf flag, as is being done by those advocating Canadian unions, is no cure for some of the ailments afflicting the labor movement.

"In fact, splintering and dividing organized labor, as is being done, can only assist the employers.

"However, it must also be recognized that the undemocratic structure of some American unions bring about some of the problems that we are faced with.

"The international pulp union falls in this category. We wish to point out that 21,000 members left that organization in the states of Washington and Oregon.

"Canadian unionism is not an issue in that part of the world. Democratic membership control, however, is.

"Events at the Harmac pulp mill make a mockery out of working peoples rights to freedom of choice. We firmly believe that the working man must

Judgment Reserved

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mr. Justice J. G. Gould Tuesday reserved judgment as the marathon mandarin orange trial came to an end with submissions from the defence counsel for 10 companies accused of conspiring to lessen competition in the sale of the Japanese oranges from 1946 to 1965. Leslie F. Burrows, secretary of the Canadian Fruit Wholesalers' Association, faces a similar charge and has elected a trial by jury.

$100 Billion 'Indemnity' Proposed

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Writer Harry Golden, himself a ghetto alumnus, proposed today that the Negro be paid a $100 billion "indemnity" for the centuries he has spent locked away from the mainstream of American life.

"The war to keep the Negro securely locked away has been lost. The Negro has won," he said. "He deserves back pay. We had them locked away during the greatest wealth-producing period in the history of the world, such a period will never come again."

Golden, publisher of the weekly Carolina Israelite and author of a number of best-sellers, suggested that the money be spent over a 10-year period for increased welfare, education, vocational training and housing aid.

"We must say to ourselves . . . that we will provide an adequate living for those who became adults in the segregated society and who may not be able to compete in the industrial world of today. . . .

"This is an 'indemnity' paid not to a foreign power but to ourselves," he said in testimony prepared for a senate subcommittee studying the problems of the cities. "If we only got 10 W. C. Handys out of it, or one George Washington Carver, it will have repaid us a thousandfold."

have the right to belong to the union of his choice, or no union for that matter, through majority decision.

"The work force at Harmac in our opinion have been denied this right. This is contrary to the whole concept of the labor movement in a democratic country.

ASSISTED

"We mention the Harmac episode to point out that having remained silent while this was going on we assisted in bringing about the mess that now is staring us in the face."

Mr. Thompson was strongly critical of the bugging incident.

It behooved labor to "clean up and prevent such unsavory messes" and this was why his local proposed the three points mentioned earlier.

"We feel strongly that the B.C. labor movement must take a forthright position as suggested.

"Keeping silent or sweeping this filthy mess under the rug is not in the best interest of the membership. To leave this clean-up task for Premier Bennett and the employers would be criminal neglect on our part."

'FAIL MISERABLY'

In a covering letter to all labor councils and union locals in B.C., Mr. Thompson said:

"Far too often within the house of labor we fail miserably in correcting our own shortcomings and condemning the, at times, undesirable behavior of some of our own leading lights.

"Unfortunately by remaining silent we inevitably bring about still more harm to ourselves. Our enemies see to that.

"Many rank and file members, and the public at large, are asking the question about the bugging incident: 'What is organized labor doing about this?'

"And all that we can say, up until now, is absolutely nothing.

"The officers of Local 1-217 IWA strongly urge that you lend your voice in condemning these activities that we all deplore."

Mr. O'Neal could not be reached this morning for a reply to the comments.

Pilot Training Open To All Servicemen

Training to become aircraft pilots will be taken by some sailors, soldiers and airmen on an integrated basis early next year for the first time.

Selection of candidates from applicants already in the service — officers and men — will be made this fall. RCAF navigators who apply for pilot training have particularly good chance of being accepted as their aircrew experience will reduce the conversion training required.

Initial training will be done on the Tutor jet training plane with advanced training on other types of aircraft. It normally takes about a year to turn out a pilot.

Candidates who show a flair for jet flying may be selected for training on the CF104 Starfighter. This is the longest course and takes about another year to qualify as a pilot on the supersonic Starfighter.

Successful candidates will become members of the pilot component of their respective services and will eventually become part of an integrated pilot list.

It's possible that a navy or army officer who successfully completes the pilot course could conceivably become a Starfighter pilot or an air force pilot could find himself flying an RCN Tracker.

capital. (At Sept. 30, 1966, Mercantile's total assets were $226,067,000 which is already over the limit of 20 times its authorized capital of $10 millions.) The ratio between authorized capital and total assets of other Canadian banks runs between 40 and 62.

DISCRIMINATION

The American state department is so vitally concerned about our proposed action because, in its view, it constitutes retroactive discrimination against an existing American corporate subsidiary in Canada.

The Americans don't want to see a precedent set which would open the door to similar legislative steps being taken against their corporate interests in other parts of the world. (Citibank itself operates 192 branches in 60 countries.)

INTENSE LOBBYING

To head off the Canadian legislation, the U.S. embassy in Ottawa has been engaged in an unusually intense lobbying effort. Executives of Canadian chartered banks are reported to have been contacted by members of the embassy staff and warned in unsubtle terms of the retaliatory measures that might be taken, if the legislation is passed. Canadian directors of Mercantile have also been active lobbyists—particularly Senator Louis Gelinas and A. T. Seedhouse, president of Manufacturers Life Insurance Co. The Toronto-based insurance firm underwrites half its new business in the U.S., and presumably fears that retaliatory measures might affect that lucrative market.

The full force of Mercantile's case will be made next Thursday, when executives of Mercantile are due to appear before the Commons committee on finance, trade and economic matters.

The bank's annual meeting is being held in Montreal Dec. 14.

THIRD LARGEST

The First National City Bank of New York (or Citibank, as it's known in financial circles) is the third largest banking institution in the U.S. and the third largest in the world. Its financial resources of $14 billion are twice those of Canada's largest bank (The Royal) and about half those of Canada's entire banking system. No other bank in the world operates on such a large scale in so many countries. In Canada the Mercantile now has offices in Halifax, Quebec City, Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg, Calgary and Vancouver.

Citibank came to Canada in 1963, by acquiring the assets of the Mercantile, then controlled by Nationale Handelsbank of Amsterdam. Citibank chairman James S. Rockefeller and Mercantile president R. P. MacFadden came to see Walter Gordon on July 18, 1963, and according to civil servants who attended the meeting, told the then finance minister that they "had made arrangements to acquire the shares of Mercantile, but that no firm commitment had been made."

Gordon warned the bankers that if they go ahead "it might tend to encourage restrictive legislation" and advised them not to proceed. "In other words, if we do so, it will be at our own peril," Rockefeller replied, and Gordon acknowledged that he would not have volunteered this expression, but that he thought Mr. Rockefeller had sized up the situation correctly.

This incident has become the key on which the whole controversy turns. The Canadian government claims that its legislation cannot be considered retroactive, since Citibank executives were warned they would face discriminatory action if they proceeded with the purchase. When Walter Gordon alluded to his conversations with Rockefeller and MacFadden in the House of Commons earlier this year, Mitchell Sharp, who had succeeded him as minister of finance, telephoned the Mercantile president, to suggest that the controversy be settled without any public furor. But despite his warning, Mr. MacFadden issued a statement, which in effect, called Walter Gordon a liar. ("our understanding of what transpired at the meeting is not in accord with his.")

SUPPORT GORDON

The government then published a memorandum signed by Deputy Minister of Finance Bob Bryce and Inspector General of Banks C. F. Elderkin — two of Ottawa's most respected public servants — which supported the Gordon version.

The two main factors which have caused the government's concern about Mercantile having unlimited access to the Canadian money market are these:

- That if left to expand without limits, Mercantile might have easy access to many of the big banking accounts in Canada. Presumably it could persuade the American parent companies (who are its customers in the U.S.) to switch the accounts of their Canadian subsidiaries to Mercantile.
- The fact that Mercantile could, if it wanted to, disregard monetary policies laid down by the Bank of Canada. Unlike the Canadian banks, it has direct access to extra funds. (In the 17 months between Nov. 30, 1963 and April 30, 1965, for example, Mercantile's assets jumped 50 per cent partly because of the infusion of outside funds.

The outcome of the dispute over the rights and wrongs of the Mercantile case remains far from clear. But at the moment, neither Washington nor Ottawa appears ready to give way.

MAN, WIFE

$2 Million Stock Theft Arrests Made

TORONTO (CP) — A Boston man and his wife were arrested here Tuesday in connection with a $2,000,000 stock robbery in New York City.

Detectives arrested Samuel Greene, 36, and his wife Gloria, 32, and charged them with fraud, possession of stolen goods and possession of counterfeit money.

On Nov. 15 a Toronto brokerage house bought an International Business Machines stock certificate for $37,917. The money was deposited in a local bank.

Monday the brokerage house learned that the stock had been stolen in New York.

Police learned a taxi was to pick up the cheque Tuesday and take it to a downtown intersection where a man had arranged to pick it up. A detective hid on the floor of the cab and arrested the man when he showed up.

The woman was arrested later in a telephone booth in front of Union Station.

Two men have already been arrested in Montreal and charged with possession of $250,000 worth of the stock.

GALE-LASHED LAKE HURON

Ore Ship Missing, 33 Feared Drowned

HARBOR BEACH, Mich. (UPI)—A Great Lakes ore ship with 33 men aboard was reported missing and feared sunk in gale-lashed Lake Huron today. The coast guard reported at least two bodies had been recovered in the area.

The coast guard station in Detroit said the 600-foot Daniel J. Morell owned by the Bethlehem Steel Co., had not been heard from since 12:15 p.m Tuesday.

The lake has been swept by full gale winds and near blizzard conditions for the last two days.

One body was found floating amid wood and other debris. His life jacket bore the inscription "Daniel J. Morell."

A massive sea and air search was started immediately, but one rescue ship reported there were no signs of life in the area.

New Car Safety Plans Unveiled

U.S. Highway Safety Chief Reveals 23 Proposals for 1968 Models

DETROIT (AP) —The four largest automakers had the word today on what they must do to make 1968 cars safer. Their first reaction indicated they were neither surprised nor disturbed by it.

The word came Tuesday night from Dr. William Haddon Jr., the recently named U.S. highway safety boss, as he released 23 safety proposals described only in capsule form.

Dr. Haddon said many of them are "already met by most of the vehicles to which they would apply."

The newly created National Traffic and Highway Safety Agency is expected to release detailed, technical versions of the proposals.

Dr. Haddon unveiled the proposals at a dinner sponsored by the Detroit Automobile Show. It marked his first meeting with the four auto company presidents.

Here are the 23 safety standards for 1968 model automobiles:

1. Standard location and identification of certain controls.

SHIFT IN SEQUENCE

2. Requirements that automatic transmissions have a braking effect, that transmission shift levers are in the same sequence in all cars and for a device to prevent accidental starting of an auto with a transmission in drive position.
3. Standards to eliminate frost and fog conditions on windshields.
4. Requirements for performance of windshield wiping and washing systems.
5. Assurance of adequate braking performance with hydraulic and parking brake systems in case of partial system failure.
6. Standards to reduce chances of brake failure due to fluid leakage from hydraulic hoses.
7. Reduction of reflection from instrument lights and shiny hardware in the driver's field of view.
8. Requirements for lamps, reflective devices and other equipment used for lighting and signaling.
9. Standards for tire strength.
10. Assurances that tires and rims will not be overloaded under reasonable conditions.
11. Rear view mirrors providing a clear, undistorted and reasonably unobstructed view to the rear.
12. Protection of car occupants from injury in any interior impact from instrument panels, seat backs, sun visors, arm rests and other projections.
13. Head restraints (often called head rests) to reduce frequency and severity of whip lash-type neck injuries in rear end collisions.
14. Steering control systems that will absorb force and minimize chest, neck and facial injuries from any impact with the steering device.
15. Limitation of how the steering control extends into the car, to reduce chances of impaling a driver in a collision.
16. Protection against car occupants being cut from, or thrown through, windows.
17. Standards to keep doors from snapping open during a crash.
18. Assurance that seats are anchored securely.
19. Installation of seat belts in all forward-facing seats, except jump seats.
20. Specific standards for seat belt assembly.
21. Strong anchoring of all seat belts.
22. A ban against any hub caps, wheel nuts or wheel discs with projections or other factors that might be hazardous to pedestrians or cyclists.
23. Standards for the strength and integrity of fuel tanks and connections to minimize any fire hazard as a result of collision.

AS PLANES GET BIGGER

Air Crash Deaths to Jump

MONTREAL (CP) — Robert Belton, flight safety officer of British Overseas Airways Corp., said Tuesday the number of people killed in aircraft accidents will likely increase as planes get bigger and air traffic becomes heavier.

Mr. Belton told the International Air Transport Association's conference on public relations that the number of aircraft accidents, however, is likely to remain constant at about 25 to 35 a year.

He said passenger fatalities on scheduled flights are likely to increase to about 1,000 a year by 1970 and to about 1,800 a year by 1980.

There was a constant effort to improve safety standards. Although the fatality rate for 100,000,000 passenger miles improved from 40 in 1920 to 0.9 in 1966, the number of accidents had remained about the same while the size of planes involved more than doubled.

VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, NOV. 30, 1966--PAGE 25

Arthur Mayse

The elk in its natural state is a lordly creature, but when it lies gut-shot and feebly kicking by a roadside, it makes an ugly sight. When the elk has been left to die by a sadistic vandal who shot just for the hell of it, the picture becomes uglier still. And when the slaughter takes place in a provincial park game reserve, the language I would apply to it does not belong in this family journal.

The shooting I refer to is but one of a number which, according to information received from official and private sources, have taken place within the Strathcona Park limits in recent months.

The total of elk assertedly killed or crippled may run as high as seven.

To it, you may add an undetermined number of blacktail deer, and one trumpeter swan.

All, my informants assert, fell victim to guns fetched in by the public roads that now traverse the park. One of these is a link in the Gold River route. The other skirts Buttle Lake to Western Mines' Myra Creek beach-head.

Reports turned in to the RCMP at Gold River by B.C. Forest Service men include these specific claims:

That a bull elk was on one occasion found shot not far from the road. No attempt had been made to remove it; the beast was apparently gunned down and left to rot.

That another bull was discovered lying with antlers hacked off, where a poacher's bullets had felled it.

That a crippled cow elk was put out of her misery by a trucker who happened upon her, and was buried under loose earth by a highway department bulldozer operator.

These qualify as known kills. Other sources insist that the tally runs much higher.

According to Inspector Robert Sinclair of the Fish and Wildlife Branch, only one man has so far been caught popping off within what was once a wilderness park and is still a game sanctuary.

This fellow, who gave a West Vancouver address, paid a $150 fine for dropping a deer.

But there are others—and will continue to be until or unless this rotten business can be made so costly by fine and prison term that the risk outweighs the "sport".

The fact that the guns have invaded Strathcona—a probability I warned against in this column months ago—does not reflect on our efficient but grimly under-staffed Fish and Wildlife Branch.

This month and last, its eight Vancouver Island wardens brought 55 Game Act and Firearms Act violators to court for a total of $4,695 in fines.

But eight game wardens are fantastically few for an area of close to 12,500 square miles. These are good men; they cannot, however, be everywhere at once.

The immediate blame for the situation lies with a group whom I will not dignify with the honest title of hunter. No fish or game club can reach these trigger-happy outlaws.

But the roads gave them entry, and despite all government persuasions, I cannot agree that these have any place in Strathcona.

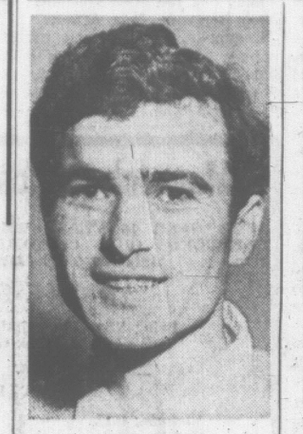
We had a park there of wild magnificence unmatched in North America.

Untouched, it was an asset that could only have multiplied in value with the years. There is scarce a state in the American union which, today, would not prize and rigidly guard such a tract.

That it should have been esteemed so lightly, and that its violation should have been permitted on grounds so shaky, is no credit to this present government.

But we've been over all that before. It remains now for those who created the condition to minimize its evil effects as best they can.

One of those effects I have outlined for you here. It should be dealt with, fast and effectively . . . and I hope such action will be forthcoming.



VINKO KUCINA
. . . ordered out

SLAVS FIGHT OUSTER

Victoria's Yugoslavian community today launched a campaign to prevent the deportation of one of their countrymen.

And they're getting a strong assist from Victoria MP David Groos and city lawyer Douglas A. M. Patterson.

The man ordered deported is Vinko Kucina, 26, a laborer who has worked here four months since jumping ship in Quebec to escape his Communist-controlled country.

His story was told The Times by his cousin, Milko Jadresko, 120 Dallas, a landscape gardener who came to Canada as an immigrant 10 years ago. Mr. Jadresko has been in Victoria since 1963.

THREE ESCAPE BIDS

He said he grew up with Vinko Kucina in a small village in Yugoslavia. He said Mr. Kucina has three times attempted to escape the first time when he was under 16. On his second attempt he was jailed for 40 days.

Mr. Jadresko says if Mr. Kucina is returned now he will be in serious trouble, he will lose his passport, his job on a ship and will be called a deserter and looked down upon.

SMUGGLED WIFE

Mr. Jadresko came to Canada by jumping a ship in Italy after smuggling his wife there in a clothes cupboard. In Italy, where the first of their four children was born seven days later, he was able to arrange legal immigration to Canada.

But since then Italy has refused to accept Yugoslavian refugees. For Vinko Kucina there was no avenue of escape except to do what he did — jump ship in Canada. Then he reported to immigration officials in Vancouver.

"We know what he did was illegal. But he did not know," said Mr. Jadresko.

He has put up $1,000 bond for his cousin and guaranteed he will report weekly to immigration authorities.

Last week Ottawa ruled that Mr. Kucina must be deported. But Mr. Jadresko has obtained a promise from Mr. Groos that he will help.

PETITION SIGNED

Mr. Groos phoned Mr. Jadresko twice Tuesday and left instructions for him to phone back if any attempt is made to take Mr. Kucina into custody. Mr. Groos said he is hopeful Mr. Kucina will be allowed to stay.

Meantime 44 Yugoslavian friends here have signed a petition asking Mr. Kucina be permitted to remain. They swear he would make a first class citizen as Mr. Jadresko has done.

Mr. Kucina has a wife and child in Yugoslavia and if he is permitted to remain he would then be able to apply to bring them out, Mr. Jadresko says.

'May Day' Search Under Way

Department of Transport officials reported receiving a distress signal from a ship early today which indicated it was taking water in the forward hold 150 miles west of the Queen Charlotte Islands.

The U.S. Coast Guard in Juneau, Alaska, is co-ordinating the search for the vessel, whose name was not distinguishable over the radio.

An RCAF Neptune, an anti-submarine patrol aircraft from Comox, reported no sign of the ship after searching the area for an hour and a half today. A U.S. Coast Guard craft and two merchant vessels were en route to join the search.

Careless Drivers Pay Fines of $35

Fined $35 each today in traffic court on careless driving charges were Craig Matthews, 1505 Bay, and Verna Hughes, 1229 Juno.

Fire Hits Boat

U.S. Ship's Bow Damage Heavy

The bow of the $200,000 United States torpedo recovery boat Telic Belle was extensively damaged by fire today at Nanaimo.

Firemen had to cut holes in the 80-foot Seattle vessel to get at the fire, which broke out while the boat was berthed.

Flames did not reach the vessel's forward fuel tanks.

Crewman Jim Krueger said the fire appeared to start under a generator.

WIRING BURNED

Skipper A. G. Rodal said the main damage was to wiring but some equipment in the bow received water damage.

The Telic Belle, on contract to the U.S. Navy for recovery work on the torpedo range near Nanoose, about 12 miles north of Nanaimo, is equipped with underwater television cameras.

Restoration Under Way On Square

A $13,000 face-lifting for the Duncan Building on Bastion Square is under way.

And Thursday bids close for the second phase of the operation to restore the former Burnes House to its earlier glory.

The second phase of the project is expected to cost about $50,000.

While complete details of the project remain secret it is understood a restaurant designed on period decor will occupy the main floor of the three-storey building.

Burnes House was famous at the turn of the century for the quality of food served by the original owner.

INDOOR FOUNTAIN

In addition to the restaurant preliminary plans call for part of the interior to be cleared to make way for an indoor fountain and pool which, it is expected, will form the centre of the restaurant.

Acting Mayor Cecil Parrott said he is delighted to see such rapid progress made on the restoration of the old building.

"Even the face-lifting job is making a tremendous difference in the Square," he said. "Once the full restoration program is completed the new Duncan building will make a great difference to the entire area."

Plans to restore the old Board of Trade building, facing the Duncan building across the Square, are also under way though no final decision has been made as to the form the restoration will take.

NO, THERE ISN'T SIGN OF LET-UP

Victoria—city of ducks.

This could be next year's slogan unless the heavens let up.

Since last Thursday, when the rains began, it has been getting steadily worse.

Three-quarters of an inch fell overnight, bringing the six-day total to 1.68 inches. Of this, 1.10 inch has fallen in the last 2¼ days.

And there's no sign of a let-up.

Overnight forecast: showers.

Thursday's forecast: continuous rain.

After that it's anyone's guess.

But a safe bet according to weatherman Allan McQuarrie, would be more rain.

GOLDSTREAM

11,000 Watched Salmon

The annual salmon run at Goldstream Park has attracted more than 11,000 visitors during the past six weeks.

"It is by far the biggest turnout we have ever had," said Freeman King, who acts as guide for the B.C. Recreation Department.

"I would say the salmon run is now an established tourist attraction at Goldstream Park. It draws more people every year."

A number of football fans from Saskatchewan visited the park Sunday after attending the Grey Cup game in Vancouver.

"We also had visitors from Manitoba and Alberta," Mr. King said. "Since the middle of October we have had many parties from up-Island and the mainland. Most of them said they would be back next year."

Mr. King estimates 60 per cent of the salmon who fought their way up the river were females. About 9,000 of them were Chum salmon and 500 were Coho.

Three-Car Crash On Douglas Injures Woman

A car driven by a Duncan man struck a city motorcycle dealer's store early Tuesday evening, causing considerable damage.

Injured in a car driven by George Christo was passenger Mary Newman, who was treated at St. Joseph's Hospital for fractured ribs.

The Christo car was one in a three-car collision at Douglas and Saanich about 7 p.m.

Drivers of the other cars were Janice McLean, 721 Porter, and Thomas Corbett, 224 Cadillac.

The injured motorcycle dealer was Amor's Motorcycle Sales, 3400 Douglas.

The collision was the only accident with injuries reported in the city overnight.

Imperial Conversion Nearing Completion

First phase of converting Imperial Oil's Esquimalt bulk storage plant to a computer-based operation is nearing completion.

A $300,000 replacement and expansion program is expected to be finished by Dec. 15, except for exterior painting of bulk storage tanks in pastel colors next spring.

Then work will start to make the Victoria plant the first of its kind and among the most modern in Canada.

AUTOMATIC BILLING

An Imperial Oil engineer said automatic billing equipment will be put in, which together with new pumping equipment will streamline loading and accounting.

Drivers of oil and gasoline tank trucks will have individual keys coded to operate automatic billing equipment. Records will be sent directly to accounting headquarters in Edmonton for preparation and distribution to clients.

Machinery is already installed that steps up loading to 500 gallons per minute.

This is part of a modernization program that has been under way all this year with Farmer Construction as general contractor.

NEW TANKS

It includes replacement of storage tanks installed as early as 1915. Two old tanks still on the site—of about 140,000 gallons capacity each — will be pulled down in the next few weeks.

Yarrows Ltd. has built the new tanks and Bickerton Erectors Ltd., Vancouver, has done the installation. G. H. Birnie Ltd., Victoria, has handled pipeline installation.

Work is under way on a 420,000-gallon gasoline storage tank and a 350,000-gallon high octane tank is finished.

Other finished work includes a 700,000-gallon furnace oil tank, a new diesel oil tank and a floating roof gasoline tank finished last year.

The terminal on Victoria View Road is the main distribution point for south Vancouver Island for products coming from the Imperial refinery at Ioco.

Garage Man Burned When Fumes Explode

'Whole Place Went Up With Whoof'

A service station attendant is in fairly good condition at St. Joseph's Hospital with burns and cuts following an explosion shortly before 11 a.m. today.

James McDonald, 48, was cleaning a bay in a double-bay garage at Oak Bay Avenue and Bank Street when an explosion, apparently caused by the ignition of solvent fumes, occurred.

'WENT WHOOF'

Cecil Kay, an employee of service station across the street, said "the whole place went up with a whoof. There was a sheet of flame and a bang and that was it."

Mr. Kay turned in the alarm to city fire department who responded with two trucks and an inhalator truck.

The interior of the building was badly charred and paint on the ceiling blistered.

WINDOWS BROKEN

Almost all the plate glass windows in the service station were either shattered or cracked.

Bob Burkholder, 17, of 1536 Bank, said: "I was just sitting in my living room when I heard a big pop.

"It was real hot around here when I ran over."

Estimate of damage to the station, owned by Phil McQuade, was not available.

HUNTER FINED FOR CARRYING LOADED GUN

A hunter was fined $25 today in central court when he pleaded guilty to carrying a loaded firearm in his car Oct. 16.

Steve Perry, 4010 Braefoot, checked near Duncan, was found to have four rounds of ammunition in a rifle.

"People who go hunting mustn't read the papers," said Magistrate Ostler, referring to recent hunting tragedies.

Suspect Seen Peering Down Open Skylight

Vernon Umphrey, 620 Huxley, pleaded not guilty in County Court today to a charge of breaking and entering Ensign Motors, 1061 Yates, on July 8.

Crown prosecutor Alan Bigelow said city police kept an all-night watch on the building after two men were seen loitering around the premises at about 10:30 p.m. on July 7.

Constable Ivan Purdy and Kenneth Clark stood guard inside the building for several hours. They heard noises on the roof and, upon investigation, discovered a skylight had been removed.

Mr. Bigelow said Umphrey was seen looking down through the space where the skylight had been.

The trial is being heard by Judge Montague Drake and a jury composed of 10 men and two women. Dermod Owen-Flood is defending Umphrey.

SHIP MOVEMENTS

NAVY

HMC Ships Saskatchewan and Mackenzie left port this morning, return Thursday morning; Qu'Appelle out for the day Thursday; Beacon Hill arrives in San Diego Friday, leaves Monday, returns to Esquimalt Dec. 5.

DEPT. OF TRANSPORT

Estevan due in at 4 p.m. today, sails Thursday for Trincomali Channel; Sir James Douglas due at Port Hardy tonight; St. Catharines on Station Papa; Vancouver due in Honolulu Friday morning; in port: Camsell, Racer, Ready, Stonetown.

Farmer Fined For Passing Checkpoint

A Happy Valley man wasn't so happy when he returned home with a truckload of cattle, purchased in Alberta, to find he had transported them illegally.

James Bartholow, 777 Kangaroo, was fined $10 in central court today for an offence against the Stock Brands Act.

A department of agriculture officer told court Bartholow had taken his 27 cattle past a Dawson Creek checkpoint without submitting to ownership inspection.

He said transporters must show proof of ownership of their cattle cargoes east of the Cascade Mountains.

Bartholow said he stopped for the inspection at Hope, adding that this is what he had done on another occasion.

Passing sentence, Magistrate William Ostler said the act "protects honest people like you."

B.C. Farmers Fight For Bigger Share In Dynamic Society

B.C. farmers today pressed their fight for a better standard of living.

The two-day meeting of the 13,000-member B.C. Federation of Agriculture opened at the Empress Hotel and faced a batch of controversial resolutions aimed at improving the lot of B.C.'s farm population.

Delegates decided the federation should take a new look at itself with a view to seeing what can be done to raise the financial status of growers.

COMMITTEE

A special committee will be appointed to study the problem.

Gill Rumley, manager of the Saanich Fruit Growers' Association, said farm incomes are not rising in line with other segments of the economy.

"We are standing still," he said. "We are supplying large quantities of raw material for processing plants, with little or no consideration given to the cost of production."

He also said growers in many cases were faced with unfair foreign competition.

"When we start negotiation for the sale of strawberries we have to compete with Mexican berries," he said. "Labor wages on a Mexican farm is $24 a month. How can you compete with that?"

"DISMAL FAILURE"

One delegate from Deep Creek said the efforts of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture to maintain a decent standard of living for farmers was a "dismal failure."

It also was disclosed at the convention that two major farm organizations scuttled a grower's brief to reduce taxes on the land. It was to be presented to the government.

L. A. Curie said the B.C. Beef Growers' Association and the Lower Mainland Dairyman's Association found the brief unacceptable.

The question of taxes on the land is expected to become one of the major issues at Thursday's session.

CITY SETS UP HEBENTON SCHOLARSHIP

The City of Victoria will honor hockey player Andy Hebenton tonight by awarding a $250 scholarship in his name.

The scholarship, to be known as the Andy Hebenton Scholarship, will be awarded annually for the next five years to a student selected by the Greater Victoria School District for outstanding sports and academic achievement.

Although set with a five-year time limit city officials noted that once established the annual award of $250 could become a permanent part of the city's budget.

'Condemn O'Neal Activity' Thompson Tells Federation

By ROGER STONEBANKS

The president of British Columbia's biggest union local today unleashed what he hopes will raise "a storm of protest" over the union bugging incident earlier this month.

In a letter to the B.C. Federation of Labour, Syd Thompson, president of the 7,000-member Vancouver local of the International Woodworkers of America, suggests the federation:

- Request E. P. O'Neal resign from the executive;
- Publicly condemn Mr. O'Neal for his "activity;"
- Publicly declare that workers must have the right to belong to the union of their choice and request the Labour Relations Board to reconsider the situation at the Harmac pulp mill near Nanaimo.

TO ALL COUNCILS

Copies of Mr. Thompson's letter were sent to all labor councils and union locals in B.C.

The move stems from the bugging incident and the feud which rages between two rival unions —the International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers (CIC) and the unaffiliated Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada.

Earlier this month electronic bugs were found in the convention rooms of the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada.

A private detective said Mr. O'Neal paid him $250. Mr. O'Neal confirmed he hired the detective but denied prior knowledge that bugs would be used.

Mr. O'Neal is the former secretary of the B.C. Federation of Labour who resigned last summer to become regional organizer for the international pulp union.

The Canadian union was unsuccessful in bids for recognition at three pulp mills this summer. In no case did the Labour Relations Board call a representation vote among the workers.

After the bugging incident, the provincial government appointed a royal commission with wide-ranging terms of reference. Hearings start Monday.

Mr. Thompson said he and his union local remained silent until now to "avoid providing further ammunition for our political enemies" during the Cariboo by-election.

He continued:

"Because of the seriousness of the issues embodied in this letter and the wide publicity this will receive, we wish to state at the outset that we hold no brief for the Canadian pulp union nor for the people running that organization.

"NO CURE"

"In fact, we strongly believe that wrapping ourselves in the Maple Leaf flag, as is being done by those advocating Canadian unions, is no cure for some of the ailments afflicting the labor movement.

"In fact, splintering and dividing organized labor, as is being done, can only assist the employers.

"However, it must also be recognized that the undemocratic structure of some American unions bring about some of the problems that we are faced with.

"The international pulp union falls in this category. We wish to point out that 21,000 members left that organization in the states of Washington and Oregon.

"Canadian unionism is not an issue in that part of the world. Democratic membership control, however, is.

"Events at the Harmac pulp mill make a mockery out of working peoples' rights to freedom of choice. We firmly believe that the working man must

Ore Vessel Breaks Up In Storm, 32 Missing

Lake Littered With Bodies

HARBOR BEACH, Mich. (UPI)—A Great Lakes ore ship with 33 men aboard was missing and presumed sunk in gale-lashed Lake Huron today. At least seven bodies were recovered in the waters and a rescue ship reported the lake was littered with floating bodies.

The 600-foot Daniel J. Morrell, her radio silent since noon Tuesday, was presumed to have broken-up in the near blizzard which raked the Great Lakes.

The first mute word of the tragedy came with the discovery of a body in a life jacket. The man's head was gashed.

The Jacket bore the inscription "Daniel J. Morrell."

Six other bodies were recovered shortly afterward and a reporter on the scene said the water was "littered" with other bodies.

One survivor was plucked from the water by a helicopter and rushed to hospital in a state of shock.

GRAVEYARD

The Morrell disappeared 100 miles north of Detroit in the state's "thumb" area in a section of the lake which has been a graveyard for many ships and the men who crew them.

The ship was owned by the Cambria Steamship Co., a subsidiary of Bethlehem Steel.

The lake has been swept by full gale winds and blizzard conditions for two days.

At Bethlehem, Pa., a spokesman said the 12,500 ton ship was sailing to the firm's Taconite Harbor plant to pick up ore. It was under ballast and not carrying any cargo.

EIGHT RESCUED

The apparent tragedy happened at the same time eight men were saved in a lake rescue 150 miles north of Harbor Beach. The West German freighter Nordmeer's captain and skeleton crew of seven were picked off the ship's decks in the midst of a gale.

The storm also imperiled a car ferry, the City of Midland, on the other side of the state near Ludington, Mich., on Lake Michigan.

The ship was grounded on a sand bar but her 128 passengers and 55 crewmen rode out the gale and were awaiting rescue after two trapped days.

November has been a month of death in Lake Huron's history.

The worst storm on record swept the lake in 1913, sinking at least eight ships and leaving beaches littered with bodies.

The lake has claimed the lives of more than 200 sailors in the last half century.

Judge Says Speck Can Be Tried

VANCOUVER (CP)—Retirement of veteran guard Tom Hinton was announced today by British Columbia Lions.

Hinton, 30, played nine seasons with the Lions after playing his school ball at Louisiana Poytechnical Institute. He was a WFC all-star four times.

Climbers Lost in Mt. Hood Fog

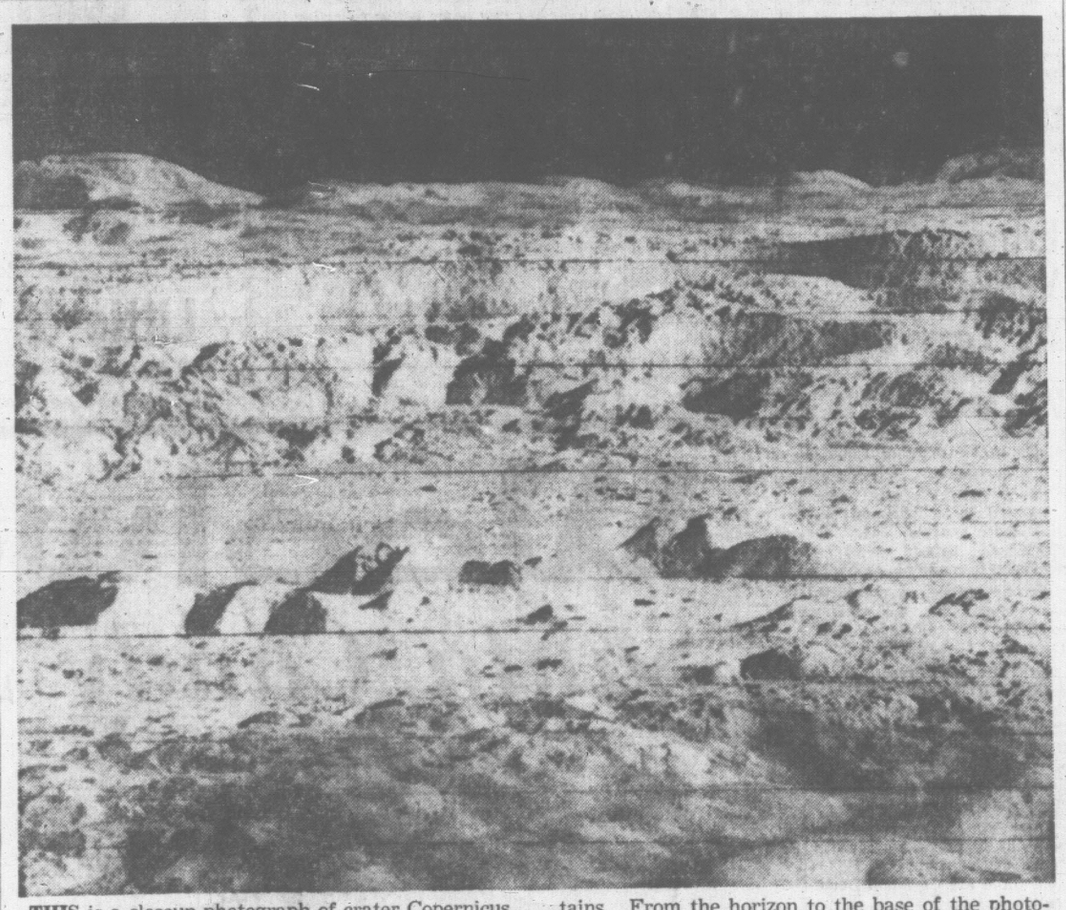
PORTLAND (AP)—Two mountain climbers were missing on Mt. Hood today in dense fog with visibility of less than 50 feet.

Four experienced rescue climbers from the Mountain Rescue and Safety Council went out this morning in pairs in quest of Lonnie Gates, 26, and his brother, Danny Gates, 19, both of Portland.

Lions in Market for Quarterback?

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Sun says the British Columbia Lions, of the Canadian Football League, may be negotiating a trade for quarterback Ron Vander Kelen, of the Minnesota Vikings.

The newspaper said today the Lions are interested in a deal which would send halfback Willie Fleming to the National Football League team in return for halfback Jim Young and Vander Kelen, hero of Wisconsin's losing effort in the 1963 Rose Bowl game.



THIS is a closeup photograph of crater Copernicus, a prominent feature on the face of the moon. It was taken November 23 by Lunar Orbiter II satellite and released today in Washington. The view looks due north. Mountains rising from the crater's floor are 1,000 feet high with slopes up to 30 degrees. The 3,000-foot mountain on the horizon, left, is the Gay-Lussac Promontory in the Carpathian Mountains. From the horizon to the base of the photograph is about 150 miles. The horizontal distance is about 17 miles. Lunar Orbiter was 28.4 miles above the moon and about 150 miles due south of Copernicus when the picture was recorded. The lines on the picture are caused when the completed picture is assembled. It is received in strips, which must be matched later. (AP Wirephoto.)

Rhodesia Summit Rumored

LONDON (AFB) — The Daily Express, in a dispatch from Salisbury, says a summit meeting between British Prime Minister Wilson and Rhodesian Premier Ian Smith "seems to be in the air."

A decisive tete-a-tete between the British and Rhodesian leaders could take place in Blantyre, Malawi, on the condition that the talks scheduled for today in Salisbury, the Rhodesian capital, between special envoy Sir Morrice James and Smith achieve a positive result, the paper reports.

The paper's otimistic forecast was based on statements Wilson is reported to have made in private.

Though in the Commons Tuesday the prime minister spoke of only a "small movement" from Salisbury, The Express says he actually believed that Smith made "considerable concessions."

Salisbury Talks Continue

SALISBURY (Reuters) —Prime Minister Ian Smith today conferred with Morrice James, the British envoy sent here to continue negotiations on the year-old Rhodesian independence deadlock.

They were together about 45 minutes in the prime minister's city office, a Rhodesian spokesman said, but did not give any other details.

The announcement that the two men had met increased the secrecy already surrounding the negotiations.

Informed sources said they understood the meeting took place before a special Rhodesian cabinet meeting about noon. Smith said earlier he did not think he would meet James today.

Smith's cabinet meeting was the second in two days—an unusual event.

MEETS WITH GIBBS

James, a high-ranking official of the British Commonwealth office, arrived in Salisbury Tuesday night and today talked with Governor Sir Humphrey Gibbs at Government House.

Without satisfactory assurances from Smith's white minority regime by today, British Prime Minister Wilson is pledged to take the issue of mandatory sanctions to the United Nations by the end of the year. But he was believed to be ready to delay this last resort for a while.

The two sides are divided about the question of progress to majority rule for Rhodesia's 4,000,000 Negroes and a formula for ending what Britain terms the unconstitutional condition of the Smith regime.

U.S. Warning On New Bank Act

By PETER NEWMAN
Special to The Times

OTTAWA— American-Canadian relations, already ruffled by our new China policy, may soon escalate into an even more unpleasant phase.

Newman

At issue is a clause in the revision of the Bank Act, now before Parliament, which would severely limit the future growth here of the Mercantile Bank of Canada, a wholly-owned subsidiary of the First National City Bank of New York.

Washington sources indicate that this dispute is the subject of a private diplomatic note to the Canadian government, from the U.S. State Department. The note is described by those who have read it as one of the toughest diplomatic initiatives that has ever been directed at Canada by the U.S. It is said to call the Canadian action unacceptable and even to threaten retaliation, if it is not withdrawn.

RESTRICTS HOLDINGS

The basis of the American complaint is the clause that restricts non-Canadian holdings in any chartered bank to 25 per cent and limits to 10 per cent the holdings of any shareholder. If either of these provisions is violated—and Mercantile violates them both—the foreign-owned bank will be prohibited from increasing its assets to more than 20 times its authorized

Storm Dumps Snow

VANCOUVER (CP)—Snow plows were in operation late Tuesday and early today to keep traffic moving through the Fraser Valley after four inches of snow fell in the area during a 12-hour period.

The snowfall, first major storm of the season, left the Trans-Canada and Hope-Princeton Highways in slippery, but passable condition. Both highways have been sanded, but police warned that cars using them should be equipped with snow tires.

In other parts of the province, Prince George recorded a record low temperature of zero Tuesday. Previous low for that date was 14 above, set in 1919.

The weather office at Vancouver said cold Arctic air would continue to cover the province east of the coastal mountain range with some seepage to the coast through valleys today.

The weatherman predicts Thursday will be cloudy east of the mountains with rain and snow in some areas.

Mill Layoffs Begin Because of Dispute

The pulp production plant at Crofton was partially closed today, resulting in the layoff of 170 men.

B.C. Forest Products took the action, which was announced last Monday, because of the current shut-down of the British Columbia waterfront.

Jack Gallagher, industrial relations officer at the mill, said the dock dispute has left the company with three times the normal amount of pulp jammed into storage areas.

There was no more storage room available at the 950-ton a day plant.

Another 150 men will be out of work by the weekend unless the situation changes

Production of newsprint will continue as long as it can be shipped by rail or barge.

MacMillan Bloedel said the dispute will force closures at some mills this Friday.

"The company has notified its employees at Alberni Pacific Sawmill Division at Port Alberni and Vancouver Plywood Division, that production will come to a halt Friday unless shiploading is resumed. Storage space for the mills' products will be exhausted by that day.

"Closure of the Port Alberni sawmill and Vancouver plywood mill will put more than 1,700 men out of work, some 1,235 at the plywood mill and more than 500 at the sawmill."

A company spokesman said that closure of other mills on Vancouver Island and in the Greater Vancouver area will follow unless loading of ships resume.

The disruption of shipping will ultimately lead to the closing of all the company's wood product mills, involving some 4,300 employees. If the mills are forced to close, shutdown of the company's logging divisions, which employ almost 3,000 men, will follow.

'CRITICAL'

"The shortage of storage space is becoming critical at the mills because of our inability to move products to our export customers," said the company spokesman.

"The developing situation will not only create a hardship for our production employees but it also will not be received well by traditional customers for B.C forest products."

The strike by 190 dock foremen entered its 13th day today with the waterfront idle because companies won't hire longshoremen until the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union gives an assurance of no more slowdowns.

The union has said any slowdown is caused by the absence of experienced supervisors.

MASS MEETING

A mass meeting of Vancouver longshoremen was being held this afternoon. No similar meeting was called in Victoria although a meeting is expected later in the week.

About 3,000 longshoremen are out of work with only a hundred or two continuing to work bulk cargo shipments.

Sixty ships are waiting to be handled in Vancouver alone. There were no ships at Ogden Point this morning.

Settlement This Week Or Else . . .

LONDON (AP) — The British government plans to ask the United Nations this weekend for compulsory economic sanctions against Rhodesia if Prime Minister Ian Smith does not come to terms by then, government sources report.

The sources said Prime Minister Wilson apparently hopes the threat of such a request to the Security Council will prompt Smith to accept a settlement of the year-old rebellion by the African territory's white minority.

Wilson won cabinet approval of the request Tuesday and told the House of Commons the UN action would be in effect before Christmas. UN approval of sanctions is considered certain since the General Assembly earlier this month voted overwhelmingly for Britain to use force, if necessary, to end the rebellion.

British authorities, however, were said to feel they still have about a week to work something out with Smith's regime since it will take about five days to set up a Security Council meeting.

Homemade Bomb Found

TORONTO (CP)—Police found a homemade bomb on the lawn in front of the Yugoslavian consulate early today, a few hours after Serbian and Croation immigrants had demonstrated in front of the building.

The police bomb squad dismantled the small bomb, similar to a grenade. They said it didn't go off because the fuse system wasn't working properly.

SHARE WITH ASIAN CHILDREN FUND

Suddenly, Friends Transformed Into Killers

By CANDIDE TEMPLE

In India, where many of the men and women dress in tattered rags and saris and the children in nothing, clothing is needed as much as food.

Aid from the Unitarian Service Committee, backed by The Times' Share with Asian Children fund, often takes the form of needed garments, as well as Canadian milk and barley.

On her recent Asian trip to supervise USC relief projects, the agency's executive director, Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova, assisted at one clothing distribution in Indian, which, she recalls, made a "brutal impact" on her of the need for more aid.

With a USC doctor and an Indian midwife, Dr. Hitschmanova travelled to the small village of Villpatti outside Kodaikanal.

According to plan, they gave out tickets to the villagers, who would claim their clothing bundles later that morning — blankets, saris and baby clothes.

"We though we had it perfectly organized," Dr. Hitschmanova recalls, "and I was looking forward immensely to the distribution.

"The urgency to replace the dirty rags adults and children were wearing was only too obvious."

However, things did not go according to plan.

"The scene in front of our dispensary that morning I shall never forget.

"Not only had the 70 people come to whom we had given tickets, but several hundred others as well, since in typical Indian village style, everybody has to participate in everything that happens.

"And so every last living soul had turned up, hopefully expecting to receive his share when the distribution started."

Naturally there was not enough clothing to go around.

"As soon as I started handing out the first saris and blankets to ticket-holders, the fighting broke out.

"These were no longer men and women who had lived peacefully in the same community. Suddenly they had become competitors and enemies.

"It was absolutely horrifying to see human beings transformed into brutes, ready to kill a friend and neighbor for the sake of a garment worth a dollar."

The only solution to the scene, Dr. Hitschmanova concluded, is more garments and further aid for the USC to distribute to destitute villagers.

And for this they need more funds, donated by generous Canadians, to continue relief work in India, Hong Kong and Korea.

Victorians may help USC to continue their work through donations to The Times Share with Asian Children Fund, sent care of this newspaper or made at the main branch, Bank of Montreal, 1225 Douglas.

3 CEASEFIRE PERIODS AGREED IN VIET WAR

SAIGON (UPI) — United States and South Vietnamese forces today promised to observe 48-hour ceasefires throughout Viet Nam during the Christmas and New Year's holiday—provided Communist forces do the same.

The order suspending fighting by all allied forces was signed by South Vietnamese Premier Nguyen Cao Ky and will temporarily bring to a halt all combat operations, including United States bombing of North Viet Nam.

It went one step further than a similar ceasefire pledge announced by Communists earlier, providing in addition for a four-day combat truce during the Asian lunar new year beginning February 8.

UN Chief To Accept New Term?

UNITED NATIONS (AP)— United Nations headquarters buzzed with rumors today that U Thant had decided to stay on for a second five-year term as secretary-general of the world organization.

Thant had scheduled an announcement for this morning on his final decision, but this was postponed at the request of the UN Security Council.

The rumors came in the midst of intense activity among UN diplomats to persuade the secretary-general to reverse his earlier decision to leave at the end of the current General Assembly session, Dec. 20.

The members of the 15-member council were spearheading the move.

Many diplomats believe that the secretary-general eventually will bow to the pressure to remain for at least part of another five-year term despite his desire to return to private life. None could be found, however, who claimed to know definitely what Thant would do.

ARSENIC FED TO GUESTS

AUCKLAND (Reuters) — A New Zealand hostess entertaining prominent international legal figures including Hazen Hansard of Montreal, former president of the Canadian Bar Association, fed them food containing arsenic and committed suicide herself by poisoning, a coroner reported here today.

The socially prominent woman, Mrs. Marjorie Edna Ellingham, 54, took care that other guests, including prominent visitors from Britain and Australia, should not be killed. She wanted it to appear they had food poisoning.

But one woman took home a portion of chicken for her 11-year-old son who died after eating it.

The coroner, A. D. Copeland, released details of the inquest into the deaths Easter Sunday, April 10, and of intensive investigation by police who questioned 1,400 persons about Mrs. Ellingham's activities.

The coroner found that Mrs. Ellingham committed suicide with arsenic and that the death of the boy, David Charles Davision, was due to arsenic poisoning.

Mrs. Ellingham, who took 10 times the amount of arsenic she gave anyone else, told guests not to worry if they felt ill as she had a doctor present.

Her personal physician told the inquest Mrs. Ellingham had a history of depression, with feelings of guilt over the earlier suicides of her mother and an uncle.

. . . U.S. RETALIATION

capital. (At Sept. 30, 1966, Mercantile's total assets were $226,067,000 which is already over the limit of 20 times its authorized capital of $10 millions.) The ratio between authorized capital and total assets of other Canadian banks runs between 40 and 62.

The American state department is so vitally concerned about our proposed action because, in its view, it constitutes retroactive discrimination against an existing American corporate subsidiary in Canada.

The Americans don't want to see a precedent set which would open the door to similar legislative steps being taken against their corporate interests in other parts of the world. (Citibank itself operates 192 branches in 60 countries.)

INTENSE LOBBYING

To head off the Canadian legislation, the U.S. embassy in Ottawa has been engaged in an unusually intense lobbying effort. Executives of Canadian chartered banks are reported to have been contacted by members of the embassy staff and warned in unsubtle terms of the retaliatory measures that might be taken, if the legislation is passed. Canadian directors of Mercantile have also been active lobbyists—particularly Senator Louis Gelinas and A. T. Seedhouse, president of Manufacturers Life Insurance Co. The Toronto-based insurance firm underwrites half its new business in the U.S., and presumably fears that retaliatory measures might affect that lucrative market.

The full force of Mercantile's case will be made next Thursday, when executives of Mercantile are due to appear before the Commons committee on finance, trade and economic matters.

The bank's annual meeting is being held in Montreal Dec. 14.

THIRD LARGEST

The First National City Bank of New York (or Citibank, as it's known in financial circles) is the third largest banking institution in the U.S. and the third largest in the world. Its financial resources of $14 billion are twice those of Canada's largest bank (The Royal) and about half those of Canada's entire banking system. No other bank in the world operates on such a large scale in so many countries. In Canada the Mercantile now has offices in Halifax, Quebec City, Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg, Calgary and Vancouver.

Citibank came to Canada in 1963, by acquiring the assets of the Mercantile, then controlled by Nationale Handelsbank of Amsterdam. Citibank chairman James S. Rockefeller and Mercantile president R. P. MacFadden came to see Walter Gordon on July 18, 1963, and according to civil servants who attended the meeting, told the then finance minister that they "had made arrangements to acquire the shares of Mercantile, but that no firm commitment had been made."

Gordon warned the bankers that if they go ahead "it might tend to encourage restrictive legislation" and advised them not to proceed. "In other words, if we do so, it will be at our own peril," Rockefeller replied, and Gordon acknowledged that he would not have volunteered this expression, but that he thought Mr. Rockefeller had sized up the situation correctly.

This incident has become the key on which the whole controversy turns. The Canadian government claims that its legislation cannot be considered retroactive, since Citibank executives were warned they would face discriminatory action if they proceeded with the purchase. When Walter Gordon alluded to his conversations with Rockefeller and MacFadden in the House of Commons earlier this year, Mitchell Sharp, who had succeeded him as minister of finance, telephoned the Mercantile president, to suggest that the controversy be settled without any public furor. But despite his warning, Mr. MacFadden issued a statement, which in effect, called Walter Gordon a liar. ("our understanding of what transpired at the meeting is not in accord with his.")

SUPPORT GORDON

The government then published a memorandum signed by Deputy Minister of Finance Bob Bryce and Inspector General of Banks C. F. Elderkin — two of Ottawa's most respected public servants — which supported the Gordon version.

The two main factors which have caused the government's concern about Mercantile having unlimited access to the Canadian money market are these:

● That if left to expand without limits, Mercantile might have easy access to many of the big banking accounts in Canada. Presumably it could persuade the American parent companies (who are its customers in the U.S.) to switch the accounts of their Canadian subsidiaries to Mercantile.

● The fact that Mercantile could, if it wanted to, disregard monetary policies laid down by the Bank of Canada. Unlike the Canadian banks, it has direct access to extra funds. (In the 17 months between Nov. 30, 1963 and April 30, 1965, for example, Mercantile's assets jumped 50 per cent partly because of the infusion of outside funds.

The outcome of the dispute over the rights and wrongs of the Mercantile case remains far from clear. But at the moment, neither Washington nor Ottawa appears ready to give way.

Sales Tax Boost

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — A one per cent increase in Newfoundland's five per cent sales tax was forecast in the speech from the throne read today at the opening of the provincial legislature.

Air Talks Continue

have the right to belong to the union of his choice, or no union for that matter, through majority decision.

"The work force at Harmac in our opinion have been denied this right. This is contrary to the whole concept of the labor movement in a democratic country.

ASSISTED

"We mention the Harmac episode to point out that having remained silent while this was going on we assisted in bringing about the mess that now is staring us in the face."

Mr. Thompson was strongly critical of the bugging incident.

It behooved labor to "clean up and prevent such unsavory messes" and this was why his local proposed the three points mentioned earlier.

"We feel strongly that the B.C. labor movement must take a forthright position as suggested. "Keeping silent or sweeping this filthy mess under the rug is not in the best interest of the membership. To leave this clean-up task for Premier Bennett and the employers would be criminal neglect on our part."

'FAIL MISERABLY'

In a covering letter to all labor councils and union locals in B.C., Mr. Thompson said:

"Far too often within the house of labor we fail miserably in correcting our own shortcomings and condemning the, at times, undesirable behavior of some of our own leading lights.

"Unfortunately by remaining silent we inevitably bring about still more harm to ourselves. Our enemies see to that.

"Many rank and file members, and the public at large, are asking the question about the bugging incident: 'What is organized labor doing about this?'

"And all that we can say, up until now, is absolutely nothing.

"The officers of Local 1-217 IWA strongly urge that you lend your voice in condemning these activities that we all deplore."

Mr. O'Neal could not be reached this morning for a reply to the comments.

New Car Safety Plans Unveiled

U.S. Highway Safety Chief Reveals 23 Proposals for 1968 Models

DETROIT (AP) —The four largest automakers had the word today on what they must do to make 1968 cars safer. Their first reaction indicated they were neither surprised nor disturbed by it.

The word came Tuesday night from Dr. William Haddon Jr., the recently named U.S. highway safety boss, as he released 23 safety proposals described only in capsule form.

Dr. Haddon said many of them are "already met by most of the vehicles to which they would apply."

The newly created National Traffic and Highway Safety Agency is expected to release detailed, technical versions of the proposals.

Dr. Haddon unveiled the proposals at a dinner sponsored by the Detroit Automobile Show. It marked his first meeting with the four auto company presidents.

Here are the 23 safety standards for 1968 model automobiles:

1. Standard location and identification of certain controls.

SHIFT IN SEQUENCE

2. Requirements that automatic transmissions have a braking effect, that transmission shift levers are in the same sequence in all cars and for a device to prevent accidental starting of an auto with a transmission in drive position.

3. Standards to eliminate frost and fog conditions on windshields.

4. Requirements for performance of windshield wiping and washing systems.

5. Assurance of adequate braking performance with hydraulic and parking brake systems in case of partial system failure.

6. Standards to reduce chances of brake failure due to fluid leakage from hydraulic hoses.

7. Reduction of reflection from instrument lights and shiny hardware in the driver's field of view.

8. Requirements for lamps, reflective devices and other equipment used for lighting and signaling.

9. Standards for tire strength.

10. Assurances that tires and rims will not be overloaded under reasonable conditions.

11. Rear view mirrors providing a clear, undistorted and reasonably unobstructed view to the rear.

12. Protection of car occupants from injury in any interior impact from instrument panels, seat backs, sun visors, arm rests and other projections.

13. Head restraints (often called head rests) to reduce frequency and severity of whip lash-type neck injuries in rear end collisions.

14. Steering control systems that will absorb force and minimize chest, neck and facial injuries from any impact with the steering device.

15. Limitation of how the steering control extends into the car, to reduce chances of impaling a driver in a collision.

16. Protection against car occupants being cut from, or thrown through, windows.

17. Standards to keep doors from snapping open during a crash.

18. Assurance that seats are anchored securely.

19. Installation of seat belts in all forward-facing seats, except jump seats.

20. Specific standards for seat belt assembly.

21. Strong anchoring of all seat belts.

22. A ban against any hub caps, wheel nuts or wheel discs with projections or other factors that might be hazardous to pedestrians or cyclists.

23. Standards for the strength and integrity of fuel tanks and connections to minimize any fire hazard as a result of collision.
